70 Marines Die, 128 Wounded in Grim Fighting

By GEORGE MCARTHUR
SAIGON (AP) — Bitter marshland fighting that has killed 70 U.S. Marines and wounded 128 more on past the start of the Viet Cong's unilateral New Year's truce today, South Vietnam announced it would extend to 36 hours the day-long cease-fire the allies plan to begin Sunday.

The Saigon government said the extension was being made in line with Pope Paul's appeal that Jan. 1 be observed as a "day of peace" throughout the world, but informed sources indicated it was also in response to a request from Washington.

Grim Battles

The Marine casualties were announced today in delayed U.S. Command reports that told of grim new battles in South Vietnam's three northernmost provinces and massive air strikes to relieve the hard-pressed Leathernecks.

The war also continued unabated in the air over North Vietnam. The U.S. Command announced that Red ground gunners shot down a Navy F111 Phantom jet east of Haiphong Friday, but both crewmen bailed out over the Tonkin Gulf and were rescued.

The focus of the ground war was along the South China Sea coast below the demilitarized zone, where heavy clashes have flared and subsided since last Wednesday. Some battle reports from the field were being held up at U.S. headquarters on the request of local commanders whose units were still sparring with the enemy after the announced start of the Communists' truce period at 1 a.m. Saturday, local time.

several thousand men—ran into heavy Communist resistance. The U.S. Command reported the Marines lost 19 dead and 25 wounded. The enemy casualties were listed as 33 dead plus 30 more believed killed by artillery.

Keep Up Pressure

Several thousand Marines and Vietnamese troopers maintained pressure today in Thua Thien and Quang Nam where the old imperial capital of Hue and the big base at Da Nang are located.

In the air war, heavy weather over North Vietnam again hampered American airmen and restricted available target areas. Carrier-based Navy planes swept through breaks in the weather to pour bombs on supply points above Haiphong but the effort cost one Phantom jet.

The Phantom had gone in early to scout the weather and was flying relatively low over a seemingly peaceful island when ground fire suddenly opened up and set the plane afire. The crewmen nursed the plane over the water and bailed out—and were picked up a short while later by helicopters.

The loss was the 71st U.S. jet reported lost over North Vietnam by the U.S. Command. This figure includes one aircraft downed some time in the past week. The loss was not reported by U.S. headquarters at the time.

Prince Sihanouk's statement about keeping Cambodia free of Vietnam war under U.S. diplomatic study. Story on page 10.

The heaviest casualties came in a savage battle which raged Wednesday and Thursday and ended with the Marines storming the fortified village of Thon Tham Kee 410 miles north of Saigon.

The fighting with regulars of the 716th North Vietnamese Army regiment broke out when a landing group of about 1,000 Marines ran into about 300 of the North Vietnamese on the border of Thua Thien and Quang Nam provinces and were pinned down.

When the battle smoke subsided Friday there were 27 enemy known killed against the Marine's 48 dead and 81 wounded.

An almost equally lethal series of battles was raging Thursday near Hoi An southwest of Da Nang. A coordinated sweep by Marines, infantrymen of the First Cavalry Division and South Vietnamese—a force of

Antitrust Violations

Drug Firms Guilty

NEW YORK (AP) — Three major drug firms have been found guilty of antitrust violations in the manufacture and distribution of $1.7 billion worth of antibiotics.

Significant Confrontation

The conspiracy case against the American Cyanamid Co., Bristol Myers Co. and Charles Pfizer and Co. marked a significant confrontation between the U.S. government and the multi-billion-dollar U.S. pharmaceutical industry.

A U.S. District Court jury of 11 men and a woman found the three firms guilty of restraint of trade, conspiracy to monopolize and actual monopoly. The panel returned the verdict Friday night after beginning deliberations Thursday.

Maximum penalties on the charges are fines of $150,000 against each defendant. The convictions also open the way for civil suits from major purchasers. The Sherman Antitrust Act provides for treble damages against violators.

The trial occurred as growing federal involvement in the health field through medicare and other programs has generated increased concern over the cost and quality of that care.

The drug industry has been undergoing increasing scrutiny by the federal government. Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., has been conducting a wide-ranging probe of drug prices.

Clifford D. Siverd, president of American Cyanamid, expressed surprise and disappointment in the verdict and said the firm would "take all possible steps in the federal courts to have this adverse decision set aside."

Deeply Disappointed

A Pfizer spokesman commented, "We disagree with and are deeply disappointed by the verdict of the jury. There are still questions to be ruled upon by the trial court and we shall therefore not comment at this time beyond saying the charges against us in this case are unfounded."

The trial opened Oct. 23. The three firms were accused of entering into arrangements during the period from 1953 to 1961 to produce and distribute broad spectrum antibiotics in violation of the Sherman law.

During the trial the government prosecutor said Pfizer and Cyanamid realized "enormous" profits on the antibiotic called tetracycline.

When the cost of manufacturing 100 capsules of the drug ranged from $1.59 to $3.87 for the two companies, he said, each sold that quantity of tetracycline to druggists for $30.60 and the consumer's cost was $51.

Named Two Others

In addition to the three firms, the indictment obtained by the Justice Department in 1961 also named the Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp., whose drug making arm is Squibb, and the Upjohn Co. as co-conspirators but not defendants.

The prosecutor said the cited companies agreed to limit the manufacture of tetracycline to the three defendants and sale of the drug to the defendants and co-conspirators with all sales by the parties to be at substantially identical prices.

Attorneys for Pfizer held that the drug price was arrived at independently by the firm and was not the result of any conspiracy.

Sunday's Ending Won't Hamper Revelers

NEW YORK (AP) — Those New Year's Eve celebrations—and New Year's Day hangovers—will cost just as much and maybe more than ever this year, and, in most states, won't be slowed down a bit by the fact that 1967 ends on a Sunday.

Last-minute legislation and issuance of special licenses will permit the sale of liquor in many places where alcohol normally can't be sold on the Sabbath. Other places will sell only beer and wine until midnight, then switch to hard liquor.

Nightclubs and restaurants, particularly in the large cities, report a brisk reservation business, even at prices close to $100 per couple. Many have been sold out for a week or longer.

Bargain-hunting would-be revelers can still celebrate and save their pocketbooks too, however.

In St. Louis, Mo., one place is charging only a $1-per-person cover for which favors will be provided. New Haven, Conn., celebrants can pay $16.50 per couple for a buffet dinner and a show. And for $17.60 per couple, Pittsburgh residents can get dinner, see a stage play and dance. They also can drink, thanks to a special law passed by the state legislature.

At the other end of the scale are clubs in the big cities. The Persian Room in New York's Plaza Hotel has been sold out for two weeks at $40 per person for dinner and a show. The Rainbow Grill, overlooking midtown Manhattan from atop the RCA Building, offers dinner and dancing for $35 per person, tax and tips included. The same celebration last year cost $27.50 per person, but the figure did not include tax and tips.

New York City, which has no Sunday closing law, is issuing special permits allowing clubs to stay open until 8 a.m. Monday.

For those who are willing to brave the cold, there will be the traditional midnight lowering of a lighted ball from the Allied Chemical Co. Tower in Times Square. The city also has invited everyone to gather in Central Park for a gospel concert and post-midnight dancing under the stars.

Honolulu residents, who don't have to fear the cold, can celebrate outdoors by watching one of the many traditional fireworks displays on Waikiki Beach. Indoors, they can celebrate at places like the $30-per-person Hilton Hawaiian Village which has upped its price by $5 per person.

In-between the bargains and the top prices are numerous celebrations at rates averaging $20 to $30 per couple. A motel in Seattle, Wash., is offering a holiday party and two nights lodging for $55 a couple.

GOP Caucus

Machione Minority Boss Again

John J. Machione, Republican alderman of Kingston's 12th Ward, was reelected minority leader of the Common Council by a caucus of the five GOP aldermen who will take office on Jan. 1.

Alderman Machione is now completing a two-year term in this post.

The new minority leader term will last for only one year, instead of the usual two, because city reapportionment will cause a special election in 1968 for all members of the Common Council.

The 1966 election will be for the purpose of selecting aldermen for the newly designated wards under the reapportionment plan to be approved by the State Supreme Court sometime during the new year.

The caucus in which Machione was elected minority leader included Second Ward Alderman Robert C. Schantz, Third Ward Alderman John J. Naccarato, new Fourth Ward Alderman Frank Jablonski, and new 10th Ward Alderman Peter C. Fisher.

It was Alderman Naccarato who placed Machione's name in nomination. Alderman Schantz seconded the nomination and the vote was unanimous.

Republican City Chairman John Rav Mayone presided.

Machione, a resident of 23 Janet Street, is married to the former Edna G. Bellino and they have three children.

Machione served as majority leader in the Common Council under the administration of Republican Mayor John J. Schwenk and was elected minority leader in the latter part of 1965 when the Democrats took over a majority of the seats.

The alderman, an expeditor at IBM, operated the Raimond Beauty Shop in Kingston a number of years ago.

He served as chairman of the Laws and Rules Committee and as chairman of the Finance Committee of the Common Council.

Machione, a graduate of the U. S. Maritime School and Kree Institute, is a past exalted ruler of Kingston Lodge BPOE; former president of St. Joseph's Holy Name Society; member of the Rip Van Winkle Council, Boy Scouts of America and Ex-celsior Hose Co. No. 4. He also serves as Republican committeeman of the 12th Ward.

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODIE ISHMAEL

Mrs. Hubert Humphrey, wife of the vice president of the United States lives a life of faith. Her devotion to her children extends to all children around the world. She is involved with the problems of the handicapped even before her granddaughter, Vicky, was born a mongoloid. Mrs. Humphrey's mission has been to open hearts and eyes to the needs and love of the mentally retarded. This she has done officially and personally wherever she goes.

Speaking of Vicky she says: "She has taught our family to mean more to each other. I gain strength from my children and grandchildren. In raising a family, those precious moments come along when they say some little thing that makes everything right with the world." The only advice Mrs. Humphrey gives on the handling of the problems of retardation is: "Take first things first one day at a time."

At the peak of the selling surge the New York exchange's ticker tape lagged by 17 minutes in reporting floor transactions.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials advanced 7.28 points to 905.11, topping 900 for the first time since last Oct. 29.

The Associated Press 60-stock average rose 2.2 points to 322.5.

The advance capped a week-long traditional year-end rally. A record number of issues were traded on the New York exchange for the third straight day. Of 1,546 issues traded, 822 advanced and 532 declined.

Peace Prayers To Be Offered

The Most Rev. Edward J. Maginn has asked the people of the Albany Diocese to offer special prayers for peace on Jan. 1. This action is being taken in conjunction with an announcement by Pope Paul VI proclaiming this New Year's Day as a World Day of Peace.

Bishop Maginn, in union with Pope Paul, stressed their desire to join with all "true friends of peace" in marking this special "Day of Peace." The Holy Father expressed the hope that non-Catholics and non-Christians would find it possible to associate themselves in some way with this initiative, offering prayers in accord with their own religious traditions and customs.

If this deep hope of mankind for lasting peace is ever to be accomplished, all men of good will regardless of religious or political affiliation must join together in common effort, Pope Paul notes. "How beautiful and how important is the harmony of all voices in the world for the exaltation of this primary good."

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODIE ISHMAEL

Mrs. Hubert Humphrey, wife of the vice president of the United States lives a life of faith. Her devotion to her children extends to all children around the world. She was involved with the problems of the handicapped even before her granddaughter, Vicky, was born a mongoloid. Mrs. Humphrey's mission has been to open hearts and eyes to the needs and love of the mentally retarded. This she has done officially and personally wherever she goes.

Speaking of Vicky she says: "She has taught our family to mean more to each other. I gain strength from my children and grandchildren. In raising a family, those precious moments come along when they say some little thing that makes everything right with the world." The only advice Mrs. Humphrey gives on the handling of the problems of retardation is: "Take first things first one day at a time."

Five Injured in Mishaps

Five persons were injured, one seriously, as the result of traffic accidents investigated by State Police in the area, who reported the mishaps were due to icy conditions on highways. Three of the injured were involved in an accident on Route 209 near Kerhonkson.

Headon Collision

A headon collision on Route 209 near the state prison farm, Town of Wawarsing, at 3.30 p. m. Friday, resulted in injuries to three persons who were taken to Ellenville Community Hospital for treatment.

A report of State Trooper

John Hutton listed the operators of the vehicles involved as Chester Wolos, 61, of Scranton, Pa., and Charlie Beckman, 36, of Spring Glen. Troopers said Wolos was traveling north when his car skidded on icy pavement into the path of the southbound vehicle operated by the woman and the cars collided headon.

Mrs. Beckman sustained lacerations of the face. Debra Beckman, 14, was treated for cuts of the forearm, and Ann Wolos, 60, received injuries to a foot.

At 12:15 a. m. today, John F. Cotter, 35, of Box 312, New Paltz, was injured when his car skidded on ice and crashed into a cement barrier at the toll booth on Route 44-55 at the west approach to the Mid-Hudson Bridge at Highland. Friday when his snowmobile was involved in an accident on Route 23 in the Town of Claverack, according to State Police who said complete details were not available. ## Viet-Bound Parcels In Custom Custody

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Forty-six packages of medical supplies destined for North and South Vietnam were in the custody of Canadian customs officials today pending the completion of export forms by peace group leaders.

The packages were left Friday at the customs office in Port Erie, Ont., across the Peace Bridge from Buffalo, after an estimated 220 demonstrators marched across the span.

Both U.S. and Canadian customs officials examined the packages, containing less than $500 worth of surgical instruments and other medical supplies.

The inter-faith marchers decided to leave the parcels in Canadian hands after being informed that export licenses would have to be secured from the Department of Trade and Commerce in Ottawa if the items were ultimately destined for Vietnam.

Matthew Cahill Dies, Former City Official

Matthew V. Cahill, former corporation counsel under Mayor Harry B. Walker and Conrad J. Heiselman, and three-term city court judge, died Friday.

Mr. Cahill, who resided with his wife, the former Corinne D. Roche, at 250 Foxhall Avenue, was drafted by the Republican Party in 1943 to challenge the then mayor, William F. Edelmuth, and was defeated by a small margin. For years, he operated a law firm, formed with his father, on Wall Street.

Born in Kingston, the son of the late John and Ellen Hoffman Cahill, he was educated at St. Joseph's School, Kingston High School and Fordham Law School. Mr. Cahill began the practice of law at 21 years, and is believed to have been the youngest corporation counsel or judge the city ever had.

Besides his wife, he is survived by four sons, Robert V. Cahill of Wappingers Falls and Richard T. James E. and Matthew P. Cahill, all of Kingston. In addition he is survived by three brothers, Eugene A. Cahill, Kingston; James F. Cahill, Rochester and John T. Cahill Jr., Springfield, Mass. Also surviving are a sister, Mrs. Stanhope (Mary) Appleby of Hialeah, Fla., and a grandson, Thomas H. Cahill of Wappingers Falls. A brother, Edward P. Cahill, and a sister, Mrs. Francis I. Arend, died some time ago.

Funeral services will be held from the Henry J. Bruck Funeral Home, 27 Smith Avenue, Wednesday at 9:30 a. m., thence to St. Joseph's Church where a high Mass of requiem will be offered at 10 a. m. for the repose of his soul. Burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery. Friends may call Monday 7 to 9 o'clock, and Tuesday 7 to 4 and 7 to 9 p. m.

Parties Still Apart in N.Y. Transit Crisis

NEW YORK (AP) — Media reports "substantial movement" in the critical city transit negotiations after both the Transit Authority and the Transport Workers Union submitted confidential proposals for a settlement.

But Theodore W. Kheel, spokesman for the three-man mediation panel, also said Friday night "the parties remain substantially apart" as they worked against a 5 a. m. New Year's Day deadline for a city-wide bus and subway strike.

Mayor John V. Lindsay meets today at Gracie Mansion with top city officials and leaders of labor and management to hear a further report from the panel. Lane Kirkland, executive assistant to AFL-CIO President George Meany, was to be present.

Lindsay personally joined the talks Friday moments after the Transit Authority had agreed to submit its first offer and the union to write a revised package of demands. Details of the proposals were not made public. However, Kheel told the mayor that the union's pension proposal for retirement at half pay after 20 years service, regardless of age, remained a "major stumbling block." It is considered the key to the talks along with the wage issue.

The 36,000 members of the TWU now make an average salary of $3.62 an hour. They are asking a 30 per cent wage hike over two years.

Matthew Guinan, international president of the TWU, said after the proposals were submitted, "for the first time there is hope — things are beginning to roll."

Hotels, businesses, commuter bus and rail lines and city officials were taking no chances however. They continued to make emergency preparations in the event of a strike.

People's Choice
The people's choice had to be Arnold Surgick, the roly-poly Albany long shot artist who drilled the clincher against Roosevelt. His style of shooting is a throwback to the early pro era. . . . Two visiting coaches, and presumably scouts — Mike Perry of Ulster CCC and Doug Shepard of State University College at New Paltz — expressed amazement at the blinding speed of the White Plains team. There was nothing slow about Albany, either. . . . Two top officials — Art Kalaka and Ernie Downer of Dutchess — handled the game with a minimum of incidents. The overall attendance, hurt by Thursday's snowstorm, fell below expectations but the tournament was a financial success.

The loss may have been a blessing in disguise for the Marlboro's. It takes the pressure of a perfect streak off their backs and they have to be a better ball club after that encounter with the Plainsmen.

Thursday night the Woodstock American Legion Post 1026 and Ladies' Auxiliary called and held ritualistic services for their departed past commander, Ulster Lodge 193, F. & A. M., called Thursday night and held a memorial service for their departed member. There was a profusion of beautiful floral tributes and spiritual bouquets in the form of Mass cards. Kingston, N. Y.

Three on 209

Five Injured in Mishaps

Five persons were injured, one seriously, as the result of traffic accidents investigated by State Police in the area, who reported the mishaps were due to icy conditions on highways. Three of the injured were involved in an accident on Route 209 near Kerhonkson.

Headon Collision

A headon collision on Route 209 near the state prison farm, Town of Wawarsing, at 3.30 p. m. Friday, resulted in injuries to three persons who were taken to Ellenville Community Hospital for treatment. A report of State Trooper

John Huntoon listed the operators of the vehicles involved as Chester Wolos, 61, of Scranton, Pa., and Clarie Beckman, 36, of Spring Glen. Troopers said Wolos was traveling north when his car skidded on icy pavement into the path of the southbound vehicle operated by the woman and the cars collided headon.

Mrs. Beckman sustained lacerations of the face. Debra Beckman, 14, was treated for cuts of the forearm, and Ann Wolos, 60, received injuries of a foot.

Hits Barrier

At 12:15 a. m. today, John F. Cotter, 35, of Box 312, New Paltz, was injured when his car skidded on ice and crashed into a cement barrier at the toll booth on Route 44-55 at the west approach to the Mid-Hudson Bridge at Highland. Troopers said the vehicle slid out of control as Cotter attempted to stop to pay his toll. He sustained lacerations of the upper lip, according to a report of Trooper Philip Koenig.

Calvin Post, of Copake, was severely injured at 6:15 p. m. Friday when his snowmobile was involved in an accident on Route 23 in the Town of Claverack, according to State Police who said complete details were not available. Post was taken to Columbia Memorial Hospital, Hudson, and treated for head and other injuries.

Matthew Cahill Dies, Former City Official

Matthew V. Cahill, former corporation counsel under Mayors Harry B. Walker and Conrad J. Heiselman, and three-term city court judge, died Friday.

Mr. Cahill, who resided with his wife, the former Corinne D. Roche, at 250 Foxhall Avenue, was drafted by the Republican Party in 1945 to challenge the then mayor, William F. Edelmuth, and was defeated by a small margin. For years, he operated a law firm, formed with his father, on Wall Street. Born in Kingston, the son of the late John and Ellen Hoffman Cahill, he was educated at St. Joseph's School, Kingston High School and Fordham Law School. Mr. Cahill began the practice of law at 21 years, and is believed to have been the youngest corporation counsel or judge the city ever had.

Besides his wife, he is survived by four sons, Robert V. Cahill of Wappingers Falls and Richard T. James E. and Matthew P. Cahill, all of Kingston. In addition, he is survived by three brothers, Eugene A. Cahill, Rochester, and John T. Cahill Jr., Springfield, Mass. Also surviving are a sister, Mrs. Stanhope (Mary) Appleby of Hialeah Fla., and a grandson, Thomas H. Cahill of Wappingers Falls. A brother, Edward P. Cahill, and a sister, Mrs. Francis I. Arend, died some time ago.

Funeral services will be held from the Henry J. Bruck Funeral Home, 27 Smith Avenue, Wednesday at 9:30 a. m., thence to St. Joseph's Church, Nesboda County where the three were killed, and Billy Wayne Posey, 31, employee of an oil distributor at Philadelphia, the county seat, drew six-year sentences.

Three-year terms were given to Horace Doyle Barnett, 29, now living near Shreveport, La.; Jimmy Arledge, 30, a Meridian steel firm employee, and Jimmie Snowden, 34, a Meridian laundry driver.

All plan appeals of their Oct. 20 convictions by an all-white jury at Meridian. The Justice Department brought the conspiracy charges under a Reconstruction era law which provides a maximum penalty of 10 years and a $5,000 fine. No fines were assessed.

Bonds allowing them to go free while appeals are made were set at $10,000 for Barnett and Roberts, $6,000 for Posey and Price, and $3,000 for the rest.

Cox said the sentences were indeterminate and parole could only come on the recommendation of a federal parole board regardless of time served.

The bodies of civil rights workers Michael Schwerner, 23, and Andrew Goodman, 20, both white and of New York, and James Chaney, 22, a Meridian Negro, were dug from an earthen dam on a farm near Philadelphia 44 days after they disappeared on June 12, 1964. They had been shot to death.

The men were among 18 tried in the case. The jury acquitted eight, including Nesboda County Sheriff Lawrence Rainey.

Edgar Ray Killen, Nesboda sheriff-elect Ethel Glen "Hop" Barnett and Jerry McGraw Sharpe received mistrials. Whether they will be retried has not been announced.

KKK Leader, Six Others Given Terms

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Seven men, among them a Ku Klux Klan leader, have been sentenced to federal prison terms for conspiring to violate the civil rights of three young men slain in rural Mississippi more than four years ago.

Samuel Holloway Bowers Jr., 42, imperial wizard of the White Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, and Alton Wayne Roberts, 29, a former night club bouncer, were sentenced Friday to 10 years imprisonment by U.S. District Judge Harold Cox. Cecil R. Price, 29, chief deputy sheriff of Nesboda County where the three were killed, and Billy Wayne Posey, 31, employee of an oil distributor at Philadelphia, the county seat, drew six-year sentences.

Three-year terms were given to Horace Doyle Barnett, 29, now living near Shreveport, La.; Jimmy Arledge, 30, a Meridian steel firm employee, and Jimmie Snowden, 34, a Meridian laundry driver.

Skating Rinks In City Closed After Snowfall

Mother Nature put a damper on ice skating plans for the weekend when she dumped over eight inches of snow on the area. Drifts on Kingman Rink were two feet deep in places. The ice at Kingman is dangerously thin with several large holes all over the area.

The Recreation Department requests that parents keep their children away from Kingman to avoid accidents. At the present time it is impossible to do any work on the rink because of the snow and slush condition, coupled with the holes, but as soon as the promised cold weather tightens up the ice the reflooding process will be started.

The snow caused a slush condition on the rink at Dietz Stadium necessitating reflooding. The rink has already been reflooded but it will take three to four days of below freezing weather to make the area ready for skating.

The Recreation Commission is currently making plans for skating in other areas of the city. They hope to have ice skating in both the Second and Seventh Wards within two weeks.

Announcements will be made in the press and radio when rinks are ready to operate.

Two Persons Hurt In City Mishap

Two persons were injured early today in a collision at the intersection of Main Street and Washington Avenue, police report.

Taken to Kingston Hospital were Joan Ausanio, 21, of 74 Cedar Street and John G. Stote Jr., 30, of Norma Court. Both complained of leg injuries.

According to police, Stote was traveling along Main Street and the Ausanio vehicle was headed north on Washington Avenue. Both operators claimed they had the green light when the smash occurred at 3:01 a. m., police stated.

There are 132 rooms in the White House.

Parties Still Apart in N.Y. Transit Crisis

NEW YORK (AP) — Mediators report "substantial movement" in the critical city transit negotiations after both the Transit Authority and the Transport Workers Union submitted confidential proposals for a settlement.

But Theodore W. Kheel, spokesman for the three-man mediation panel, also said Friday night "the parties remain substantially apart" as they worked against a 5 a. m. New Year's Day deadline for a city-wide bus and subway strike.

Mayor John V. Lindsay meets today at Gracie Mansion with top city officials and leaders of labor and management to hear a further report from the panel. Lane Kirkland, executive assistant to AFL-CIO President George Meany, was to be present.

Lindsay personally joined the talks Friday moments after the Transit Authority had agreed to submit its first offer and the union to write a revised package of demands. Details of the proposals were not made public.

However, Kheel told the mayor that the union's pension proposal for retirement at half pay after 20 years service, regardless of age, remained a "major stumbling block." It is considered the key to the talks along with the wage issue.

The 36,000 members of the TWU now make an average salary of $3.62 an hour. They are asking a 30 per cent wage hike over two years.

Matthew Guinan, international president of the TWU, said after the proposals were submitted, "for the first time there is hope — things are beginning to roll."

Hotels, businesses, commuter bus and rail lines and city officials were taking no chances however. They continued to make emergency preparations in the event of a strike.

The boy spent the night in the woods, under the trees, and apparently was not harmed by the 10-inch snowfall or subfreezing temperatures that hit the area.

Tommy's parents picked him up after he was checked at the hospital in Newburgh. The dog was lost.

People's Choice

The people's choice had to be Arnold Surgick, the roly-poly Albany long shot artist who drilled the clincher against Roosevelt. His style of shooting is a throwback to the early pro era . . . Two visiting coaches, and presumably scouts — Mike Perry of Ulster CCC and Doug Shepard of State University College at New Paltz — expressed amazement at the blinding speed of the White Plains team. There was nothing slow about Albany, either.

Two top officials — Ar. Kalaka and Eddie Downer of Dutchess handled the game with a minimum of incidents. The overall attendance, hurt by Thursday's snowstorm, fell below expectations but the tournament was a financial success.

The loss may have been a blessing in disguise for the Maroons. It takes the pressure of a perfect streak off their backs and they have to be a better ball club that encounter with the Plainsmen.

Happy New Year

We trust that you had the finest Christmas ever, as your generous hearts and helpful natures more than deserved such a one.

Somehow, these holidays are sweeter when home hearts are together, when snow covers the hills, when frost crackles on the side of the cheeks, and the pond freezes blue-white for children's new gift sleds.

Out of the holiday quiet, suddenly there is a long-drawn wail from the tired engine of 1967. The old year is about to grind to a halt, to take its last trip into the roundhouse.

Over the horizon, just in time to load on the passengers, baggage, mail, and other burdens of the last year, zooms shiny-new turbine-powered 1968 at a fantastic speed. It is plain to see that the 1968 means to set new records. In fact, we nervous passengers wonder whether it will hold to the tracks all through the year.

But get all aboard we must, come what may, firmly determined to keep our heads, on matter how swiftly space and time are to flow by. With a low, mysterious whistle, 1968 skims on its way.

After a timid glance around us, we conclude that this 1968 is not such a strange, new world. There are the same smiling friends and neighbors, the same tasks to do, (only faster), the same hills and trees (though we may see them in a bit of a blur).

"God's in His heaven; all's right with the world," as Pippa said in Robert Browning's verse.

So, a most Blessed, Joyful and Prosperous New Year of 1968 to all our dear readers from The Kingston Daily Freeman. It's nice to be with you as 1968 rockets down the rails.

First Order of Business

Nothing is more important starting the new year than that we are here to see it through, is there? In this motor age, that means safe driving, safe walking and safe being.

The winter holidays are particularly dangerous. It was a four-day Thanksgiving observance in 1966 that registered the all-time high toll of 784 deaths—higher than for any four-day holiday.

This past Christmas four-day holiday was not far behind, with its toll for the four days from 6 p. m. Friday to midnight Monday of 652 deaths. Traffic accidents in New York during the period claimed 35 lives.

For a while this year, it looked as if people were beginning to be concerned about their own and the safety of others. The weekly death toll dropped and held under the average of 1,000 a week.

But the crashes on these winter holidays raise the question: Have people lost their fervor for safety? Such lack of concern could be fatal to them and to their families, as well as the strangers they meet on the road.

Just two or three thoughts may mean the difference between life and death: Don't drink at least two hours before or while driving. If you must drink, let someone else drive. Keep within the speed limit. Gauge your speed to the condition of the road. And drive as if everyone else on the road is irresponsible.

Stop Shoplifting

In Newport Beach, Calif., everybody is going to be under the eye of a surveillance system the city is planning.

Mobile television cameras, able to pick out people a mile away in the dark, will focus on shopping centers, intersections and four miles of beachfront. Fixed cameras will be installed in supermarkets, banks and other public places. The cameras will be monitored by police officers, who will alert cruising patrol cars in the event of any illegal goings-on.

Indiscriminate surveillance, even to deter crime, may not be worth loss of privacy to people who never have and never will commit a crime against society, but more and more people are being watched more and more closely in more and more places all the time—in stores, banks, factories, warehouses, etc.

Other protective devices include store detectives, strategic mirrors and assorted warnings. But all these devices don't stop shoplifting, which is estimated to have cost stores up to $50 million during the Christmas shopping crush.

As pointed out by Drew Pearson, most of these light-fingered thieves are pillars of the community. And the fact that only one or two in a hundred ever get tried for their crimes is what distinguishes shoplifting from other crimes.

The stores are strangely sanguine about the whole business. They say, simply, that nothing can be done but take the loss and pass it along to the honest customers in the form of higher prices.

Shoplifting will continue to become a way of life for many unless shoplifters are prosecuted. Only one in ten who are caught are now being brought to court.

Same Old Political Game With Different Players

WASHINGTON — Are the aspirants for the Presidential nominations in 1968 getting into the contest too soon, and who are they really trying to convince nearly six months before all the delegates to the national conventions are actually chosen?

Asking such questions can lead to the assumption that something different is happening this time when, as a matter of fact, it's the same old game but with different players. The audience which the would-be nominees are trying at this stage to win consists of less than a million people—the persons who will be the delegates and those who are usually in the background telling them which candidates to support.

Having witnessed 14 pre-convention campaigns, this correspondent perceives no change as yet in the system.

For, unfortunately, the United States hasn't modified its method of choosing a party nominee. It is still a most undemocratic process. A few states have primaries, but even these do not always bind the delegates to the conventions to vote for the individual who has won the primary election except a few of the initial roll calls. The nominees, therefore, are selected by a small group of political leaders or bosses or managers of state delegations who listen carefully to the advice of some of the persons who have made substantial contributions of money.

But what does public opinion have to do with it all? Plenty — for the same persons who are politically influential behind the scenes are trying to figure out just which candidate either has popular favor already or is likely to obtain it once the election campaign begins. Polls and surveys are studied carefully, and some are privately made and never published.

Basically the search is for a Presidential candidate who seems to have the best chance of winning in November. He has to be a candidate who understands public opinion trends and knows how to deal with them in his speeches. Thus in 1964, the Republican nominee spoke realistically from a military standpoint when he advocated "escalation" of the Vietnam war. But, politically speaking, he made a mistake at the time because he didn't come up with a formula that promised an early peace.

In a national campaign, the peace side of the argument is the more powerful, even though it may prove fruitless. In 1916, for instance, the Democrats had as their campaign slogan the boast that President Wilson had "kept us out of war." It so happened that five months after the election the United States entered World War I. Likewise, in 1940, President Roosevelt gave the voters an impression that America would stay out of World War II and he won on that issue. But within thirteen months subsequent to the election, this country had entered the war.

In the 1952 contest, after General Eisenhower won the nomination, he announced that he would "go to Korea." All the Republican campaign speakers emphasized this as a way to end the war there. The maneuver helped elect the Eisenhower-Nixon ticket.

Today the Republicans have a lot of issues before the Vietnam war. The leaders in the state, county and city organizations have been hearing that victory is assured because the country is in a negative mood against the incumbent administration and hence it doesn't make much difference who is the candidate.

Obviously, if there is no important change in the war situation by November next, a Republican has a good chance of winning, but it isn't so certain that just any Republican can be victorious. The theory that the Republicans can win with even a weak candidate has been widespread because many voters are expressing their attitudes by stickers lately seen on autos — "ABJ for President — Anybody But Johnson."

In the middle of a war, however, with a great deal at stake, the independent voters are the decisive influence. Lots of them already are saying, "as between some of the inexperienced Republicans they're talking about and keeping Johnson, maybe it is better not to 'switch horses in midstream.'" So the Republicans really have to pick the candidate who can command the confidence of the American people. The present period of testing and public exposure, therefore, is by no means unusual or unimportant.

Nuclear Arsenal Must Be Geared to U.S. Survival

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA)

To be effective, a U.S. nuclear weapons complex must achieve three ends:

1—Deter enemies from starting war.

2—Help win the war if one starts.

3—Preserve as many of our people and resources as possible from destruction in war so that this nation can recover in a reasonable time.

The present Defense Department system is weak on all three counts.

It limits U.S. nuclear defenses to intercontinental ballistic missiles aided by a thin antimissile defense and a bomber fleet rapidly growing obsolete.

If Soviet planners think they've figured a way to beat the ICBM system by some means, then effective defense of the United States may be lost. The history of military science demonstrates that when faced with just one all-powerful system, men have always found a way to beat it.

The Russians have already made two stab at an end run around the U.S. ICBM system — Cuba and the orbiting bomb. They came within days of getting away with their Cuban missile venture. We don't know yet what they will be able to accomplish with their orbiting bomb.

If the United States should build additional alternate offensive-defensive strategic systems, the Russians would be faced with the necessity of countering all these alternatives.

This situation would make war less likely for two reasons. First, the Russians would have greater doubts about their ability to win at an acceptable cost to themselves.

It's much easier to be "certain" of defeating one weapon system than to be "certain" of defeating a whole complex of weapons systems. Second, the building of alternate systems would force the Russians to spend a great deal more to "get through" such systems in an attack and to defend against systems directed against the Russian homeland.

These additional expenditures would add heavily to Moscow's economic burdens at a time when Russia's economy is facing important strains.

The last time U.S. defense expenditures forced the Russians to up their defense spending markedly, the added financial burden slowed essential Red economic development and made the over-all Soviet economy less ready for war.

So much for preventing a war. As for winning a war, if one comes, one of the oldest and most reliable military axioms is that commanders need a variety of weapons because wars never turn out the way that either civilian or military planners expect.

Once this unpredictability of war is accepted, then the folly of depending too heavily on a weapons system that has never been tried in war becomes apparent.

When a war breaks out, it is also obviously necessary to insure, so far as possible, that the people of our nation and its resources endure and the nation recovers as rapidly as possible — or a U.S. victory may be in reality a defeat. Secretary of Defense McNamara apparently is gambling that his missiles will surely prevent all-out war. This reporter believes that this is too much of a gamble.

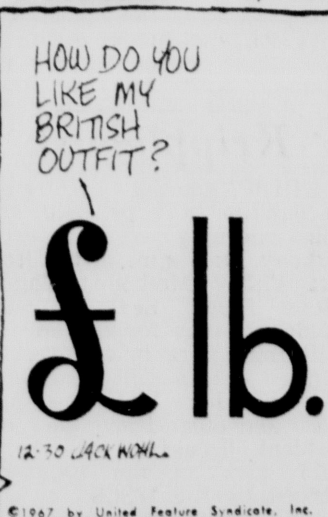

Therefore, some system must be instituted to save the lives of millions of Americans who would otherwise be killed in a nuclear war and a percentage of the industrial and other resources necessary for Americans to live.

Proponents of the Nike anti-missile missile systems say that a thick defense could save 30 million to 50 million lives and multimillions in resource damage.

Whether these systems should be adopted or not is not certain. What is certain, however, is that some such protective system is necessary. Any GI whose life has been saved by a foxhole or a slit trench knows this. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Drew Pearson Says FBI Listened in on Senator Ed Long's Conversations

WASHINGTON—During the bugging of lobbyist Fred Black's hotel suite, the FBI got an electronic earful about some of Washington's most prominent personalities. There were titillating tidbits about everyone from Lyndon Johnson to the arch foe of eavesdropping himself, Sen. Ed Long, D-Mo.

It was particularly ironic that Long's name should wind up on the FBI tapes at the same time that he was conducting a determined campaign against government bugging. He was probing Internal Revenue eavesdropping while the FBI was eavesdropping indirectly on him. He did not know this, incidentally, until this week when we called him.

It was the FBI which first got the tip that Sen. Long was close to St. Louis attorney Morris Shenker by listening to one of Fred Black's telephone calls. Apparently, this information was later leaked to Life magazine, which exposed how Long and Shenker had been splitting law fees. Their relationship is now under investigation by the Senate Ethics Committee.

At 5:45 p.m. on Feb. 9, 1963, Black telephoned gambler Ed Levinson in Las Vegas. Black said he had looked up Sen. Long at a Jackson Day dinner in Springfield, Mo., at the urging of Bobby Baker, then a Senate aide. Long objected to talking to Black at the dinner because "too many people were around," but arranged to meet Black on the plane to St. Louis the following morning at 5:30.

On the plane, Sen. Long suggested that Black retain Morris Shenker to defend his income tax case. All this was told by Black to Levinson over the phone in Las Vegas. As Black recounted the conversation to Levinson, he had objected to Long: "Ed, look if you hire this SOB, you're guilty before you start. Otherwise you don't hire him."

Black added that Baker wanted him "to go along with Long" but that he was "not about it to go."

When we asked Long about this alleged incident, he stated: "I have no recollection of ever meeting Fred Black, and I most certainly didn't meet him on an airplane at 5:30 in the morning."

However, the FBI bug on March 13, 1963, picked up a related conversation in the hotel suite between Black and Baker. Black repeated to Baker that he had no intention, despite Long's recommendation, of retaining Teamsters' attorney Shenker of St. Louis. Black said his tax case was being handled in Kansas City by U.S. Attorney F. Russell Millin.

"Bobby, let me tell you something," said Black. "I have checked this Millin out. There ain't but one politician in the state of Missouri that this fella Millin is indebted to, and it is Ed Long."

Baker asked who it was.

"Stuart Symington," replied Black.

Later, Black asked Baker whether LBJ would be in town the next day. Bobby said he doubted it.

Explained Black: "I got in the mail this morning three models of this house. I don't want to do anything until Johnson sees them. It is most beautiful thing you have ever seen."

We could find no evidence that Black had ever shown Johnson, then Vice President, any house models. This must have been a reference, as nearly as we can determine, to a model of the Apollo spaceship which Black gave to LBJ. Black represented North American Aviation, which was working on the $400 million Apollo contract. Johnson, as Vice President, was in charge of the space program.

In their reports to J. Edgar Hoover, the G-men described the bedroom scenes with stilted rectitude. They were equally sensitive about profanity. In their reports, they carefully omitted all cuss words and mere substituted "profane" or "obscene" in their place.

The FBI also picked up a lot of inside Senate strategy from the phone calls of Bobby Baker, who used Black's telephone to conduct Senate business. Typical was his discussion of a Commerce bill on March 29, 1963, with White House aide Mike Manatos, charged with pushing legislation through the President.

"Our problem," Baker explained on the phone to Manatos, "is that we have a lot of New Frontier men." He said that Senators Burdick of North Dakota, Cannon of Nevada and Eagle of California, all Democrats, would vote for the bill.

"We think Fulbright (of Arkansas) will be okay. We might not get Gore (of Tennessee) and Hill (of Alabama). Everett Jordan (of North Carolina) is against us, but if his vote is deciding, he may be absent."

Baker said he was concentrating on people he "thought were dangerous based upon previous votes," then warned Manatos: "If we don't pass this new compilation, your days at the White House are going to be limited."

Another time, Baker phoned Manatos from Black's suite to report on his efforts to get a commitment out of Senate Republican Leader Everett Dirksen on the tax bill. They had been unable to come to terms. Baker said, but added: "We reserve the right to clobber it (the bill) on the floor."

On the whole, the conversations in suite 300 at the Sheraton-Carlton Hotel must have made fascinating listening for the FBI.

Free Men Always Pull Through

On New Year's Eve, 1916, in the early morning darkness two zeppelins were destroyed over London. The double victory, the first such triumph for the stricken British on a single night, was later called by their King the psychological turning point in a war he had called "the dreadful tragedy that is remaking the world into hell."

But that New Year's Eve the dead and the wounded already numbered millions. World War I killed 10,000,000 people. The French were at a cataclysmic moment, drained white by the bloodletting at Verdun. Within the past 10 months 250,000 men had been killed and 300,000 wounded there in an area the size of New York City's Central Park. It was the bloodiest battle of all time—an inconclusive battle fought to keep up the morale of both sides.

Then, within a few days before New Year's, the French foresook Field Marshal Joseph Jacques ("Papa") Joffre and, in desperation, replaced the Hero of the Marne with bombastic Gen. Robert Georges Nivelle. Joffre had refused to order steel helmets in 1914 because he was sure the war would be over too soon for the French Army to use them.

The German aggressor on the freedom of others occupied a vast area stretching from the fields of Flanders ("Where poppies grow") to the marshes of Russia, just as a generation later the abhorred Nazi power stretched from the Atlantic to the boundaries of Central Asia, from the Arctic to the Caucasus and the Nile and the swastika was hoisted over the entire Mediterranean.

Gen. Aleksei Brusilov's spectacular offensive in the summer of 1916, "the greatest Russian victory of the war," had spent itself by September. The Russians fought and died in the Tannenberg Swamps with futile courage. Before long the Bolsheviks were to choose Russia's darkest moment for their attack inside Russia and a treacherous separate peace with Germany. And the Allied front was likewise destined to crumble in Italy.

The Italians, bitterly fighting the Austrians in the Alps since early 1915, had gone to war against Germany only that August. The Austrian-German troops attacked Cadorna, fanned out and suddenly crushed the huge Italian salient at this apex.

The Communist "Fifth Column" (Hemingway is generally credited with coining the phrase) in Italy cooperated with the invaders. Italian losses reached the appalling total of 750,000 men.

Both England and France were short of recruits to make up the loss. In fact, their losses were so immense they were forced to eliminate, by consolidation, 40 divisions to increase their remaining divisions to battle strength.

These two blows were to cost our country dearly. Replacements could come only from the United States. Originally President Woodrow Wilson had asked for a draft of 500,000. A new draft of 2,000,000 more Americans had to be called.

A Nadir? It was not the first and it will not be the last.

Our nation was founded by men who always preferred to die on their feet rather than live on their knees. But in the winter of 1780 their hopes were shattered. Only the stream of patriotism and courage that flowed in the depths of our forefathers' souls saved this nation for us today.

Soon after the first victories, Washington's army was torn by conflict, haggard with want and almost broken by despair. The British had all but won the South. Manhattan and Long Island were firmly in the hands of enemy Gen. Sir Henry Clinton. British gunboats controlled the Hudson River as far as West Point where only a hungry garrison and a river chain of rusted iron barred the path. Another English victory could split the Hudson Valley and, in the split, destroy the last hope of the new Republic.

Then Washington crossed the Delaware. It marked the turn.

Gen. Omar Bradley once wrote: "Freedom — No word has ever held out greater hope, demanded greater sacrifice, needed more to be nurtured, blessed more to be given, damned more its destroyer, or come closer to God's will on earth."

By looking back we look ahead to New Year 1968, doesn't all this prove, as we plan to prove in Vietnam, how many times free men have had the odds stacked against them and still somehow pulled through?

Happy New Year.

Increased Export Sales, Higher Taxes Planned

By JOSEPH R. COYNE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration is drafting a package of measures wrapped around a new and urgent appeal for higher taxes in an attempt to solve one of its most perplexing problems—the continuing drain of dollars to other countries.

Details of the package, now a closely guarded secret, are expected to be spelled out in the messages President Johnson will begin sending Congress next month.

The first hints could come in his State of the Union message soon after Congress convenes Jan. 15.

Officials of the Treasury and Commerce departments have been meeting with White House aides to hammer together a program for next year expected to emphasize increased export sales and higher taxes to maintain economic stability.

A tax increase tends to keep exports competitive and to stifle any tendency to increase imports.

New impetus was placed behind the proposed 10 per cent tax surcharge Wednesday when the Federal Reserve Board announced a move toward tighter money, shifting from the easier money policy which marked 1967.

Burden on Everyone

Because a tax increase is involved, the burden of the new balance of payments program will fall on big business and the ordinary citizen alike. The continuing dollar drain, which began in 1949, has cut the U.S. gold supply in half. Other countries are able to buy gold because Americans spend more in those countries than foreigners spend here.

It's U.S. policy to buy back these dollars for gold when foreign central banks demand it. The strength of the dollar itself is at stake in the new program because of this. One of the early programs to stem the dollar tide fell on the American tourist, whose duty-free allowance on souvenirs he bought abroad was cut in 1965 from $100 at wholesale to $100 at retail, a cut of about $55.

Head Tax Ruled Out

Government officials have repeatedly ruled out a head tax on departing Americans, partly because two-thirds of them go to Canada and Mexico.

Restrictions on trade and travel could also result in retaliation by other countries, a move the administration wants to avoid. This leaves investment as the only major area for possible control.

The Vietnam war and direct overseas investment each drain more than $2 billion annually from the country while the travel gap this year is expected to hit a record $2 billion.

Fatter U.S. exports could help offset some of this. Fowler has spoken of "selective pressures to encourage American industry to cultivate foreign markets more aggressively" but has refused thus far to spell out details.

Somehow, these holidays are sweeter when home hearts are together, when snow covers the hills, when frost crackles on the side of the cheeks, and the pond freezes blue-white for children's new gift sleds.

Out of the holiday quiet, suddenly there is a long-drawn wail from the tired engine of 1967. The old year is about to grind to a halt, to take its last trip into the roundhouse.

Over the horizon, just in time to load on the passengers, baggage, mail, and other burdens of the last year, zooms shiny-new turbine-powered 1968 at a fantastic speed. It is plain to see that the 1968 means to set new records. In fact, we nervous passengers wonder whether it will hold to the tracks all through the year.

But get all aboard we must, come what may, firmly determined to keep our heads, on matter how swiftly space and time are to flow by. With a low, mysterious whistle, 1968 skims on its way.

After a timid glance around us, we conclude that this 1968 is not such a strange, new world. There are the same smiling friends and neighbors, the same tasks to do, (only faster), the same hills and trees (though we may see them in a bit of a blur).

"God's in His heaven; all's right with the world," as Pippa said in Robert Browning's verse.

So, a most Blessed, Joyful and Prosperous New Year of 1968 to all our dear readers from The Kingston Daily Freeman. It's nice to be with you as 1968 rockets down the rails.

First Order of Business

Nothing is more important starting the new year than that we are here to see it through, is there? In this motor age, that means safe driving, safe walking and safe being.

The winter holidays are particularly dangerous. It was a four-day Thanksgiving observance in 1966 that registered the all-time high toll of 784 deaths—higher than for any four-day holiday.

This past Christmas four-day holiday was not far behind, with its toll for the four days from 6 p. m. Friday to midnight Monday of 652 deaths. Traffic accidents in New York during the period claimed 35 lives.

For a while this year, it looked as if people were beginning to be concerned about their own and the safety of others. The weekly death toll dropped and held under the average of 1,000 a week.

But the crashes on these winter holidays raise the question: Have people lost their fervor for safety? Such lack of concern could be fatal to them and to their families, as well as the strangers they meet on the road.

Just two or three thoughts may mean the difference between life and death: Don't drink at least two hours before or while driving. If you must drink, let someone else drive. Keep within the speed limit. Gauge your speed to the condition of the road. And drive as if everyone else on the road is irresponsible.

Stop Shoplifting

In Newport Beach, Calif., everybody is going to be under the eye of a surveillance system the city is planning.

Mobile television cameras, able to pick out people a mile away in the dark, will focus on shopping centers, intersections and four miles of beachfront. Fixed cameras will be installed in supermarkets, banks and other public places. The cameras will be monitored by police officers, who will alert cruising patrol cars in the event of any illegal goings-on.

Indiscriminate surveillance, even to deter crime, may not be worth loss of privacy to people who never have and never will commit a crime against society, but more and more people are being watched more and more closely in more and more places all the time—in stores, banks, factories, warehouses, etc.

Other protective devices include store detectives, strategic mirrors and assorted warnings. But all these devices don't stop shoplifting, which is estimated to have cost stores up to $50 million during the Christmas shopping crush.

As pointed out by Drew Pearson, most of these light-fingered thieves are pillars of the community. And the fact that only one or two in a hundred ever get tried for their crimes is what distinguishes shoplifting from other crimes.

The stores are strangely sanguine about the whole business. They say, simply, that nothing can be done but take the loss and pass it along to the honest customers in the form of higher prices.

Shoplifting will continue to become a way of life for many unless shoplifters are prosecuted. Only one in ten who are caught are now being brought to court.

Same Old Political Game With Different Players

WASHINGTON — Are the aspirants for the Presidential nominations in 1968 getting into the contest too soon, and who are they really trying to convince nearly six months before all the delegates to the national conventions are actually chosen?

Asking such questions can lead to the assumption that something different is happening this time when as a matter of fact, it's the same old game but with different players. The audience which the would-be nominees are trying at this stage to win consists of less than a million people—the persons who will be the delegates and those who are usually in the background telling them which candidates to support. Having witnessed 14 pre-convention campaigns, this correspondent perceives no change as yet in the system. For, unfortunately, the United States hasn't modified its method of choosing a party nominee. It is still a most undemocratic process. A few states have primaries, but even these do not always bind the delegates to the conventions to vote for the individual who has won the primary election except a few of the initial roll calls. The nominees, therefore, are selected by a small group of political leaders or bosses or managers of state delegations who listen carefully to the advice of some of the persons who have made substantial contributions of money.

But what does public opinion have to do with it all? Plenty—for the same persons who are politically influential behind the scenes are trying to figure out just which candidate either has popular favor already or is likely to obtain it once the election campaign begins. Polls and surveys are studied carefully, and some are privately made and never published.

Basically the search is for a Presidential candidate who seems to have the best chance of winning in November. He has to be a candidate who understands public-opinion trends and knows how to deal with them in his speeches. Thus, in 1964, the Republican nominee spoke realistically from a military standpoint when he advocated "escalation" of the Vietnam war. But, politically speaking, he made a mistake at the time because he didn't come up with a formula that promised an early peace.

In a national campaign, the peace side of the argument is the more powerful, even though it may prove fruitless. In 1916, for instance, the Democrats had as their campaign slogan the boast that President Wilson had "kept us out of war." It so happened that five months after the election the United States entered World War I. Likewise, in 1940, President Roosevelt gave the voters an impression that America would stay out of World War II and he won on that issue, but within thirteen months subsequent to the election, this country had entered the war.

In the 1952 contest, after General Eisenhower won the nomination, he announced that he would "go to Korea." All the Republican campaign speakers emphasized this as a way to end the war there. The maneuver helped elect the Eisenhower-Nixon ticket.

Today the Republicans have a lot of issues beside the Vietnam war. The leaders in the state, county and city organizations have been hearing that victory is assured because the country is in a negative mood against the incumbent administration and hence it doesn't make much difference who is the candidate.

Obviously, if there is no important change in the war situation by November next, a Republican has a good chance of winning, but it isn't so certain that just any Republican can be victorious. The theory that the Republicans can win with even a weak candidate has been widespread because many voters are expressing their attitudes by stickers lately seen on autos—"ABJ for President—Anybody But Johnson."

In the middle of a war, however, with a great deal at stake, the independent voters are the decisive influence. Lots of them already are saying, "as between some of the inexperienced Republicans they're talking about and keeping Johnson, maybe it is better not to 'switch horses in midstream.'" So the Republicans really have to pick the candidate who can command the confidence of the American people. The present period of testing and public exposure, therefore, is by no means unusual or unimportant.

Nuclear Arsenal Must Be Geared to U.S. Survival

By RAY CROMLEY
SEA Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (SEA) — To be effective, a U.S. nuclear weapons complex must achieve three ends:

1—Deter enemies from starting war.
2—Help win the war if one starts.

3—Preserve as many of our people and resources as possible from destruction in war so that this nation can recover in a reasonable time.

The present Defense Department system is weak on all three counts.

It limits U.S. nuclear defenses to intercontinental ballistic missiles aided by a thin antimissile defense and a bomber fleet rapidly growing obsolete.

If Soviet planners think they've figured a way to beat the ICBM system by some means, then effective defense of the United States may be lost. The history of military science demonstrates that when faced with just one all-powerful system, men have always found a way to beat it.

The Russians have already made two stab at an end run around the U.S. ICBM system—Cuba and the orbiting bomb. They came within days of getting away with their Cuban missile venture. We don't know yet what they will be able to accomplish with their orbiting bomb.

If the United States should build additional alternate offensive-defensive strategic systems, the Russians would be faced with the necessity of countering all these alternatives.

This situation would make war less likely for two reasons. First, the Russians would have greater doubts about their ability to win at an acceptable cost to themselves.

It's much easier to be "certain" of defeating one weapon system than to be "certain" of defeating a whole complex of weapons systems. Second, the building of alternate systems would force the Russians to spend a great deal more to "get through" such systems in an attack and to defend against systems directed against the Russian homeland.

These additional expenditures would add heavily to Moscow's economic burdens at a time when Russia's economy is facing important strains.

The last time U.S. defense expenditures forced the Russians to up their defense spending markedly, the added financial burden slowed essential Red economic development and made the over-all Soviet economy less ready for war.

So much for preventing a war. As for winning a war, if one comes, one of the oldest and most reliable military axioms is that commanders need a variety of weapons because wars never turn out the way that either civilian or military planners expect.

Once this unpredictability of war is accepted, then the folly of depending too heavily on a weapons system that has never been tried in war becomes apparent.

When a war breaks out, it is also obviously necessary to insure, so far as possible, that the people of our nation and its resources endure and the nation recovers as rapidly as possible—or a U.S. victory may be in reality a defeat. Secretary of Defense McNamara apparently is gambling that his missiles will surely prevent all-out war. This reporter believes that this is too much of a gamble.

Therefore, some system must be instituted to save the lives of millions of Americans who would otherwise be killed in a nuclear war and a percentage of the industrial and other resources necessary for Americans to live.

Proponents of the Nike anti-ballistic missile systems say that a thick defense could save 30 million to 50 million lives and multimillions in resource damage.

Whether these systems should be adopted or not is not certain. What is certain, however, is that some such protective system is necessary. Any GI whose life has been saved by a foxhole or a slit trench knows this. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Drew Pearson Says FBI Listened in on Senator Ed Long's Conversations

WASHINGTON—During the bugging of lobbyist Fred Black's hotel suite, the FBI got an electronic earful about some of Washington's most prominent personalities. There were titillating tidbits about everyone from Lyndon Johnson to the arch foe of eavesdropping himself, Sen. Ed Long, D-Mo.

It was particularly ironic that Long's name should wind up on the FBI tapes at the same time that he was conducting a determined campaign against government bugging. He was probing Internal Revenue eavesdropping while the FBI was eavesdropping indirectly on him. He did not know this, incidentally, until this week when we called him.

It was the FBI which first got the tip that Sen. Long was close to St. Louis attorney Morris Shenker by listening to one of Fred Black's telephone calls. Apparently, this information was later leaked to Life magazine, which exposed how Long and Shenker had been splitting law fees. Their relationship is now under investigation by the Senate Ethics Committee.

At 5:45 p.m. on Feb. 9, 1963, Black telephoned gambler Ed Levinson in Las Vegas. Black said he had looked up Sen. Long at a Jackson Day dinner in Springfield, Mo., at the urging of Bobby Baker, then a Senate aide. Long objected to talking to Black at the dinner because "too many people were around," but arranged to meet Black on the plane to St. Louis the following morning at 5:30.

On the plane, Sen. Long suggested that Black retain Morris Shenker to defend his income tax case. All this was told by Black to Levinson over the phone in Las Vegas. As Black recounted the conversation to Levinson, he had objected to Long: "Ed, look

Black added that Baker wanted him "to go along with Long" but that he was "not about it to go."

When we asked Long about this alleged incident, he stated: "I have no recollection of ever meeting Fred Black, and I most certainly didn't meet him on an airplane at 5:30 in the morning."

However, the FBI bug on March 13, 1963, picked up a related conversation in the hotel suite between Black and Baker. Black repeated to Baker that he had no intention, despite Long's recommendation, of retaining Teamsters' attorney Shenker of St. Louis. Black said his tax case was being handled in Kansas City by U.S. Attorney F. Russell Millin.

"Bobby, let me tell you something," said Black. "I have checked this Millin out. There ain't but one politician in the state of Missouri that this fella Millin is indebted to, and it is not Ed Long."

Baker asked who it was. "Stuart Symington," replied Black.

Later, Black asked Baker whether LBJ would be in town the next day. Bobby said he doubted it.

Explained Black: "I got in the mail this morning three models of this house. I don't want to do anything until Johnson sees them. It is most beautiful thing you have ever seen."

We could find no evidence that Black had ever shown Johnson, then Vice President, any house models. This must have been a reference, as nearly as we can determine, to a model of the Apollo spaceship which Black gave to LBJ. Black represented North American Aviation, which was working on the $400 million Apollo contract. Johnson, as Vice President, was in charge of the space program.

In their reports to J. Edgar Hoover, the G-men described the bedroom scenes with stilted rectitude. They were equally sensitive about profanity. In their reports, they carefully omitted all cuss words and mere substituted "profane" or "obscene" in their place.

The FBI also picked up a lot of inside Senate strategy from the phone calls of Bobby Baker, who used Black's telephone to conduct Senate business. Typical was his discussion of a Commerce bill on March 29, 1963, with White House aide Mike Manatos, charged with pushing legislation for the President.

"Our problem," Baker explained on the phone to Manatos, "is that we have a lot of New Frontier men." He said that Senators Burdick of North Dakota, Cannon of Nevada and Engle of California, all Democrats, would vote for the bill.

"We think Fulbright (of Arkansas) will be okay. We might not get Gore (of Tennessee) and Hill (of Alabama). Everett Jordan (of North Carolina) is against us, but if his vote is deciding, he may be absent."

Baker said he was concentrating on people he "thought were dangerous based upon previous votes," then warned Manatos: "If we don't pass this new compilation, your days at the White House are going to be limited."

Another time, Baker phoned Manatos from Black's suite to report on his efforts to get a commitment out of Senate Republican Leader Everett Dirksen on the tax bill. They had been unable to come to terms. Baker said, but added: "We reserve the right to clobber it (the bill) on the floor."

On the whole, the conversations in suite 300 at the Sheraton-Carlton Hotel must have made fascinating listening for the FBI.

Free Men Always Pull Through

On New Year's Eve, 1916, in the early morning darkness two zeppelins were destroyed over London. The double victory, the first such triumph for the stricken British on a single night, was later called by their King the psychological turning point in a war he had called "the dreadful tragedy that is remaking the world into hell."

But that New Year's Eve the dead and the wounded already numbered millions. World War I killed 10,000,000 people. The French were at a cataclysmic moment, drained white by the bloodletting at Verdun. Within the past 10 months 250,000 men had been killed and 300,000 wounded there in an area the size of New York City's Central Park. It was the bloodiest battle of all time—an inconclusive battle fought to keep up the morale of both sides.

Then, within a few days before New Year's, the French foresook Field Marshal Joseph Jacques ("Papa") Joffre and, in desperation, replaced the Hero of the Marne with bombastic Gen. Robert Georges Nivelle. Joffre had refused to order steel helmets in 1914 because he was sure the war would be over too soon for the French Army to use them.

The German aggressor on the freedom of others occupied a vast area stretching from the fields of Flanders ("Where poppies grow") to the marshes of Russia, just as a generation later the abhorred Nazi power stretched from the Atlantic to the boundaries of Central Asia, from the Arctic to the Caucasus and the Nile and the swastika was hoisted over the entire Mediterranean.

Gen. Aleksei Brusilov's spectacular offensive in the summer of 1916, "the greatest Russian victory of the war," had spent itself by September. The Russians fought and died in the Tannenberg Swamps with futile courage. Before long the Bolsheviks were to choose Russia's darkest moment for their attack inside Russia and a treacherous separate peace with Germany. And the Allied front was likewise destined to crumble in Italy.

The Italians, bitterly fighting the Austrians in the Alps since early 1915, had gone to war against Germany only that August. The Austrian-German troops attacked Cadorna fanned out and suddenly crushed the huge Italian salient at this apex.

The Communist "Fifth Column" (Hemingway is generally credited with coining the phrase) in Italy cooperated with the invaders. Italian losses reached the appalling total of 750,000 men.

Both England and France were short of recruits to make up the loss. In fact, their losses were so immense they were forced to eliminate, by consolidation, 40 divisions to increase their remaining divisions to battle strength.

These two blows were to cost our country dearly. Replacements could come only from the United States. Originally President Woodrow Wilson had asked for a draft of 500,000. A new draft of 2,000,000 more Americans had to be called.

A Nadir? It was not the first and it will not be the last.

Our nation was founded by men who always preferred to live on their feet rather than die on their knees. But in the winter of 1780 their hopes were shattered. Only the stream of patriotism and courage that flowed in the depths of our forefathers' souls saved this nation for us today.

Soon after the first victories, Washington's army was torn by conflict, haggard with want and almost broken by despair. The British had all but won the South. Manhattan and Long Island were firmly in the hands of enemy Gen. Sir Henry Clinton. British gunboats controlled the Hudson River as far as West Point where only a hungry garrison and a river chain of rusted iron barred the path. Another English victory could split the Hudson Valley and, in the split, destroy the last hope of the new Republic.

Then Washington crossed the Delaware. It marked the turn.

Gen. Omar Bradley once wrote: "Freedom—No word has ever held out greater hope, demanded greater sacrifice, needed more to be nurtured, blessed more the giver, damned more its destroyer, or come closer to God's will on earth."

By looking back we look ahead to New Year 1968, doesn't all this prove, as we plan to prove in Vietnam, how many times free men have had the odds stacked against them and still somehow pulled through?

Happy New Year.

The World Today Increased Export Sales, Higher Taxes Planned

By JOSEPH R. COYNE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration is drafting a package of measures wrapped around a new and urgent appeal for higher taxes in an attempt to solve one of its most perplexing problems—the continuing drain of dollars to other countries.

Details of the package, now a closely guarded secret, are expected to be spelled out in the messages President Johnson will begin sending Congress next month.

The first hints could come in his State of the Union message soon after Congress convenes Jan. 15.

Officials of the Treasury and Commerce departments have been meeting with White House aides to hammer together a program for next year expected to emphasize increased export sales and higher taxes to maintain economic stability.

A tax increase tends to keep exports competitive and to stifle any tendency to increase imports.

New impetus was placed behind the proposed 10 per cent tax surcharge Wednesday when the Federal Reserve Board announced a move toward tighter money, shifting from the easier money policy which marked 1967.

Burden on Everyone

Because a tax increase is involved, the burden of the new balance of payments program will fall on big business and the ordinary citizen alike.

The continuing dollar drain, which began in 1949, has cut the U.S. gold supply in half. Other countries are able to buy gold because Americans spend more in those countries than foreigners spend here.

It's U.S. policy to buy back these dollars for gold when foreign central banks demand it.

The strength of the dollar itself is at stake in the new program because of this.

cut in 1965 from $100 at wholesale to $100 at retail, a cut of about 55%.

Head Tax Ruled Out

Government officials have repeatedly ruled out a head tax on departing Americans, partly because two-thirds of them go to Canada and Mexico.

Restrictions on trade and travel could also result in retaliation by other countries, a move the administration wants to avoid. This leaves investment as the only major area for possible control.

The Vietnam war and direct overseas investment each drain more than $2 billion annually from the country while the travel gap this year is expected to hit a record $2 billion.

Fatter U.S. exports could help offset some of this. Fowler has spoken of "selective pressures to encourage American industry to cultivate foreign markets more aggressively" but has refused thus far to spell out details.

Hints From Heloise

Dear Heloise:

We had a child's birthday party and decorated with colored paper streamers and artificial flowers.

Using a felt-tip marker, we printed various greetings on the streamers such as, Happy Birthday and Best Wishes.

After the party was over, we rolled them up and stored them in a plastic bag. We are keeping the streamers in a dark place to avoid fading until the next party.

This sure would be a money and time saver for families with quite a few young children.

Cecilia Duffy

Thanks, Cecilia. I'm sure some families save birthday decorations, but I'll bet there are many, many who don't.

After all, we save Christmas decorations why not birthday? Then we could buy more and prettier decorations that would last longer.

When those little Dolls get past the birthday party age, we mothers have passed a very special time in our lives.

Love 'em NOW!
Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I use my egg slicer to slice potatoes that have been boiled with jacket on and then peeled. Makes for a more uniform hot potato dish. Also a nice size for hash brown.

Dear Heloise:

Don't ever try to clean out your children's closets or toy box when they are home. You will end up putting it all right back again.

Do it during school hours and they will never miss half of the stuff you throw or give away.

Mother

Dear Heloise:

For those women who complain of aching feet, tell them to try wearing NURSES' shoes around the house while doing housework.

These shoes are of soft, pliable leather that require practically no breaking in. The rubber soles and heels cushion your feet as you walk, leave no marks on your floors and are very quiet—restful to the ears as well as the feet, legs and back.

Eunice Jennings

Dear Heloise:

Whenever I buy lemon juice, I get the small can and pour the juice in a clean soy sauce bottle that has the sprinkle top on it.

It works just right when anything needs a sprinkling of lemon juice.

Frame Your Eyes Beautifully

In the 30's, high and unnatural slender brows were stylish, not because they looked especially good on the average woman, but simply because of a Hollywood-inspired fad. Today's cost-conscious women know that very thin eyebrows make the eyes look smaller, which explains in part why very few women arch their brows too drastically. Ideally, the brows should arch just above the inner corners of the eyes. When eyes are close-set, however, a few freshener to close the tiny hair thumb and forefinger, lightly pinch the eyebrows from above.

Take extra care of your brows at night when you massage a vitalizing night cream into your complexion. Smooth a generous layer of night cream, which has a wrinkle-easing moist oil base, along your brows and, using your finger, lightly pinch the bridge of the nose to the outer edges. You will actually feel the slight lift of the eyelids as you do this massage move-ment, which is primarily de-vised to preserve the youthful curve of the tissue covering the bone above the eye.

Work of Master Woodblock Artist Will Be Exhibited at UCCC Jan. 3-Jan. 22

Prints of Shiko Munakata, 20th century master woodblock artist, will be exhibited at the Stone Ridge campus of Ulster County Community College from Jan. 3 to Jan. 22.

The exhibit, presented by the College's Visual Arts Program as part of its continuing Art Series, will be on display in Gallery Hall in the John Burroughs Science Building. There is no admission.

The hours when the public can view the exhibit are 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. Monday through Thursday and 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. on Fridays.

The exhibition consists of 25 original woodblock prints made by the artist, including the well-known "Flower Hunting Mural," done in 1954, which is in the collection of New York's Museum of Modern Art. This work was part of Munakata's prize winning entry in Sao Paulo biennale in 1955. The artist also received a prize in the 1956 Venice biennale.

Munakata's distinctive prints are endowed with a personal form of self-expression. One of his outstanding features is that he does not imitate Western Art. Munakata stands out as a completely Japanese product, and his work possesses individuality which is thoughtful, reflective and unaffected.

In addition to the prints in the show, Munakata's philosophy of aesthetics is defined by reference to quotations from his recent autobiography.

Shiko Munakata was born in 1903 in Aomori, Northern Honshu, Japan. He has made two trips to the United States where he taught and lectured at the Pratt Graphic Art Center.

This exhibition was selected and arranged by Andrew Stasik, associate director of Pratt Graphic Art Center, and circulated under the sponsorship of the New York State Council on the Arts.

Today's cosmetic-conscious women know that very thin eyebrows make the eyes look smaller, which explains in part why very few women arch their brows too drastically.

Ideally, the brows should arch just above the inner corners of the eyes. When eyes are close set, however, a few hairs should be plucked from the innermost edges of the brows so that the area above the nose is widened and the eyes are consequently given a wider-apart look.

Plucking the brows is easier and certainly less painful if the brows are first prepared by patting on lemon Jelvyn skin freshener. Then the skin can be stretched between two fingers as you ply the tweezers, removing each hair in the direction of its growth. Dab the skin again afterwards with your lemon freshener to close the tiny hair thumb and forefinger, lightly pinch the eyebrows from above.

Look Here Mrs. Homemaker

More about filled and imitation milk from the New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell University. Filled milk, made from skim milk and vegetable fats, is not a new product, says Louise M. Kakargo, Extension Home Economist. It has been manufactured for at least 50 years, in small amounts. Imitation milk is different from filled milk. Imitation milk contains no milk materials, but blends vegetable fats, corn sugar, soy protein, sodium caseinate, vitamins and minerals, stabilizers and emulsifiers to resemble the appearance, if not the flavor, of whole fresh milk. Imitation milk is not available in New York State, while filled milk is. The one reported price for filled milk in New York State is 41 cents per half gallon.

Dehydrated foods are those which are artificially dried, and in most cases contain less than 10 per cent moisture. The most important dehydrated foods in terms of the dollar value of shipments are: fruits and berries, soups, vegetables including potatoes, eggs and nonfat dry milk. New processing methods, containers and other technical developments mean an almost certain expansion in the number of different products available to consumers in the future. Dried cottage cheese, sour cream and cheeses are among the dairy products that will probably come to market in substantial volume, to be used by food processors in creating new mixes and convenience foods for consumers.

Vegetables—Those who like to use tomatoes in December salads will find supplies and prices for the red vegetable exceptionally favorable. Growing conditions for tomatoes in Florida have been better than usual, and acreage is above average. In fact, late fall tomato production is estimated to be a record high of 15 per cent above average. Shipments to our market are currently heavy. Quality is variable, so shop with care. Other outstanding fresh vegetable selections at the markets this week include cabbage, celery, endive, escarole, potatoes, radishes, rutabagas, and onions — both the green and the medium size yellow globe.

Fruit — Apples, particularly McIntosh of the smaller sizes, continue as a top fresh fruit buy. Other fresh fruit choices include avocados, bananas, and citrus fruits — oranges, grapefruit, and tangelos. Quite a large amount of fresh strawberries are reported to have arrived from Mexico.

YWCA Slimnastic Class

The class will be taught by Miss Marguerite Wilson, a physical education major. Membership is required.

Serve hot. Makes 21 large cornsticks—3 per pan.

3 tablespoons light brown sugar
2 teaspoons salt

1 package active dry yeast
2 eggs, slightly beaten
3 1/2 cups unsifted regular flour

Trounce Kingston High, 93-75

White Plains Captures Holiday Tournament

By CHRIS GEHMAN
Sports Staff

It hasn't been a happy holiday season for Kingston basketball teams hosting annual Christmas tournaments.

First it was Ulster County Community College losing its own Holiday Festival to Manhattan Community of New York.

Friday night before a crowd that did not come up to expectations, a speedy White Plains High School team combined dazzling speed with deadly shooting and tenacious defense to overwhelm Kingston High, 93-75, in the finals of the 6th Annual KHS Awards Tournament at the Kate Walton Field House.

Albany High nipped Roosevelt of Hyde Park, 76-74, in double overtime in a sensational battle for consolation honors.

Beville Is MVP

Freeman Beville, a graceful, 6-5 sharpshooter and rebounder, led the Westchester powerhouse with 25 points and was voted Most Valuable Player in the tournament.

It was strictly a matter of percentages in a game in which White Plains led all the way and broke apart with a spectacular 9-point spurt in a 42-second spurt in the third period.

With its two big guns — Bruce Gilligan and A. J. Murphy — mired offensively, Coach Jack Gilligan's Maroons were no match for the flashy visitors who snapped Kingston's 4-0 streak and extended their record to 3-0.

While White Plains was blistering the nets with a brilliant 63 per cent performance from the floor, the Maroons slumped to a dismal 32 per cent, their lowest in a long time. Bruce Gilligan hit with only 3 shots in 19 (16 per cent) for 10 points. Murphy (8-25) led the Maroons with 21 points. Ted Wood hit 15 and Ken Gilligan 13.

Kingston's got the shots — 82 of them — but many were under terrific pressure. The 32 per cent is the lowest in years and nobody can recall when the Maroon was limited to 29 points in a half.

Solid Team Effort

The White Plains victory

was a superb team effort. While Beville dominated the action, Ron Moss, Mike Hull, Eric Rhoades and Clifton Livingston synchronized beautifully with the big star to make it a real happy holiday for Coach Harry Jefferson Jr. and the White Plains school.

Ahead from the opening tap, the Plainsmen rolled to a 43-29 halftime lead, with Beville collecting 15 of his 25 points and Rhoades added 10.

Ray Lindhorst was injured seconds before the half ended and replaced by Gene Bruno. At 4:56 of the third period, Beville converted a free throw and Ken Gilligan hit with a jumper to bring KHS to within 9 points, 48-39.

For all intents and purposes the visitors broke the game apart in the next 42 seconds with a 9-point spurt that zoomed them ahead, 57-39.

Hull was the wrecker with 5 points on a free throw, a driving overhead and a steal for a solo. Ron Moss popped in and Beville tapped in a followup. Murphy and Lindhorst checked the string with consecutive baskets (57-43) but Hull and Rhoades retaliated to run the score to 61-43 with 1:68 left in the third period. The rest was anti-climactic.

Fields' Winning Basket

Eddie Fields, held below 20 points for the first time this season in Albany High's 77-67 loss to White Plains, hit with a basket with 30 seconds remaining in the second overtime period to give Albany its thrilling 76-74 win over Roosevelt in the consolation game.

The teams wound up 66-all in regulation and scored 4 points each in the first extra period.

Fields, who led Albany with 28 points, canned the clincher with 30 seconds left. Roosevelt, which had blown a last second chance in the first overtime, did it again as Charlie Coston missed a layup with one second remaining.

Greg Kohls had 33 for Roosevelt, including 19 in the first half. Charlie Trayham and Arnie Surgick, a long shot specialist who thrilled the gallery, had 16 each for Albany.

Red Hook Rally Wins at Marlboro

23-Point Fourth Period Does It Against Dukes

Marlboro Central Dukes of the UCLAL lost their first home game in 22 starts Friday night and it cost them the title in their own first annual Holiday Tournament.

A fast closing Red Hook (DCSL) quintet came storming down the stretch with 23 points to obliterate a 33-29 Marlboro three-quarter lead and cinch the championship game, 59 to 46.

Chester High of the Orange County League crushed Cornwall, 84-47, to gain consolation honors.

Ed Thompson of Red Hook was voted the Most Valuable Player in the tournament.

Marlboro, a strong UCLAL contender this season, had not lost a game on its home boards since Valley Central topped them on Feb. 9, 1965. Since then the Dukes had won 22 straight home victories.

Lead by 33-29

Trailing 29-33 after three quarters of a dogged, defensive duel, Red Hook suddenly switched to a man-to-man defense in the fourth period and Marlboro cracked under the pressure.

Thompson, who finished with 26 points, led the Red Hook surge and got assistance from White (9), Cort (11) and Barringer (8).

With Ron McAteer dipping to a lowly 10 points for him, Mike Pagano led Marlboro with 20 points, the bulk of them in the first half. Marsh added 8 for the Dukes.

Ferrara Scores 24

Mike Ferrara led with 24 points, as Chester turned its consolation contest with Cornwall into a rout after a 15-13 first quarter. The winners rolled 22-7 in the second period to lead 37-20 at halftime and continued their ascendancy after the recess.

Mark Riespan led Cornwall with 14 points.

76ers Rip Celts To Widen Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Boston Celtics, riding high a week ago, suddenly have their backs to the wall, a demanding road trip ahead of them and a big deficit to make up.

The defending champion Philadelphia 76ers ripped Boston 133-123 in Philadelphia Friday night. It was Boston's third straight loss, and the 76ers' first victory over the Celtics in four games this season, increasing Philadelphia's Eastern Division lead in the National Basketball Association to 2½ games.

Los Angeles whipped New York 126-115, Baltimore beat Cincinnati 130-113, Chicago took San Francisco 107-100, and St. Louis defeated Detroit 122-111 at Miami in other NBA games.

In the American Basketball Association, Pittsburgh beat Dallas 124-118, Kentucky whipped New Orleans 130-115 and Anaheim trounced New Jersey 122-109.

Boston, facing a coast-to-coast road trip in which it plays four games in five days, was never in it at Philadelphia. The 76ers took the lead early in the first quarter and never trailed, leading by as many as 18 points.

Beville Is Voted MVP

B. Gilligan A.J. Murphy On All Stars

Freeman Beville, the highly touted White Plains All-America, lived up to all his press clippings in the KHS Awards tournament.

He was the unanimous choice for Most Valuable Player honors and, of course, led in the balloting for the All Star team.

Joining Beville on the all-star were teammates Eric Rhoades and Ron Moss, who also drew a lot of MVP sentiment; and Kingston's two top stars—Bruce Gilligan and A. J. Murphy. The latter was Kingston's steadiest performer under distressing circumstances.

Beville moves with a grace and poise that reminds one of Lou Alcindor, the great UCLA ace out of New York City. He came out of Georgia only five years ago. . . . A trio of White Plains supporters were, openly soliciting bets before the game got under way. They picked up a few penny ante wagers, it must be presumed.

Disciplined Squad

Credit Coach Harry Jefferson, Jr. with a brilliant coached, superbly disciplined team. No prima donnas on the squad, a beautifully synchronized team that has to rate as one of the finest ever seen at the field house. The leeching defense forced Kingston into many bad shots.

Greg Kahls didn't make the all-star team but many in the audience, rated the Roosevelt star as one of the most natural shooters in the tournament. He only scored 66 points in two games. The Albany Roosevelt spectacular has to rate as the most thrilling consolation contest ever played in the Awards tournament.

maining in the second overtime period to give Albany its thrilling 76-74 win over Roosevelt in the consolation game.

The teams wound up 66-all in regulation and scored 4 points each in the first extra period.

Fields, who led Albany with 28 points, canned the clincher with 30 seconds left. Roosevelt, which had blown a last second chance in the first overtime, did it again as Charlie Coston missed a layup with one second remaining.

Greg Kohls had 33 for Roosevelt, including 19 in the first half. Charlie Trayham and Arnie Surgick, a long shot specialist who thrilled the gallery, had 16 each for Albany.

Beville Is Voted MVP

B. Gilligan
A.J. Murphy
On All Stars

Freeman Beville, the highly touted White Plains All-America, lived up to all his press clippings in the KHS Awards tournament.

He was the unanimous choice for Most Valuable Player honors and, of course, led in the balloting for the All Star team.

Joining Beville on the all-star were teammates Eric Rhoades and Ron Moss, who also drew a lot of MVP sentiment; and Kingston's two top stars—Bruce Gilligan and A. J. Murphy. The latter was Kingston's steadiest performer under distressing circumstances.

Beville moves with a grace and poise that reminds one of Lou Alcindor, the great UCLA ace out of New York City. He came out of Georgia only five years ago. A trio of White Plains supporters were openly soliciting bets before the game got under way. They picked up a few penny ante wagers, it must be presumed.

Disciplined Squad

Credit Coach Harry Jefferson Jr. with a brilliant coached, superbly disciplined team. No prima donnas on the squad, a beautifully synchronized team that has to rate as one of the finest ever seen at the field house. The leeching defense forced Kingston into many bad shots.

Greg Kahls didn't make the all-star team but many in the audience, rated the Roosevelt star as one of the most natural shooters in the tournament. He only scored 66 points in two games. The Albany Roosevelt spectacular has to rate as the most thrilling consolation contest ever played in the Awards tournament.

Red Hook Rally Wins at Marlboro

23-Point Fourth Period Does It Against Dukes

Marlboro Central Dukes of the UCAL lost their first home game in 22 starts Friday night and it cost them the title in their own first annual Holiday Tournament.

A fast closing Red Hook (DCSL) quintet came storming down the stretch with 23 points to obliterate a 33-29 Marlboro three-quarter lead and cinch the championship game, 59 to 46.

Chester High of the Orange County League crushed Cornwall, 84-47, to gain consolation honors.

Ed Thompson of Red Hook was voted the Most Valuable Player in the tournament.

Marlboro, a strong UCAL contender this season, had not lost a game on its home boards since Valley Central topped them on Feb. 9, 1965. Since then the Dukes had won 22 straight home victories.

Lead by 33-29

Trailing 29-33 after three quarters of a dogged, defensive duel, Red Hook suddenly switched to a man-to-man defense in the fourth period and Marlboro cracked under the pressure.

Thompson, who finished with 26 points, led the Red Hook surge and got assistance from White (9), Cort (11) and Baringer (8).

With Ron McAttee dipping to a lowly 10 points for him, Mike Pagano led Marlboro with 20 points, the bulk of them in the first half. Marsh added 8 for the Dukes.

Ferrara Scores 24

Mike Ferrara led with 24 points, as Chester turned its consolation contest with Cornwall into a rout after a 15-13 first quarter. The winners rolled 22-7 in the second period to lead 37-20 at halftime and continued their ascendancy after the recess.

Mark Riesgan led Cornwall with 14 points.

Fill Vacancies
On KBA Board

Kingston Bowling Association has appointed two area bowlers to fill vacancies on the association's board of directors.

John J. Thompson of West Hurley was named to fill the unexpired term of William B. Merrill of Kingston, who resigned, and Arnold I. Terpening of Clintondale fills the vacancy created by the death of Edwin C. Dohrman of Highland.

Thompson is a member of the Mammie's Barber Shop league at Mid-City Lanes and has been a KBA bowler for more than 20 years. He is employed at IBM Kingston and carries an average in the 180's.

Terpening rolls in the Highland Merchants and New Paltz Merchants leagues at College Lanes, New Paltz, and is president of both leagues. A 170 average bowler, he is employed at IBM Poughkeepsie.

76ers Rip Celts
To Widen Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Boston Celtics, riding high a week ago, suddenly have their backs to the wall, a demanding road trip ahead of them and a big deficit to make up.

The defending champion Philadelphia 76ers ripped Boston 133-123 in Philadelphia Friday night. It was Boston's third straight loss, and the 76ers' first victory over the Celtics in four games this season, increasing Philadelphia's Eastern Division lead in the National Basketball Association to 2½ games.

Los Angeles whipped New York 126-115. Baltimore beat Cincinnati 130-113. Chicago took San Francisco 107-100, and St. Louis defeated Detroit 122-111 at Miami in other NBA games.

In the American Basketball Association, Pittsburgh beat Dallas 124-118. Kentucky whipped New Orleans 130-115 and Anaheim trounced New Jersey 122-109.

Boston, facing a coast-to-coast road trip in which it plays four games in five days, was never in it at Philadelphia. The 76ers took the lead early in the first quarter and never trailed, leading by as many as 18 points.

Hoopie Predicts Three Upsets
In New Year's Bowl Classics

By MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE
Pigskin Prophet

Agad, friends, what a weekend this will be on the collegiate bowl fronts.

The Bowl Committees, as usual, have done an outstanding job of matchmaking! In the top attractions no less than six of the first seven clubs in the national rankings will perform — Southern California (1), Tennessee (2), Oklahoma (3), Wyoming (5), Indiana (6), and Alabama (7). Only Notre Dame (4), which has a University imposed rule against post season games, is missing.

For the past fortnight your faithful correspondent and his staff have been reviewing the strong points and weaknesses of the contestants and we've arrived at some startling conclusions—um-kumph!

The Hoopie System confidently proclaims — hak-kaff — there will be no less than three upsets!

GATOR BOWL

Dec. 30, Jacksonville, Fla.

Penn St. 22, Florida St. 20.

With both of these fine teams sporting seven-game winning streaks this promises to be a very close contest all the way. Tom Sherman of Penn St. and Florida States Kim Hammond like to put the ball in the air and the resultant fireworks should be a joy to behold. We see the Nittany Lions taking home victory by a scant two points.

SUN BOWL

Dec. 30, El Paso, Texas

Texas, El Paso 27, Miss. 22.

Ole Miss is in for a big surprise as the eight-point underdog Miners unleash their potent offense. Bobby Dobbs' Texans led the nation in scoring, averaging 35.9 points per game, and in forward passing, compiling 301.1 yards per contest.

ROSE BOWL

Jan. 1, Pasadena, Calif.

So. Calif. 28, Indiana 22.

The Daddy of the Bowl games matches No. 1 U.S.C. and sixth ranked Indiana, pride of the Big Ten. In a game that will go pretty much according to form, O. J. Simpson will lead a second-half charge to subdue the Cinderella team from Hoosierland.

ORANGE BOWL

Jan. 1, Miami, Fla.

Oklahoma 25, Tenn. 21.

Premier Bowl attraction of the 67 season pits No. 2 Vols and No. 3 Sooners under the lights in Miami. I predict it will be a long day for the brilliant Edd Hargett and his Aggie cohorts as the seventh-rated Tide rolls to an easy triumph—har-rumph.

enter the game favored by one touchdown.

SUGAR BOWL

Jan. 1, New Orleans, La.

Wyoming 28, L.S.U. 23.

Wyoming's Cowboys, only undefeated (10-0) major eleven in 1967, will prove its No. 5 ranking is no fluke by edging the odds-on Tigers. Keep your eyes on Wyoming's Paul Tocco, who has passed and galloped for a grand total of 1915 yards and 22 TDs this season.

COTTON BOWL

Jan. 1, Dallas, Texas

Alabama 31, Texas A&M 12.

Manin DeStreit, our Texas stringer, says it will be a happy homecoming for Alabama's pigskin genius Bear Bryant as he brings his Crimson Tide to Dallas to meet A&M, a team he once coached. I predict it will be a long day for the brilliant Edd Hargett and his Aggie cohorts as the seventh-rated Tide rolls to an easy triumph—har-rumph.

Sihanouk's Stand Studied On the Issue of Sanctuary

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. diplomatic inquiries are under way to determine whether Prince Norodom Sihanouk of Cambodia will officially back up his press statement about keeping his country free of the war in neighboring South Vietnam.

If Sihanouk's answer is yes, U.S. sources indicated a presidential envoy—perhaps Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont.—could quickly head for Phnom Penh and new efforts could be mounted for international supervision of Cambodia's frontier.

May Take Days

It may be several days before Washington receives a definite reply. Cambodia has severed relations with the United States and communications between the two governments are forwarded through the Australian Embassy in the Cambodian capital.

Sihanouk opened the way for a potential new approach to settle the long-festering Cambodian sanctuary issue in an interview published in the Washington Post Friday.

The Cambodian leader said his small military forces could not prevent limited intrusions by North Vietnamese or Viet Cong troops in "outlying and uninhabited regions" of Cambodia or American combat with the Reds there. He said Cambodia would protest but would not intervene militarily if American troops entered such regions in pursuit of Communist forces.

He proposed an immediate beefing up of the three-nation International Control Commission (ICC) to improve its policing of Cambodia's borders.

And, mentioning Senate Majority Leader Mansfield by name, he said he would gladly receive a Johnson emissary to discuss reconciliation with the United States.

U.S. officials showed more immediate interest in the presidential envoy and ICC proposals than in Sihanouk's apparent acknowledgment that U.S. forces in South Vietnam could, despite his protests against all intruders, pursue the Reds across the border.

Not Much Pressure

Some U.S. commanders have been anxious to strike at Communist sanctuaries in Cambodia. But Washington diplomatic sources say there is not much military pressure generally for invading the Cambodian havens at this time.

What the United States wants, they say, is a true neutrality for Cambodia rather than violation of it. The United States, they maintain, would be happy to have Cambodia removed as a problem connected with the Vietnam war.

The Johnson administration was reserved in its public reaction Friday to Sihanouk's press remarks, possibly because the prince has been known to change his tune quickly in the past, and because the United States could cause embarrassment by seeming too eager.

At the Texas White House, George Christian, presidential press secretary, said only that

Rochester Man Is Shot to Death

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — A man was shot to death at his apartment Friday night and police said another man was undergoing questioning today in the slaying.

Detectives said Abe "Blue" Singleton, 38, of Rochester, had been shot in the chest with a sawed-off, .22 caliber rifle that was found under an automobile parked on a nearby street.

Police said they took Robert Ellison, 23, also of Rochester, into custody for questioning a short time later.

No motive has been established for Singleton's death, they said.

He lived at 40 Emmett St. Ellison's address was listed as 35 Gordon Park.

the Sihanouk statement "is under careful study" and is being followed up.

Officials were privately encouraged by Sihanouk's recognition that at least "small units" of Communist troops have at times entered his territory, something he has denied in the past. The prince declared in his press statement, though, that "there cannot be on our soil" any large-scale Communist sanctuaries.

Had Praise for LBJ

The American officials noted also that Sihanouk had personal praise for Johnson, and that he blamed the Soviet Union and Poland for failure of the ICC to do an adequate job so far.

The Soviet Union and Britain are cochairmen of the 1954 Geneva conference on peace and neutrality in Indo-China. The ICC, composed of Indian, Canadian and Polish members, was set up to supervise the agreement. Washington has long blamed the Reds for tying the hands of the ICC.

Sihanouk noted that he had given the ICC the right to go anywhere in its supervision duties. But he said the Soviet Union and Poland had vetoed previous offers of equipment, such as the U.S. proposal to supply helicopters, to enable the inspection group to carry out its mission adequately.

Sihanouk's Stand Studied On the Issue of Sanctuary

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. diplomatic inquiries are under way to determine whether Prince Norodom Sihanouk of Cambodia will officially back up his press statement about keeping his country free of the war in neighboring South Vietnam.

If Sihanouk's answer is yes, U.S. sources indicated a presidential envoy—perhaps Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont.—could quickly head for Phnom Penh and new efforts could be mounted for international supervision of Cambodia's frontier.

May Take Days

It may be several days before Washington receives a definite reply. Cambodia has severed relations with the United States and communications between the two governments are forwarded through the Australian Embassy in the Cambodian capital.

Sihanouk opened the way for a potential new approach to settle the long-festering Cambodian sanctuary issue in an interview published in the Washington Post Friday.

The Cambodian leader said his small military forces could not prevent limited intrusions by North Vietnamese or Viet Cong troops in "outlying and uninhabited regions" of Cambodia have Cambodia removed as a

The Johnson administration was reserved in its public reaction Friday to Sihanouk's press remarks, possibly because the prince has been known to change his tune quickly in the past, and because the United States could cause embarrassment by seeming too eager.

He proposed an immediate beefing up of the three-nation International Control Commission (ICC) to improve its policing of Cambodia's borders.

And, mentioning Senate Majority Leader Mansfield by name, he said he would gladly receive a Johnson emissary to discuss reconciliation with the United States.

U.S. officials showed more immediate interest in the presidential envoy and ICC proposals than in Sihanouk's apparent acknowledgment that U.S. forces in South Vietnam could, despite his protests against all intruders, pursue the Reds across the border.

Dear Abby

Dress to Please Yourself

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(© 1967 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

Dear Abby: My husband and I went to his mother's house for Thanksgiving. When we got there, my mother-in-law sent me home to change my dress.

Abby, I was wearing a brand-new dress. It was a "mini," not a real, real short mini, it hit me about six inches above the knee. I wore a new pair of net hose to match my dress, and I thought I looked very sharp.

My mother-in-law said it was not "appropriate" for a married woman with two children to dress like that. I am 22 years old and am not ready to dress like an old lady yet. I am not fat, either.

My husband didn't even stick up for me. He just said, "I'll run you home so you can change." So he took me home and I put on an old-fashioned thing that came down to my knees. Now I want to know if you think a married woman should dress to please herself or her mother-in-law?

ANGRY

Dear Abby: A married woman, if she is wise, will not knowingly dress in a manner which will provoke criticism and disapproval from her mother-in-law. Yours, however, exceeded her authority in demanding that you change. You did the ladylike thing in deferring to her wishes, but in all other circumstances, I say—dress to please yourself.

Dear Abby: I have been married for seven months. It's the second time for both of us. I am 63 and my wife claims to be 58, but we keep running into people who knew her back in Fort Dodge, Ia., and they say she's got to be 65. Anyway, my wife owns the building we live in and she's a sharp little business woman. Here is my complaint. She charges me $110 a month rent.

I pay all the utilities and it's my furniture, too. None of my friends have ever heard of a husband paying rent to his own wife. Have you?

Dear Abby: Although I'm only 14, I have gone out with boys who are much older and more mature than I am.

My problem is that I am "turned on" very easily. I have high moral standards, but as soon as a boy kisses me, my resistance melts away. At first I thought this was the only reason the guys were taking me out, but girls I've talked to say that some of the guys I went out with were really slow.

What do I do? Kids say I'm cute and I have a good figure. So far I've gone only to "second and third base." I'm afraid I can't stop myself. Is something wrong with me?

WORRIED

Dear Abby: The emotions you feel upon being kissed are normal to everyone, but new to you. You are much too young to be dating "older, more mature boys." And furthermore, you would be wise to postpone kissing until you are older and mature enough to control the consequences.

If, at age 14 you've gone to "second and third base," you had better get out of that league or you'll be known as the "Home-Run Queen" by the time you're 16.

CONFIDENTIAL TO C. B. S. (RN): I am well aware that every doctor has treated women who imagine that he is taking more than a professional interest in them. It's usually only wishful thinking. Such women should take a man along when they go to the doctor's office. To protect the doctor.

Bridge

Slam Hidden, But It's There

By Oswald and James Jacoby
The late P. Hal Sims was the world's greatest auction bridge player, as we have often said. He carried his skill into contract and was the greatest contract bridge player in the early days of the new game.

One of Hal's rules for bidding was that the grand slam bonus was not big enough to warrant risking game and the small slam bonus, so that you should be particularly careful with grand slam bids. In fact, Hal would say, "I don't need to bid grand slams at all. If I do, I try to place them in no-trump. Trumps may not break or something may get ruffed in a suit contract. At no-trump these things can't happen to me."

Today's hand justifies Hal's theory about no-trump. With any decent break in spades there are 14 top tricks in either no-trump or spades. With all five spades in one hand, there are only 12 top tricks in no-trump and only 12 tricks of all kinds in spades.

At first glance it looks as if there is no real play for seven no-trump, but that is not the case. South was able to work out a perfect double squeeze for his grand slam.

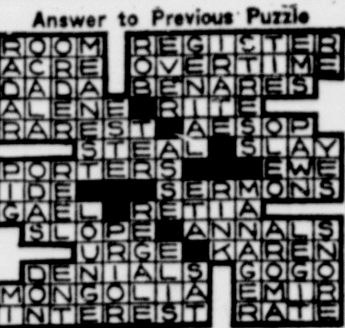

It didn't require any super-skill—merely careful timing to develop the squeeze. The order of the early tricks did not matter too much. The important thing was to get out of dummy's way in the majors and to take the three top diamonds before running what spades South could. Actually he cashed his high spades and hearts and three diamond tricks. Then he entered dummy with the ace of clubs and played the king of hearts. West had been forced to discard a heart on the third diamond. He had to drop a club on the heart king. Then South cashed the king and jack of spades. East had to come down to two cards. One of them had to be a diamond, so he had to let a club go also. South discarded his last diamond and made the last two tricks with clubs. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

The courageous navigator, a man who crossed the ocean in a small sailboat, was explaining to a group of reporters some of the dangers he experienced during his odyssey. After a grueling odyssey of over 500 miles in enemy territory, the exhausted paratrooper, tired and hungry, finally reached the safety of his own platoon. The two mount in climb, after having completed an odyssey of over 300 miles in the ragged Alps, were making plans for their next long journey.

Bob Rose

Julie Harris Goes TV Route

By BOB ROSE
Chicago Daily News Service
Julie Harris one of the country's finest actresses, is now in Hollywood—doing such television shows as Tarzan, Bonanza, Run for Your Life and Garrison's Gorillas.

"After 20 years in New York, more than that, really, I thought I wanted to be a little freer and not work eight nights a week. I was offered some plays and some that I almost wanted to do, that I would have been pleased to be in, but something held me back.

"Well, you pass through phases in your life. I read a book on the life of Maude Adams, and she was constantly working. Finally, her producer, Charles Froeman, told her to take a year off, and she made this terrific trip around the world. She spent some time in Egypt. This might be my trip to Egypt.

Have to See Other Side
"You just have to see a different side of life."

Miss Harris, attired in a western frontier dress of the 1890s, was sitting at lunch in the Paramount commissary, her long reddish-blond hair falling freely to her shoulders. She spoke softly, almost shyly, using her hands in delicate gestures.

Some of her fans may be upset that a woman who has repeatedly been acclaimed as one of the two or three best actresses of her generation should be taking one-shot TV roles. But then, again, it should not be too surprising.

Critics have been conceding Miss Harris' ability to delineate practically anything since she played a 12-year-old girl in 1950 in "The Member of the Wedding" (she was then 24) and a heart-warming tart in "I Am a Camera," in which she was decreed a star long ago.

Her list of prestige roles thereafter is almost endless, from Juliet to Joan of Arc to Victoria Regina, on the stage and in nine Hallmark Hall of Fame appearances on television. (She won two TV Emmys.)

"But these roles are enjoyable too," says Miss Harris. "In Garrison's Gorillas (ABC, on Tuesday, Jan. 9), I have an enormously engaging part—as a novice trying to become a nun, but with a background as the daughter of a notorious con man."

The part gives her the chance to show, fan cards like a professional gambler and also show off her subdued and modest side.

In her Bonanza role, for which she was at Paramount, she plays the gentle wife of a rancher who has become a

Medicaid Cost Help, Taylor Law Other Matters for Supervisors

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

Two other important matters of business came before the fast jading County Board of Supervisors Thursday night, overshadowed by adoption of a record $15 million budget.

The board will urgently seek the aid of Governor Rockefeller and the State Legislature for financial relief from mandated Medicaid costs.

Local Law 2, 1967, or local application of the Taylor Law which establishes a Fair Employment Practices Board here was unanimously adopted.

These resolutions were discussed and passed at the board meeting following the budget hearing.

Notes Distress

During the discussion on Supervisors Joseph Martorano's (R-Plattekill) resolution concerning Medicaid costs, it was noted that the mandated program is causing financial distress in every county and city of the state. The resolution cited the huge increase in the county budget caused by record Medicaid payments. It urged the governor and Legislature "to take whatever steps may be necessary to either change the base or formulas for welfare program eligibility, to increase federal and state reimbursement to counties, or to stop the ever-increasing cost of federal and state mandated welfare programs."

Copies were directed to the governor, the Legislature and the local legislators, State Sen. Jay P. Rollins Jr., R-Ulster-Dutchess, and Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson, R-Ulster.

Local Law 2, 1967 created the Ulster County Public Employment Relations Board consisted of three members to be appointed by the county legislators.

The new board would establish procedures consistent with provisions of the Civil Service Law and can resolve disputes concerning the representation status of employe organizations.

Supervisor Roger W. Mable, D-Esopus, was given a plaque from his Democratic colleagues for his service and capable and outstanding leadership as minority leader.

The violent storm that covered the area with 14 inches of snow did not cause an absentee problem. Only one supervisor, Robert F. Phinney, R-11th Ward was absent.

During the roll call vote on budget adoption, George Majestic, D-Gardiner, spoke of the disregard of Local Law 2, 1965, setting up procedure for preparation and filing of a county budget. He defended ousted Clerk of the Board Robert A. Snyder and scored the call for Snyder's resignation only a few days before his previously announced resignation would have become effective. He said Snyder was made the "goat" for the budget preparation delay.

Shouting Match

Chairman Peter Savago, R-New Paltz was forced to call order several times during the proceedings due to remarks and shouting across the floor by several supervisors.

At one time Supervisor Mable, minority leader asked for stricter decorum to permit all supervisors to be heard.

The meeting adjourned at 12:25 a. m. with many of the supervisors extending New Year's greetings. A dinner for a last get-together of all the members of the board is scheduled Jan. 14 at the Stockade Restaurant.

Spending Restraints Urged by Rockefeller

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller says government at every level must exercise spending restraints or face disastrous results.

"We must face the fact that government, just like a family, can't spend away beyond its income for very long without weakening its credit and with out undermining its strength," he said Friday night in a somber, year-end report to the people of New York.

Close to Danger Point

He said the people of the nation might have reached the point where their expectations were running ahead of the country's ability to produce the money to meet them without harming the economy.

"We, as a people, are close to being dangerously overcommitted," he said. "Unless there is some kind of spending restraint by governments, there could be far more human suffering than we are trying to eliminate in the programs we are carrying out at home and abroad."

Rockefeller commented in a television report being broadcast this weekend by stations in New York State. He spoke of his findings in a series of so-called "town meetings" held recently across the state.

In the "town meetings," taxpayers discussed their problems, and Rockefeller told them of the need for more tax revenue for increased education, welfare and medical assistance to local governments.

Tight Economic Budget

Rockefeller said he would send a "tight, economic" budget for 1968-69 to the Legislature by Jan. 16 with "no new programs except those that are mandated and absolutely essential."

New York State again is confronted with a $500 million to $600-million gap between spending and revenue, he said.

"Any funds for additional state aid will have to come from additional state taxes," he said. "This is the problem. Nobody wants to pay any more taxes.

Nobody wants to recommend any more taxes. But nothing is free. And if the people want services, then tax revenues must pay for them."

Excluding overlapping requests, Rockefeller added, the total amount of fresh state aid money sought next year totals about $1.5 billion.

"If we are going to meet that level, it would require a doubling of the present personal income tax in this state, or a 5 per cent increase in the sales tax," he said.

Rockefeller, who is shown by recent polls to be a strong possible contender for the Republican presidential nomination, said New York's fiscal problems reflected a serious situation nationwide.

He said "we may well have reached in this country a point where the rising pace of the level of expectations is outrunning the capacity to raise the revenues on a sound basis to pay for them without affecting the strength and the growth of our economy and the increase in job opportunities."

Education Aid, Anti-Poverty Received Congressional Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — The ability of the American political system to transform controversial new legislation into broadly accepted programs was demonstrated anew by congressional action this year on the federal aid-to-education and anti-poverty programs.

In the areas of Social Security, civil rights, welfare and labor relations, proposals that at one time seemed dangerously radical to a large part of the population are securely enshrined in the law books.

Overwhelming Approval

It could be happening again. Just a few years ago the opposition to a federal school bill was so intense President John F. Kennedy had to abandon any hope of getting one passed. But the 90th Congress recently gave overwhelming approval to a bill extending the program through 1970 at a total authorization of $9.3 billion.

The anti-poverty bill has touched off some of the fiercest fights in Congress during the last three years. But this year it won a two-year extension by a solid bipartisan vote and appears firmly established on the national scene.

The capacity of the body politic to absorb ideas it once resisted is largely a matter of timing and leadership. It was President Johnson who supplied the leadership that launched the anti-poverty and school bills, but it was Congress that put them through the fires of controversy and tempered the opposition.

Both bills were originally passed by the 89th Congress, which Johnson called, "My Congress." With their huge majority, Democrats not only had no need of Republican support, they pointedly shunned it, preferring to drive the Republicans into an opposition role in the belief it would damage the GOP in urban areas.

It may have been smart politics, but as a legislative procedure it produced a sharp partisan division that jeopardized both programs in the much more closely matched 90th Congress, particularly in the House.

The administration made no concessions to the changed conditions in the House and early in the session both programs appeared on their way to being severely mangled. Convinced that the administration was out of touch with the House and the nation, key Democrats on the Education and Labor Committee forced through the changes that smoothed the road to passage for both measures.

In each case the keys to broadened support were amendments increasing the role of state and local authorities in the programs and weakening the federal government's role.

Stone Ridge

STONE RIDGE—The regular monthly meeting of the Stone Ridge Fire Company will be held on Wednesday, Jan. 3, instead of Tuesday evening.

Oliver Bogert Jr. returned home on Wednesday, after spending a few days with his sister and brother-in-law in Honesdale, Pa.

The Rev. and Mrs. Bruce Carlson and son are spending a few days with relatives in Philadelphia, Pa.

The resulting legislation was far from satisfactory to many of its warmest supporters.

"If the anti-poverty bill is hailed as a victory," noted the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, "it is because the worst things Congress was generally expected to do to the poverty program were somehow avoided."

And those who never liked either program found nothing to cheer about in their continuation for two more years.

But the lopsided votes by which each was approved indicated the kind of endorsement that can lead to a long life on the statute books.

Today in History

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Five years ago: A U.N. force vowed to continue an offensive to end the secession of Katanga Province in the Congo.

One year ago: Allied military units in South Vietnam pulled into defensive positions for the start of a New Year's truce.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1911, a provisional assembly elected Dr. Sun Yat-sen the first president of the Republic of China.

On this date:

In 1775, an American force was defeated at Quebec, Canada.

In 1853, the Gadsden Purchase was made. The United States acquired from Mexico 45,000 square miles of land, now parts of Arizona and New Mexico.

In 1865, the English writer, Rudyard Kipling, was born.

In 1936, a bitter labor dispute began as the United Automobile Workers union staged a sit-down strike at a General Motors plant in Flint, Mich.

In 1947, King Michael of Romania agreed to abdicate, charging he was forced off the throne by the Communists.

Ten years ago: The U.S. Information Agency said it had turned up a booklet which was documentary proof of a Communist plan to take over Indonesia.

Rocky's Proposal:

$131 Million for Transit

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller said today he would ask the 1968 Legislature to approve more than $131 million in grants from state transportation bond funds for five mass-transit commuter projects in New York City and the metropolitan area — most of them involving the Long Island Rail Road.

Rockefeller said he also would ask for $882,000 in grants for improvement projects at Niagara Falls International Airport, Dunkirk Airport and Buffalo International Airport, all in western New York.

The projects will be financed from proceeds from the $2.5 billion transportation bond issue approved last November by New York State voters.

The metropolitan projects are:

— Purchase of 350 additional electric commuter cars for the railroad. The state would provide $63 million and the Metropolitan Commuter Transit Authority the rest of the total $84-million cost.

— Extension of the LIRR electrification system for 16 miles and rehabilitation of the existing 104-mile electrification system. The federal government has approved a $22.7 million grant toward the estimated $49-million cost. The state and the MCTA will share the rest.

— Improvements to the railroad's station platforms, track and signal and communications systems and the Flatbush Avenue terminal. The state would contribute $4,688,000 toward the estimated cost of $6.25 million, with the MCTA providing the remainder.

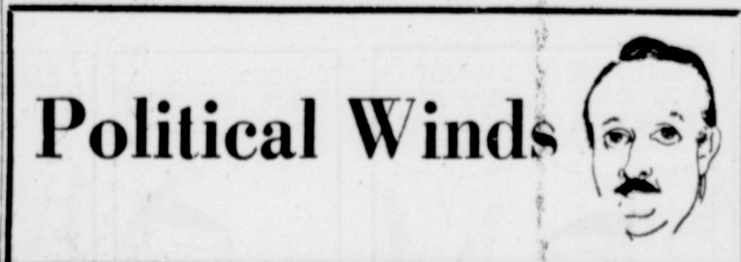

— Design and construction of a transit tunnel under the East River in New York City to be used jointly by the New York subway system and the LIRR. State and local governments would split the $75-million cost.

— Purchase of the commuter service assets, including real estate and some rolling stock, of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad in New York State. The state would provide $6 million and the MCTA $2 million.

The project at the Buffalo airport calls for $610,000 in state funds, $813,000 in federal funds, and $202,000 in local funds.

At Dunkirk, the state would provide $159,000, the federal government $212,000, and the City of Dunkirk the balance.

The Niagara Falls Project would be financed by $113,000 in state funds, $150,000 in federal funds, and $37,000 by the city of Niagara Falls.

By CHARLES BERMAN
Freeman Political Writer

An interesting fight may be in the making between Congressman Resnick and New York City attorney Morris Abram, both seeking the Democratic nod for the Senate.

Resnick has been called a "super hawk" on the Vietnam War issue after his statements made in Vietnam two weeks ago where the Ellenville Democrat said that the mood of the American people was to invade North Vietnam, Laos, and Cambodia and "drop the bomb on anybody who tries to stop us."

Abram has remained silent on the war because of his sensitive position on the Human Rights Commission of the United Nations, and also because he would like to have the backing of both Lyndon Johnson and Bobby Kennedy—a difficult maneuver to say the least. One well-informed source said, however, that Abram favors a cessation of the bombing of North Vietnam as a prelude to negotiations.

When Abram finally announces his candidacy, probably some time after the first of the year, he should be in a position to state his views more clearly, but one thing appears certain—a war between a "hawk" and a "dove" with the prestige of both Kennedy and Johnson perched on the wing.

Because the 28th Congressional District is considered to be a well established district, there will probably not be anything in the way of reapportionment of the area, at least until the census of 1970.

This is what faces the man of moderate financial resources who would like to perform a valuable public service. We can hardly wonder why the inducement is, oftentimes, just not strong enough.

The jockeying about of Republican congressional hopefuls has been held to a bare minimum during the holidays, and there just is nothing in the way of movement from the Democrats.

It has been mentioned before that the costs involved in running a Congressional campaign are so prohibitive as to preclude the possibility of a man of moderate, or even middle income means, of attempting such a race. But let's look at it further.

If we assume that two men of moderate means are running for the post, naturally one of them is going to win. So now we have a man of moderate means as our representative in Washington.

One of the first items of business is the hiring of a staff, much of the cost of which is included in a government expense account.

But with a congressional aid and an assistant, along with perhaps two secretaries, although one may be part-time, this only takes care of the Congressman's Washington office.

Now we come into home territory. Resnick has a Poughkeepsie office, a Kingston office, and a Catskill office. The Congressman has five staffers in Poughkeepsie, at least three in Kingston, and two or three in Catskill. The chief representatives in these offices command good salaries, maybe as much as $12,000 a year—that's $36,000 for the representatives alone, and we haven't come to the full and part-time staffers.

Of course, you may say, "Well that's Resnick and he's got a lot of loot." All right, but consider this: a Congressman is required to have a residence in Washington and another in his home territory. If he doesn't have at least an apartment in Washington then he would have to rent a hotel room, and that's more costly than an apartment.

But in the whirl of Washington social life, it is most beneficial for a legislator to own a home, or rent a big house. It provides him with a base for contacts, for throwing parties and having meetings where contacts are made, where lawmakers can reason together. Think of that cost—two homes.

JEAN HASBROUCK HOUSE

Paltz Trade Mark

Huguenot St. & "Flemish Colonial"

It is now a matter of record that New Paltz's historic Huguenot Street, with its beautiful and seemingly ageless stone houses, was chosen for National Historic Site designation two years ago by the Department of Interior. What is, perhaps, not so well known is the fact that the Memorial House (Jean Hasbrouck House) on the colorful street has been additionally honored as being "the most impressive example of a Flemish Colonial stone residence in the medieval style in the United States."

During the summer just past, representatives of the National Survey of Historic Sites and Buildings Committee visited Paltz and, after viewing the street and house, came up with the designation and documentation that will establish the fame of the Memorial House as a very special landmark for all time to come.

Even before the turn of the century, the Memorial House was being used as the headquarters of the Huguenot Historical Society and, in more recent years, the fabled residence has been the focal point for all publicity that has gone out to magazines and newspapers, and in answer to inquiries from the general public. In essence, then, the house has become a virtual trade mark for New Paltz.

Community Determination

With the advent of the New Year, Kenneth E. Hasbrouck, president of the Huguenot Historical Society, took time out this week to thank all those who have had a part in helping to preserve the charm of Huguenot Street and its houses. Many have worked to retain the staid dignity of the street, he said, and the houses themselves reflect the determination of the community to maintain them for future generations to enjoy.

No one who honors architectural beauty and a sense of history would argue that Paltz does indeed have a great deal to be proud of in the old street and its quaint domiciles. For literally thousands of people, the street IS New Paltz.

Satisfying though that may seem, the Society and the town have even bigger plans. It is the undiminished hope of one and all that, in the not too distant future, a new stone structure will be built to give to the town its only restoration. This would be a stone church, duplicating the building known as French Church, built in 1718 and taken down many years ago. Plans call for replacing the church exactly as it stood in order to complete the entire Historic Site Area and attempt to have it look as much as possible as it did early in the 18th century.

This is no idle dream and, within a few months, architects and an architectural historian will begin the work necessary to replace the old house of worship. The restoration will be the pet project of the Crispell Family Association, a part of the Huguenot Historical Society of Paltz.

In All Exactitude

The Association has already agreed that any restoration of this type must necessarily be done in complete accordance with the advice of the most skilled people available. There will be no delineation from any bit of documentation on file, and each tie-up with the past will be faithfully followed, in exacting detail. In this way, it is believed the completed project will reflect the spirit of the entire preservation effort on Huguenot Street in every way.

Hasbrouck also said that many New Paltz residents and many other people at a distance have helped in achieving this goal. He said that both he and the Society's Board of Trustees have appreciated this cooperation over the years, and he urged continued efforts to help in making Huguenot Street and its houses a living demonstration of community spirit.

He also noted that he has received word that the New York State Council on the Arts has singled out the Society for a grant in 1968. The money will be in the form of a renewal to continue staffing and research projects on the vintage street, begun under a 1967 program. In the main, funds will go toward staffing. The Society has grown so rapidly to more than 2,300 members and has assumed total responsibility of ownership or contract for the old houses, that funds became unavailable to handle the many visitors who come from afar to see the street and its outstanding architectural examples.

The Council on the Arts' grant, then, will make it possible to field a staff of approximately six people to assist visitors during summer months and other parts of the year, and to now retain two people on a part time basis.

In announcing the grant, as part of its program for continuing and expanding museums in the state, the Council noted the renewal fund was "to bolster and extend the program" at New Paltz "in recognition of the unique job it does for the public."

As a result, Paltz will be aided in helping to meet the soaring attention the public has been bestowing on it in recent years. The Society, in turn, sees the grant as an opportunity to "move outside the confines of its walls more easily," something that must be done as the arts and history begin to be more a part of daily life rather than isolated to the often austere chambers of privately supported institutions.

1967: Americans Played, Listened To and Spent More

Americans played, listened to and spent more money for music in 1967 than ever before in their history, reports the National Association of Music Merchants.

The sound of music reached an all-time crescendo in volume this Christmas with sales of music instruments as well as music-listening products soaring to new highs in music stores, according to the NAMM which has been keeping tab on the musical habits of the nation since the turn of the century when the organization was founded.

Spurred by continuing rock 'n' roll popularity which has sent sales of guitars and drums as well as portable phonographs, records and transistor radios to new peaks, music stores exceeded last year's retail sales by seven per cent in 1967, reports NAMM.

Average spending of Americans for music instruments and music listening products exceeded $30 per capita in 1967, according to NAMM. At least $1 out of every $5 spent for recreation goes to music, representing more spending per person for music than the rest of the world put together.

Boom and Leisure

With savings deposits and disposable income at an all-time high in the U. S., the necessary economic ingredients are present to assure unlimited sales potential at the nation's music stores. The impact of a mammoth cultural boom, increasing amount of leisure time, larger incomes, longer life span, growing school band programs and improved communications all add up to a musical explosion throughout the land.

More youngsters are taking music lessons today than at any time in the past. One out of four children play or are learning to play an instrument, more than twice as many as 20 years ago. If musical interest by the younger generation continues at the same rate, more than half of all youths will be playing music instruments by 1980, NAMM estimates. The wide range of instruments youngsters are interested in playing has resulted in bigger displays of more instruments than ever before at the annual Music Show, sponsored by NAMM in Chicago every year.

Industry growth has been remarkable considering that manufacture of musical instruments in volume began little more than a century ago when Heinrich Steinway and three sons established the piano firm of Steinway & Son in 1853. Listening to reproduced music as a recreation dates back exactly 90 years to 1877 when Thomas Edison first recorded and reproduced sound on a phonograph using tinfoil cylinders. Since then music listening has become America's favorite pastime, exceeding even reading and card playing.

Music will ring up $6 billion in sales in 1976 for music-making and music-listening products, sparked by phenomenal interest in popular music that has penetrated every phase of modern living. Today's youth listens to music wherever they go—bedroom to beach—and match that never-ending listening with a universal desire to play something, whether it's the ubiquitous guitar or the classic piano.

Music

The music explosion among youth is now taking the direction of exploration in seeking new sounds from unusual instruments and experimental electronic effects. It has brought about introduction on the American scene of such odd instruments as the Indian sitar and a new vocabulary with words like fuzz, wah-wah, reverb and psychedelic to describe what's happening in music. And the music industry has more than accepted the trend. It's with it all the way.

The guitar continues as the single most popular instrument in sales with the total expected to exceed 2,000,000 in 1967, but new trends in the rock field are bringing increasing interest in electronic versions of the harmonica and tambourine. Amplification is a "must" today with young musicians, even in music classes now being offered in nearly every high school and college in the country.

Radios are the prime listening device for all generations of America, whether in cars on the road (there are now 64,500,000 radios in cars) or at home where 99½ per cent of all homes wired for electricity have radios. Actually the number of radios in use in the U.S. exceeds the population of 200 million by 62,700,000, notes NAMM.

Phonographs, too, are a booming segment of the music industry with the total number of phonographs operating in the nation expected to reach 60,000,000 before the end of 1967. Ninety years after Edison produced his first phonograph, America is buying records at record levels with sales expected to exceed $850 million this year.

Music-Mindedness

"The fact is that America's new music-mindedness is no passing fad, but a basic change in American interests," notes William R. Gard, executive vice-president of NAMM. This year 2,500,000 people will buy musical instruments for the first time.

In the past ten years sales of music listening products has more than doubled to 40,000,000 units annually.

"Business was never better in the retail music outlets in the nation, whether in guitars, transistors or kingsize stereo-tape consoles. The average American has become accustomed to music wherever he goes," says Gard.

Music is "the prime item of radio programming" with teenagers being the most tuned-in segment of the population. A total of 85 per cent of teenagers listen to the radio every day compared to 70 per cent of the overall population.

Of the total round-the-clock radio time, music is 90 per cent of all programming, the percentage going up in the past decade since soap operas faded from the scene.

"To most Americans music in its many, many forms ranging from folk and classic to rock 'n' roll and baroque, is the most popular entertainment medium," NAMM executive Gard says.

What's New on Your Screen??

When it comes to finding out what's in the huge package of video fare the networks are planning to deliver to home viewers during the new year coming up, a little snooping on TEMPO's part elicited the information that there'll be a big bag of specials. And most of those in the know predict it's going to be a very special year.

ABC, it appears, is going right through the alphabet including, perhaps, "Z" in a year-long release of drama, news, and sports specials. January alone on this channel will bring Jack Palance doubling as "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," a look at "The Undersea World of Jacques-Yves Cousteau," telecasts of the annual Big Crosby Pro-Amateur Golf Tournament and the NBA All-Star basketball game, a TV adaptation of the hit movie, "Laura," with Lee Remick, and "A Tour of the White House With Sen. Dirksen."

PRETTY PATTI PAGE spent five days in Miami taping a Jackie Gleason variety special in which she will work with the Great One again this Jan. 15 on CBS-TV. Jack Carter is also in the show.

CBS loses no time in beginning its specials programming for 1968, with two New Year's Day Specials—the "1968 Cotton Bowl Festival Parade," and the "Tournament of Roses Parade and Pageant." The month on CBS will also bring another New York Philharmonic Young People's Concert and, later, a prestigious showcase in CBS Playhouse's "My Father and My Mother," Robert Crean's play. Later in the season, CBS will also have Tad Mosel's new play, and three frolics with good, 'ol Charlie Brown.

NBC has a fat schedule of specials, going right into summer, beginning Jan. 1 with the big one—the Rose Bowl grid classic. Also expected to meet with critical applause: Hallmark Hall of Fame's "Elizabeth the Queen" in late January, "Give Us Barabbas" in late March, and "The Admirable Crichton" in early May. Other goodies promised by NBC: astronaut John Glenn hosting the story of Stanley and Livingstone in a "Great Explorations" special Jan. 11; something extra-special in "The Fabulous Funnies," with Carl Reiner as host, Feb. 11; and a Bill Cosby variety special in March.

Sharks Alive

A bit more about Jacques Yves-Cousteau, famed oceanographer whose camera "writes" under water the amazing, beautiful, terrifying saga of the seas, coming to home screens Monday, Jan. 8, in the first telecast of a memorable series of specials, "The Undersea World of Jacques Yves-Cousteau." ABC is presenting the Cousteau programs and air time for the initial special, "Sharks," is 7:30 p. m. Eastern time. It's a documentary revealing never before recorded views of the sea's most feared predators; was filmed in the Red Sea, Indian Ocean and Gulf of Aden.

The Cousteau series is to be a succession of on-the-spot actual adventures, filmed as they happen in the deep. Into this water will plunge Cousteau and his divers, there to move amid the graveyard of sunken ships and to swim with colonies of undersea creatures.

Marvels of Musicians

The Bell Telephone Hour, it seems to us, presented one of its finest telecasts of the season in "Casals at Marlboro" on NBC last night. It was not only a musical achievement of some note, but was a remarkable dramatization of the intense dedication of masters and students at the Vermont Festival. The 91-year-old Casals was shown rehearsing a movement from Mozart's "Haffner Symphony," and viewers saw that his concentration was so complete, the baton became meaningless, sometimes even being held upside down.

Leonard Bernstein also chose the near perfect content for the first telecast of the season's New York Philharmonic Young People's Concerts with "A Toast to Vienna in 3/4 Time" on CBS this past week. It was a double salute to both the New York and Vienna Philharmonic Orchestras, celebrating their 125th anniversaries. Classical music, light but sensitive, dancing and down to earth music was offered.

Television

As the "second season" started, TEMPO also found Wednesday's Kraft Music Hall one of the funniest shows of the year. Woody Allen's year-end review was sophisticated all the way what with political pundit William Buckley Jr. helping take swipes at 1967's people and events, Liza Minnelli as a would-be hippie housewife, a Bonnie & Clyde take-off and a Shirley Temple turnabout. And, so, on in to the pick of the programs for the coming week:

Tonight, Sat., Dec. 30

KING ORANGE PARADE JAMBOREE (NBC, 7:30). Live coverage of the highlights of the annual Orange Bowl Parade with bright lights against nighttime backgrounds, 50 shimmering floats, high stepping bands, Florida's prettiest girls, singers Aretha Franklin and Georgia Gibbs, and Raymond Burr and Anita Bryant as commentators.

JACKIE GLEASON SHOW (CBS, 7:30). There's a bit of a happy reunion as the Great One introduces his special holiday guest, Frank Fontaine. Kate Smith sings "The Impossible Dream" and Louis Armstrong and Jackie do a medley with original lyrics to "Hello Dolly," "Mack the Knife" and "Mame."

Sunday, Dec. 31

WHOOPEE, New Year's Eve with the Smothers Brothers on THE COMEDY HOUR (CBS, 9 p. m.). They manage to take the trite symbols of Auld Lang Syne and turn them into something pretty funny.

Earlier in the day, the man of the family will probably watch The American Football League Championship Game (Oakland Raiders against Houston) from 4:30 p. m. to conclusion on NBC. Or, the National Football League Championship game between Green Bay and Dallas, from 2 p. m. to conclusion over CBS. Meanwhile, ABC (the network without a big football game) takes this chance to return Coach Bryant: Alabama's Bear from 4-5 p. m. And, later, CBS repeats The Violent World of Sam Huff, wherein Huff and his N. Y. Giants teammates were wired for sound, at 6 p. m.

ED SULLIVAN SHOW (CBS, 8 p. m.) Miriam Makeba, Vikki Carr and Gianna d'Angelo provide some fine singing; Buddy Rich does a good instrumental, and George Kirby comes up with some brilliant impressions.

SUNDAY NIGHT MOVIE (ABC, 9 p. m.). It's "A Girl Named Tamiko," and it's one of those East vs. West, true love vs. ambition dramas with Laurence Harvey as a Russian-Chinese who wants to come to America, Martha Hyer as a girl he tries to use to achieve his aim, and France Nuyen as the Japanese girl he falls in love with.

Monday, Jan. 1

TOURNAMENT OF ROSES PARADE PREVIEW (CBS, 10 a. m.). A look behind the scenes at preparations for the annual Rose Parade.

COTTON BOWL FESTIVAL PARADE (CBS, 10:30 a. m.). Has Jack Linkletter and Marilyn Van Derbur with 56 floats and 23 bands from Dallas.

1968 TOURNAMENT OF ROSES PARADE (CBS & NBC, 11:30 a. m.). This is the 79th annual flower spectacle from Pasadena, with Sen. Everett McKinley Dirksen as Grand Marshal, Bess Myerson and Mike Douglas for CBS, and Betty White and Lorne Greene for NBC.

Football takes over again for the afternoon and evening as follows:

Cotton Bowl with Alabama against Texas A & M on CBS at 1:35; Sugar Bowl with LSU meeting Wyoming at 1:45 on NBC; Rose Bowl pitting Southern Cal and Indiana on NBC

at 4:45; and the Orange Bowl, Oklahoma and Tennessee on NBC from 7:45 p. m. to conclusion.

Tuesday, Jan. 2

TUESDAY NIGHT MOVIES (NBC, 9 p. m.) The 1964 release slated is "The Evil of Frankenstein," starring Peter Cushing as the Baron and Kiwi Kingston as the monster.

CBS NEWS CORRESPONDENTS REPORT (CBS, 10 p. m.). The first in a two-part series, and called "America and the World," with CBS correspondents from foreign nations discussing international affairs.

Wednesday, Jan. 3

KRAFT MUSIC HALL (NBC, 9 p. m.). Titled "Trio for Tonight," it stars Victor Borge, singers Nancy Wilson and Simon and Garfunkel in separate performances.

WEDNESDAY NIGHT MOVIES (ABC, 9 a. m.). Another Elvis Presley film, with Barbara Stanwyck also featured in "Roustabout," a 1964 flick about the carnival.

JONATHAN WINTERS SHOW (CBS, 10 p. m.). For his second show of the "second season," Winters has the Smothers Brothers, Barbara McNair and the rock group, The Strawberry Alarm Clock.

CONGENIAL VICTOR BORGE brings his unmelancholy Dane act to The Kraft Music Hall over NBC-TV on Jan. 3. Borge recently quit what he called his "bird banker business" — raising Rock Cornish hens, and so successful he found himself literally banking thousands upon thousands of frozen

Thursday, Jan. 4

BATMAN (ABC, 7:30 p. m.) This episode has ex-White House Presidential Press Secretary Perle Slinger as a shyster lawyer hired to defend Catwoman (Eartha Kitt).

THURSDAY NIGHT MOVIES (CBS, 9 p. m.) Part I of that very excellent musical, "The Music Man," starring Robert Preston and Shirley Jones. Part II will be presented Friday, Jan. 5.

DRAGNET 1968 (NBC, 9:30 p. m.) All about the investigation of a psychedelic cult sus-

SANTA CLAUS HAD A DREAM — and what a spectacular dream it was — in this production number on Radio City Music Hall at Christmas Time, viewed by kids from one to 92 over NBC-TV recently.

When it comes to finding out what's in the huge package of video fare the networks are planning to deliver to home viewers during the new year coming up, a little snooping on TEMPO's part elicited the information that there'll be a big bag of specials. And most of those in the know predict it's going to be a very special year.

ABC, it appears, is going right through the alphabet including, perhaps, "Z" in a year-long release of drama, news, and sports specials. January alone on this channel will bring Jack Palance doubling as "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," a look at "The Undersea World of Jacques-Yves Cousteau," telecasts of the annual Big Crosby Pro-Amateur Golf Tournament and the NBA All-Star basketball game, a TV adaptation of the hit movie, "Laura," with Lee Remick, and "A Tour of the White House With Sen. Dirksen."

PRETTY PATTI PAGE spent five days in Miami taping a Jackie Gleason variety special in which she will work with the Great One again this Jan. 13 on CBS-TV. Jack Carter is also in the show.

CBS loses no time in beginning its specials programming for 1968, with two New Year's Day Specials—the "1968 Cotton Bowl Festival Parade," and the "Tournament of Roses Parade and Pageant." The month on CBS will also bring another New York Philharmonic Young People's Concert and, later, a prestigious showcase in CBS Playhouse's "My Father and My Mother," Robert Crean's play. Later in the season, CBS will also have Tad Mosel's new play, and three frolics with good, 'ol Charlie Brown.

NBC has a fat schedule of specials, going right into summer, beginning Jan. 1 with the big one—the Rose Bowl grid classic. Also expected to meet with critical applause: Hallmark Hall of Fame's "Elizabeth the Queen" in late January, "Give Us Barabbas" in late March, and "The Admirable Crichton" in early May. Other goodies promised by NBC: astronaut John Glenn hosting the story of Stanley and Livingstone in a "Great Explorations" special Jan. 11; something extra-special in "The Fabulous Funnies," with Carl Reiner as host, Feb. 11; and a Bill Cosby variety special in March.

Sharks Alive

A bit more about Jacques Yves-Cousteau, famed oceanographer whose camera "writes" under water the amazing, beautiful, terrifying saga of the seas, coming to home screens Monday, Jan. 8, in the first telecast of a memorable series of specials, "The Undersea World of Jacques Yves-Cousteau." ABC is presenting the Cousteau programs and air time for the initial special, "Sharks," is 7:30 p. m. Eastern time. It's a documentary revealing never-before recorded views of the sea's most-feared predators; was filmed in the Red Sea, Indian Ocean and Gulf of Aden.

The Cousteau series is to be a succession of on-the-spot actual adventures, filmed as they happen in the deep. Into this water will plunge Cousteau and his divers, there to move amid the graveyard of sunken ships and to swim with colonies of undersea creatures.

Marvels of Musicians

The Bell Telephone Hour, it seems to us, presented one of its finest telecasts of the season in "Casals at Marlboro" on NBC last night. It was not only a musical achievement of some note, but was a remarkable dramatization of the intense dedication of masters and students at the Vermont Festival. The 91-year-old Casals was shown rehearsing a movement from Mozart's "Haffner Symphony," and viewers saw that his concentration was so complete, the baton became meaningless, sometimes even being held upside down.

Leonard Bernstein also chose the near perfect content for the first telecast of the season's New York Philharmonic Young People's Concerts with "A Toast to Vienna in 3/4 Time" on CBS this past week. It was a double salute to both the New York and Vienna Philharmonic Orchestras, celebrating their 125th anniversaries. Classical music, light but sensitive, dancing and down to earth music was offered.

Television

As the "second season" started, TEMPO also found Wednesday's Kraft Music Hall one of the funniest shows of the year. Woody Allen's year-end review was sophisticated all the way what with political pundit William Buckley Jr. helping take swipes at 1967's people and events, Liza Minnelli as a would-be hippie housewife, a Bonnie & Clyde take-off and a Shirley Temple turnabout. And, so, on in to the pick of the programs for the coming week:

Tonight, Sat., Dec. 30

KING ORANGE PARADE JAMBOREE (NBC, 7:30). Live coverage of the highlights of the annual Orange Bowl Parade with bright lights against nighttime backgrounds, 50 shimmering floats, high stepping bands, Florida's prettiest girls, singers Aretha Franklin and Georgia Gibbs, and Raymond Burr and Anita Bryant as commentators.

JACKIE GLEASON SHOW (CBS, 7:30). There's a bit of a happy reunion as the Great One introduces his special holiday guest, Frank Fontaine. Kate Smith sings "The Impossible Dream" and Louis Armstrong and Jackie do a medley with original lyrics to "Hello Dolly," "Mack the Knife" and "Mame."

Sunday, Dec. 31

WHOOPEE, New Year's Eve with the Smothers Brothers on THE COMEDY HOUR (CBS, 9 p. m.). They manage to take the trite symbols of Auld Lang Syne and turn them into something pretty funny.

Earlier in the day, the man of the family will probably watch The American Football League Championship Game (Oakland Raiders against Houston) from 4:30 p. m. to conclusion on NBC. Or, the National Football League Championship game between Green Bay and Dallas, from 2 p. m. to conclusion over CBS. Meanwhile, ABC (the network without a big football game) takes this chance to return Coach Bryant: Alabama's Bear, from 4-5 p. m. And, later, CBS repeats The Violent World of Sam Huff, wherein Huff and his N. Y. Giants teammates were wired for sound, at 6 p. m.

ED SULLIVAN SHOW (CBS, 8 p. m.) Miriam Makeba, Vikki Carr and Gianna D'Angelo provide some fine singing; Buddy Rich does a good instrumental, and George Kirby comes up with some brilliant impressions.

SUNDAY NIGHT MOVIE (ABC, 9 p. m.). It's "A Girl Named Tamiko," and it's one of those East vs. West, true love vs. ambition dramas with Laurence Harvey as a Russian-Chinese who wants to come to America, Martha Hyer as a girl he tries to use to achieve his aim, and France Nuyen as the Japanese girl he falls in love with.

Monday, Jan. 1

TOURNAMENT OF ROSES PARADE PREVIEW (CBS, 10 a. m.). A look behind the scenes at preparations for the annual Rose Parade.

COTTON BOWL FESTIVAL PARADE (CBS, 10:30 a. m.). Has Jack Linkletter and Marilyn Van Derbur with 56 floats and 23 bands from Dallas.

1968 TOURNAMENT OF ROSES PARADE (CBS & NBC, 11:30 a. m.). This is the 79th annual flower spectacle from Pasadena, with Sen. Everett McKinley Dirksen as Grand Marshal, Bess Myerson and Mike Douglas for CBS, and Betty White and Lorne Greene for NBC.

Football takes over again for the afternoon and evening as follows:

Cotton Bowl with Alabama against Texas A & M on CBS at 1:35; Sugar Bowl with LSU meeting Wyoming at 1:45 on NBC; Rose Bowl pitting Southern Cal and Indiana on NBC

at 4:45; and the Orange Bowl, Oklahoma and Tennessee on NBC from 7:45 p. m. to conclusion.

Tuesday, Jan. 2

TUESDAY NIGHT MOVIES (NBC, 9 p. m.). The 1964 release slated is "The Evil of Frankenstein," starring Peter Cushing as the Baron and Kiwi Kingston as the monster.

CBS NEWS CORRESPONDENTS REPORT (CBS, 10 p. m.). The first in a two-part series, and called "America and the World," with CBS correspondents from foreign nations discussing international affairs.

Wednesday, Jan. 3

KRAFT MUSIC HALL (NBC, 9 p. m.). Titled "Trio for Tonight," it stars Victor Borge, singers Nancy Wilson and Simon and Garfunkel in separate performances.

WEDNESDAY NIGHT MOVIES (ABC, 9 a. m.). Another Elvis Presley film, with Barbara Stanwyck also featured in "Roustabout," a 1964 flick about the carnival.

JONATHAN WINTERS SHOW (CBS, 10 p. m.). For his second show of the "second season," Winters has the Smothers Brothers, Barbara McNair and the rock group, The Strawberry Alarm Clock.

CONGENIAL VICTOR BORGE brings his unmelancholy Dane act to The Kraft Music Hall over NBC-TV on Jan. 3. Borge recently quit what he called his "bird banker business" — raising Rock Cornish hens, and so successful he found himself literally banking thousands upon thousands of frozen

Thursday, Jan. 4

BATMAN (ABC, 7:30 p. m.) This episode has ex-White House Presidential Press Secretary Perle Salinger as a shyster lawyer hired to defend Catwoman (Eartha Kitt).

THURSDAY NIGHT MOVIES (CBS, 9 p. m.) Part I of that very excellent musical, "The Music Man," starring Robert Preston and Shirley Jones. Part II will be presented Friday, Jan. 5.

DRAGNET 1968 (NBC, 9:30 p. m.) All about the investigation of a psychedelic cult sus-

Extends Its Run

Due to excellent public response to this year's Christmas Show at the Woodstock Artists Association, the seasonal exhibition will remain on the walls through this coming Monday. Artists with works on display may pick these up on the newly arranged date, Jan. 3, from 4:30 to 9 p.m.

There is still a fine selection of as yet unsold paintings and sculpture remaining in the Village Green gallery, many of them being offered by some of Woodstock's finest artists at special holiday bargain prices.

Quite a Float!

The Kodak float which will be seen on Jan. 1 in the Tournament of Roses Parade on television promises to be one of the most spectacular of all. The float, "Man Explores His Universe," does not rest on the usual truck chassis, but is instead propelled by several battery-powered electric motors.

Extends Its Run

Due to excellent public response to this year's Christmas Show at the Woodstock Artists Association, the seasonal exhibition will remain on the walls through this coming Monday. Artists with works on display may pick these up on the newly arranged date, Jan. 3, from 4:30 to 9 p.m.

There is still a fine selection of as yet unsold paintings and sculpture remaining in the Village Green gallery, many of them being offered by some of Woodstock's finest artists at special holiday bargain prices.

Quite a Float!

The Kodak float which will be seen on Jan. 1 in the Tournament of Roses Parade on television promises to be one of the most spectacular of all. The float, "Man Explores His Universe," does not rest on the usual truck chassis, but is instead propelled by several battery-powered electric motors.

Modern's Graphics

More than fifty graphic works from the Museum of Modern Art done by three leading contemporary designers, Norman Ives, Almir Mavignier and Massimo Vignelli, will be exhibited at the State University College Art Gallery, New Paltz, from Jan. 10 through Wednesday, Jan. 24.

The exhibition includes posters designed since 1960 for art exhibitions as well as commercial advertisements, book jackets, symbols for corporations and products, brochures, and other printed material.

Although the three designers all stress good design without loss of message as their primary concern, they each emphasize different means of attracting the eye and uniting form and message, said Dr.

Peter Bohan, College Gallery director.

Vignelli creates strong and unusual patterns with letter forms, and when using a pictorial image, closely coordinates them so that the two reinforce each other. Mavignier's use of light with his abstract images creates a constant visual movement through an interplay of surface and depth. Ives stresses use of the single letter or form, which is often designed as a symbol, and also makes optimum use of striking color combinations.

The works were selected from the permanent and study collections of the Museum of Modern Art.

Gallery hours are 9 to 9 weekdays and 9 to 3 Saturdays.

Modern's Graphics

More than fifty graphic works from the Museum of Modern Art done by three leading contemporary designers, Norman Ives, Almir Mavignier and Massimo Vignelli, will be exhibited at the State University College Art Gallery, New Paltz, from Jan. 10 through Wednesday, Jan. 24.

The exhibition includes posters designed since 1960 for art exhibitions as well as commercial advertisements, book jackets, symbols for corporations and products, brochures, and other printed material.

Although the three designers all stress good design without loss of message as their primary concern, they each emphasize different means of attracting the eye and uniting form and message, said Dr.

Peter Bohan, College Gallery director.

Vignelli creates strong and unusual patterns with letter forms, and when using a pictorial image, closely coordinates them so that the two reinforce each other. Mavignier's use of light with his abstract images creates a constant visual movement through an interplay of surface and depth. Ives stresses use of the single letter or form, which is often designed as a symbol, and also makes optimum use of striking color combinations.

The works were selected from the permanent and study collections of the Museum of Modern Art.

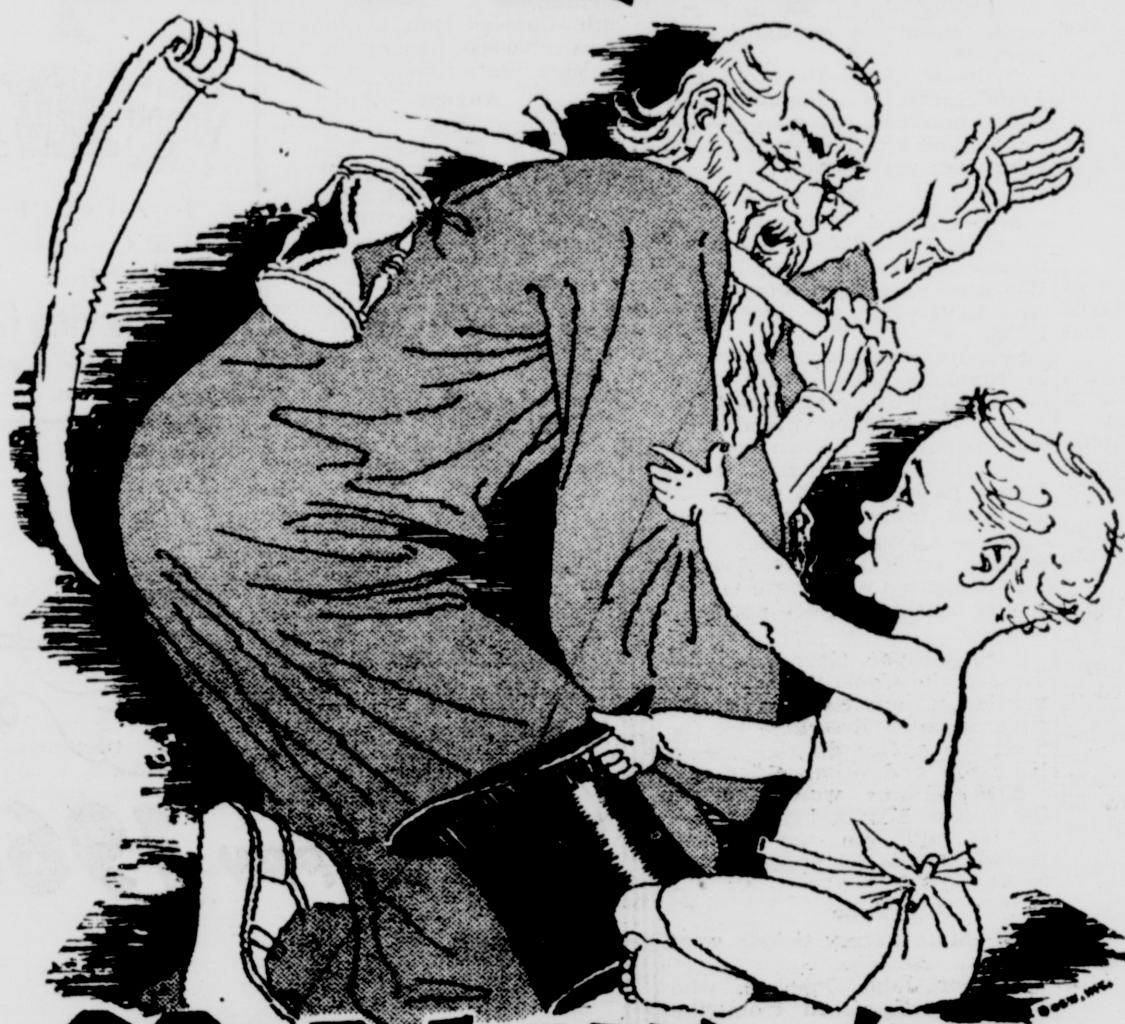

Gallery hours are 9 to 9 weekdays and 9 to 3 Saturdays.

UR: An Orphan in the Fall

25-KINGSTON DAILY FREEMAN, DEC. 30, 1967

By HUGH REYNOLDS

"Aldermen, urban renewal was your baby . . . When a baby is growing it is sometimes necessary to change the baby's formula. (Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan in Mayor's Message to Common Council, Jan. 1, 1967.

The aldermen took Mayor Garraghan's words to heart, the "baby took a severe beating in the summer and wound up an orphan in the fall.

Things looked pretty good, on the surface, at least, for the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency in January of this year. On the 5th the agency advertised for bids on loans amounting to over six million dollars to continue work in Broadway East. Its director, Eric Hemphill, considered by many to be a top man in his field, noted that the program was ahead of schedule.

The agency had as its chairman, Frank A. Reis. Members included David C. Schechter, William T. Mahoney, Vincent G. Connelly and Edmund S. Peppard. S. James Matthews was the attorney. All are gone now.

Changed Formula

The Common Council wasted no time in "changing the baby's formula. At the Jan. 11 meeting Alderman Clifford Sinsabaugh (D-Fifth Ward) took the floor, called urban renewal in Broadway East a "farce" and said, "If nothing is done I will call a special meeting and ask the governor to dissolve the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency."

Joseph Epstein (D-Sixth Ward), commenting on debris lying around for weeks, said "immediate action must be taken."

Emillio Primo (D-Fourth Ward) promised to "offer a resolution that will shock the Council." Primo's resolution came seven months later, at the July meeting, calling for the suspension of Hemphill's salary.

The public controversy quieted down for awhile but flared again March 30. It was on this date that Reis gave notice of a letter from the Department of Housing and Urban Development in New York City stating that the federal government was somewhat less than happy over the agency's relocation procedures. Reis interpreted the letter as "advisory" not critical. T. Robert Gallo (D-Ninth Ward) and future alderman-at-large, saw it differently.

Termed a Farce

Gallo termed relocation a "farce" and blamed Hemphill. Alderman Gallo then reminded the public of a resolution of his, passed unanimously by the Council in July of 1966, that called for temporary halting of demolition in Broadway East. Gallo said the resolution was "ignored by the agency" whose only information given out was "false promises and half-truths."

Concluding his March 30 statement, Gallo said, "I wonder who is going to do what to turn urban renewal in Kingston back to the people."

On April 12, Hemphill issued a dual statement on demolition and relocation which he would basically stick to throughout the fast-approaching controversy.

Hemphill on demolition: "Once a building is down and rubble removed, sites are left in reasonably clear and safe condition. We shall continue our inspection to see that there are no hazardous conditions left."

Critics of urban renewal found wide discrepancies between what Hemphill said, what the agency did and what was actually done in regards to demolition.

Hemphill on relocation: "If a condition arises where a family cannot be relocated in accordance with regulations (a large enough apartment and reasonable rent), a delay results. Obviously the agency cannot evict such a family and would only evict if they fail to accept a new apartment would meet relocation criteria, or if they fail to pay their rent or maintain a nuisance in their apartments."

No Evictions

The agency obviously had the option to evict tenants for the above reasons, but Chairman Reis said no one had ever been evicted.

The letter of May 3rd from DHUD greased the skids for the urban renewal agency. It noted that inspections by New York of 30 units disclosed six of them as substandard. It stated that no effective staging plans for demolition and relocation had been implemented by the agency. In addition, the agency was charged with failure to properly maintain existing apartments under its domain, thus allowing them to deteriorate into substandard dwellings unsuitable for relocation purposes.

The hand writing was on the wall, but at the time, urban renewal officials failed to read it correctly. The critics did, however. They had all they needed.

Gallo came out with a demand May 12 that elected officials be placed on the urban renewal agency. This statement, for the most part, caused little reaction but its implications were significant. In order to place elected officials on the urban renewal agency, some members of that agency would have to go. The only members the critics were really after were Reis and Hemphill. Furthermore, the placing of elected officials on the agency would violate the law whereby no office holder could hold an agency position while in office. In order to do that, Sinsabaugh's statement about asking the Governor to dissolve the agency would have to be seriously considered.

Resnick Enters

With the groundwork laid, enter Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick, May 23. Resnick intimated that Washington would fix any blame for the failure of urban renewal on Mayor Garraghan and the Common Council.

Shortly before Resnick's entry, which would ultimately prove significant, Mayor Garraghan had been quoted as saying urban renewal was not his (the mayor's) responsibility and that he (the mayor) should not have to take the blame.

In his May 23 statement Resnick expressed "surprise that Garraghan had never solicited his (Resnick's) help in urban renewal when Garraghan's predecessor, John Schwenk, had asked and received assistance from the Congressman."

The next day DHUD suspended Hemphill's salary, an act which was termed "a flagrant misuse of power by Reis."

On May 31 Resnick charged secrecy in urban renewal records, a charge refuted by the agency and its counsel Matthews. Resnick wanted all reords open, including those which disclosed prices paid for land acquisition Downtown. The agency refused.

The Council got back into the act at its June 6 meeting as President Francis R. Koenig, in a rare move, came down to the floor to say that if the agency cannot function as a unit then there should be some definite changes from the director on down.

Most aldermen were in agreement with Koenig, Sinsabaugh repeating his charges of urban renewal being a farce. Raymond Armater (R-11th Ward), however, advocated working with the agency and solving problems mutually. Armater would prove a dove on urban renewal all through the controversy.

Repeats Charges

Nine days later, Congressman Resnick, in a letter to Gallo, repeated his charges of secrecy in urban renewal and reasoned legal fees paid to Matthews might just be the reason. Resnick estimated Matthews had collected "in excess of $10,000" for his legal advice to the agency and closings on property. The agency denied this stating that Matthews didn't receive $10,000; he was paid more than $19,000, which the agency insisted, he was entitled to.

On June 27 the Council called for the opening of KURA books on all matters except property appraisals, which was basically the stand the agency was taking. John Naccarato (R-Third Ward) said when he was chairman of the Council's urban renewal committee, books were always open to him.

After a walking tour June 24 of Broadway East, Resnick called for the firing of Hemphill. Gallo said he was in complete accord with the congressman on Hemphill. Also on the tour besides Gallo were Epstein, Primo, and Sixth Ward Supervisor Irving Bell. All were Democrats. It was observed at the time that no Republicans made the tour.

Congressman Resnick announced a congressional inquiry into urban renewal on the 27th. The day later the agency opened its records. This was the complete disclosure called for by Resnick including land prices and salaries of agency employees.

The actual inquiry lasted well into the afternoon with Congressman Resnick questioning all the principals. Also questioned was Alexander Yosman, executive director of the Kingston Housing Authority. It had been charged that lack of cooperation between the housing authority and the urban renewal agency was a major factor in lack of sufficient housing in Broadway East for those persons who had to be relocated.

James Sweeney, an official from DHUD saw the demolition problem as one of inadequate inspection and a failure to "get tough" with the demolisher in regards to his contract.

Resnick recommended the end to all demolition and the meeting of minds of disputing agencies. Shortly after he again called for the firing of Hemphill in addition to the resignation of the entire urban renewal agency.

The rest of the summer involved agency efforts to meet New York Requirements and meetings between the agency and businessmen and DHUD. Those meetings by businessmen caused controversy of their own. All sessions were strictly private with a spokesman for the merchants telling the press that releases would be made at the appropriate time. The press is still waiting for news releases on those summer meetings as winter starts in Kingston.

Another thing the public is still waiting for is the results of a Common Council investigation of the infamous "papers out the window" controversy.

It happened at the July 12 meeting of the Council which was full of surprises Mayor Garraghan had addressed the council in joint caucus. He reportedly told them that George Beaton of the DHUD office in New York had told the mayor that DHUD would look upon the suspension of Hemphill's salary by the Council as an act of cooperation.

Sometime between the time Alderman Primo took the floor with the resolution to suspend tion which was lying out in the rain.

Democrats, following Garraghan's dictate were prepared to suspend Hemphill's salary. Primo took the floor and read his resolution.

Raymond Armater (R-11th Ward), then dropped the bomb. He held a piece of paper up with a phone number on it. George Beaton's. Armater said he had called Beaton and Beaton said the New York office had not told Garraghan to try to influence the council.

After a short recess the salary suspension went through in one of the Council's rare straight party votes.

Little Too Quiet

Things quieted down in August, in fact, a little too quiet for the agency. Officials of the agency complained that they were being ignored by DHUD in New York. DHUD had issued a lengthy report on just what they considered wrong in Kingston and what they expected to be done to correct it. KURA communications to DHUD went unanswered.

Word finally filtered back to Kingston that in order for urban renewal to resume Hemphill and Reis had to go.

They did, within 24 hours of each other along with the rest of the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency.

Hemphill quit on Sept. 4, effective Sept. 11 for a job as executive director of the Charleston, W. Va. Urban Renewal Agency. He was wished the best of luck by Garraghan and Resnick.

Reis and Vincent Connelly resigned the next day with bitter blasts blaming Resnick for the whole controversy. Peppard,

43 Killed on Roads

By WALTER S. CLARK JR.

The Grim Reaper moved with slower pace along highways in Ulster County in 1967 than a year ago when the traffic death toll hit a high of 56—equal to the 1965 record—compared to 42 in 1964 and 30 the previous year.

Available statistics show the toll of deaths on the highways in this county as 1967 neared the end was 43, including 11 women. Last year 21 women died in traffic accidents in the county.

Thirty-three of the traffic fatalities this year were residents of Ulster.

Four multiple-death fatalities claimed the lives of 11 persons. Five of the 11 were teenagers who were killed in the county's most gruesome traffic accident of the year. Four of the young people were residents of this county.

Nine persons were killed in accidents that occurred on Route 28, and Route 209 motor vehicle mishaps took the lives of five persons. In 1966, 14 persons were killed in Route 209 accidents.

Although only four collisions on Route 209 resulted in death, state police of the area and sheriff's deputies investigated a countless number of mishaps on that highway which area residents feel should be surveyed, widened and straightened to alleviate hazardous conditions for motorists.

Seven multiple death crashes in 1966 in the county resulted in 20 deaths.

The worst highway accident in 1967 occurred on Aug. 20, when a car occupied by teenagers careened out of control on Route 28 in Shandaken and hit a culvert. Five deaths were recorded, and other occupants of the vehicle were injured seriously.

The year 1967 recorded its first fatality on Jan. 14. The victim was a well-known 52-year-old Saugerties pharmacist who was killed in a two-car collision on Route 32 near Quarryville while on his way home from work in a Kingston pharmacy.

A 25-year-old Kingston policeman was killed on Oct. 8 when his car crashed into a stonewall at the entrance to the Marist Brothers Novitiate on Route 9W in West Park.

A 22-year-old city fireman was fatally hurt on Oct. 15 when a car in which he was a passenger hit a tree off Route 375 near Woodstock. The driver was killed and the fireman died in Albany Medical Center Hospital on Nov. 10.

While nine persons were killed as the result of mishaps on Route 28 this year, only three deaths were recorded in 1966.

The only traffic fatality in the City of Kingston this year occurred on Pine Street on Jan. 17. The victim—a 10-year-old boy bicyclist. Two traffic deaths were recorded in the city last year. On Jan. 29, 1966, a 67-year-old Kingston man was killed when run over by a car on East Chester Street, and on Aug. 21 of that year a 2-year-old Bohemia, L. I. girl ran from behind a parked car on Lafayette Avenue, and was killed by another vehicle.

A 65-year-old New York City man was the only victim of a traffic death on the Thruway this year. He was on his way home from a convention upstate when he and others stopped at a restaurant north of Kingston and was fatally injured when hit by a passing car on the superhighway. Six traffic deaths were recorded by Thruway authorities in 1966 as the result of five accidents.

The most tragic month of 1967 for traffic deaths was August. Ten fatalities were listed. Seven deaths were noted on highways in the county in October, five in May and four each for the months of September and November. Three highway fatalities were recorded for the months of January, February and April, two in March and one each for June and July.

In 1966, 11 deaths were listed for each of the months of January and August, and 10 in July of last year. February and November, 1966 passed without a single highway fatality.

With the Aug. 20 five-death crash on Route 28 on record as the worst multiple death mishap of the year, others in the county occurred on May 7, when a man and woman were killed in a car-truck crash on Albany Avenue, Town of Ulster; on Oct. 15 when two young Kingston men were fatally hurt when their car left Route 375 near Woodstock and slammed into a tree; and on Nov. 25 when two men were killed in a two-car collision on Route 209.

In addition to the Aug. 20 fatality on Route 28, others that occurred on that highway included a one-car accident on April 17, when a Woodstock woman was killed as her car skidded into a tree near Zena; a two-car crash near the intersection of Route 375 in West Hurley on Sept. 13 which took the life of a 79-year-old Kingston woman; a one-vehicle mishap in the town of Olive on Oct. 31 in which a 45-year-old Shokan woman was fatally hurt when her car hit a utility pole near her home; and a truck accident on Nov. 30 which resulted in death for a 56-year-old West Hurley man after the vehicle skidded on ice-covered pavement.

Traffic fatalities on Route 209 this year included the death of a 10-year-old Stone Ridge boy who died April 20 of injuries suffered when hit by a car not far from his home; the death of a 39-year-old Brooklyn woman who was the victim of a two-car head-on crash near Ellenville on July 31, and the death of a 78-year-old Pataunkunk man whose car went out of control and slammed into an embankment and he swatted a moth in the vehicle on Aug. 31.

During the year 30 fatal accidents each involved one car. Three pedestrians were killed this year compared to six in 1966.

There were three fatalities involving bicycles, including the 10-year-old Kingston boy killed by a car on Pine Street. On May 4 a 5-year-old Tillson boy was injured fatally when hit by a car, and on May 27 a New Paltz boy died of injuries sustained in a car-bicycle mishap.

Ten persons were victims of fatal accidents on Route 9W last year. Four died of injuries sustained in car crashes on that highway in 1967.

GOPers Reelected 4 in County; Dems Kept City Hall and Council

By CHARLES BERMPOHL

The inability to judge effects of the Vietnam War or the defeated Democratic-pushed proposed new state constitution does not diminish the fact that the Ulster County Republican organization scored the most impressive victory in an off-year election in living memory.

Reelected were four county officers including Judge Raymond J. Mino, District Attorney Joseph P. Torraca, Treasurer Fred H. DuBois and Coroner Arthur C. Chipp, along with 28 GOPers, out of a possible 33, to the new county legislature.

As for the towns, the Democrats managed to pick up one more supervisorship with the tally now standing at 14 Republicans and six Democrats.

City of Kingston's 13 wards

County Treasurer

FRED H. DuBOIS

kept its division at eight Democrats and five Republicans, and the city reelected its Den. Mayor Raymond W. Garra, by an outstanding 2,626 plurality. Democratic Liberal T. Robert Gallo came in as alderman-at-large (president of the Common Council) with exactly 800 votes in the black.

There were Republican upsets in the county, however, and traditional GOP strongholds suffered.

Peter M. Williams, long-time supervisor of Saugerties, and running for the dual posts of town supervisor and county legislator under the controversial local law 1 formula, lost his supervisor's post to Democrat A. Michael Schovel. Williams was also defeated in his bid for the legislature.

Saugerties Democrats also got two men elected to the legislature. Both Paul Brazier and Richard Thornton won out over Williams and William Brinnier.

Two reasons for the GOP defeat in Saugerties rested in the sharp factionalism in the town's Republican management, and the political astuteness of Democratic town leader Frank Costello, a relative newcomer to the political arena.

So decisive was the Republican split in Saugerties that a "Republicans for Democrats" group was formed which managed to collect signatures of GOPers who pledged themselves to vote a straight Dem ticket on the town level.

The Saugerties Republican defeat hit at the leadership of Williams and the town organization head, attorney Louis P. Francello.

Another Republican luminary to be defeated was Charles Relyea of Hurley, a former chairman of the county Board of Supervisors. Democrat Robert Schneller was elevated to the post of supervisor.

A big name Democrat who lost was George M. Barthel, seeking reelection as the full-time supervisor of Wawarsing and also making a bid for a seat on the county legislature.

Barthel was defeated by Republican Frank W. Harkin.

Both the Barthel and Williams defeats underlined the apparent unpopularity of politicians who sought the dual-post positions. Not one of the four men running for supervisor and county legislator were elected to both posts, even though Democrat George Majestic of Gardiner and Republican Gerald DeFelice of the Town of Rosendale were both reelected as supervisors of their respective towns.

Changes in Leadership

The 1967 election year saw changes in the leadership of the Republican and Democratic organizations. Both Republican Kenneth L. Wilson of Woodstock and Democrat Aaron E. Kline of Kingston were replaced as chairmen — Wilson in the process of not seeking reelection to the post, and Kline by a voting defeat in a county convention.

Republicans chose John B. Sterley, former city chairman, to take the county helm and the Democrats ousted Klein in favor of Dr. Gerald P. Gorman, a Kingston surgeon and Democratic city chairman.

Changed also was the structure of county government, with the old County Board of Supervisors being replaced by a County Legislature made up of representatives from 12 legislative districts.

The new legislators will receive $2,000 annually for their efforts on the legislature, the same sum the supervisors collected on the old board.

It is difficult to say what the new town supervisors will do, besides falling under the vague heading of administrator of town affairs. The supervisor's biggest job was the power of his influence wielded on the old board, for the Board of Supervisors could favor a town or a district when voting on county bills. The town supervisor will no longer have prime legislative responsibility and informed sources have suggested that he may be relegated to the position of lobbyist.

Impressive Mino Victory

Judge Mino headed the top of the Republican ticket and the size of his victory was more than impressive. He defeated Democratic-Conservative challenger John J. Schick with an 8,883 margin, and he came out of the City of Kingston with a 1,364 vote lead.

The small party endorsements may have made the difference in a tight race, however, because Schick received 2,669 Conservative votes to Mino's 870 Liberal ballots.

What may have been significant in the Schick defeat was the attitude of Democratic Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick to the challenger's candidacy. The Ellenville Democrat was against it from the beginning, and Schick almost declined the Democratic nomination because of it.

The Congressman was strongly opposed to Schick's acceptance of the Conservative endorsement, as he was to Mayor Garraghan's acceptance of the same nod. In Garraghan's case, however, Resnick's hostility to Democrats accepting Conservative endorsements did not appear to make much difference.

To understand what the vote, and the resulting Republican victories mean, it must first be understood that Ulster County has been a Republican stronghold for as far back as anyone cares to remember. Although Democratic enrollment has climbed in the past 10 years, with a corresponding decline in GOP registration, it has not been what one could call an extremely dramatic rise. The gradual climb reflects, of course, the influx of out-county residents, especially people from New York City who are drawn to those lucrative job offerings at the giant IBM corporation.

Such people would, it is believed, take their big city voting habits with them along with their desire to see the county offer more services.

The relative affluence of such people, however, would tend to have them think more conservatively while their demands for larger and better schools, recreation facilities, and areas made conducive for industrial expansion might have them believe that a government that promises to "keep taxes in line" may be missing the boat on county growth.

If the voting picture appears complex, it should be kept in mind that the Republican organization in the county has, over the victorious years, managed to attract most of the talent that was available. A young lawyer, fresh out of law school, and intent upon a career of public service, would be likely to join the Republican party as the most heavily insured way of getting into such a career.

One great difficulty among Ulster's Democrats is the problem of attracting the talent without this built-in insurance policy, and with each successive victory for the Republicans the potential is there for more money coming into the party treasury.

1968 Portends Interest

It should be noted that Congressman Resnick proved that a Democrat with an almost unlimited supply of funds, one who is willing to exhaust himself in a campaign effort, can, if he has the program the voters want, prove that the solid rock of area Republicanism is just a little bit porous.

The fact is, however, that Resnick is a millionaire, and there aren't too many Democrats in the 28th Congressional District with that kind of financial reserve.

It will be interesting to see what November of 1968 will bring with a congressional race looming again, along with a battle for the sheriff's post.

GOPers Reelected 4 in County; Dems Kept City Hall and Council

By CHARLES BERMPOHL

The inability to judge effects of the Vietnam War or the defeated Democratic-pushed proposed new state constitution does not diminish the fact that the Ulster County Republican organization scored the most impressive victory in an off-year election in living memory.

Reelected were four county officers including Judge Raymond J. Mino, District Attorney Joseph P. Torracca, Treasurer Fred H. DuBois and Coroner Arthur C. Chipp, along with 28 GOPers, out of a possible 33, to the new county legislature.

As for the towns, the Democrats managed to pick up one more supervisorship with the tally now standing at 14 Republicans and six Democrats.

City of Kingston's 13 wards

feat in Saugerties rested in the sharp factionalism in the town's Republican management, and the political astuteness of Democratic town leader Frank Costello, a relative newcomer to the political arena.

So decisive was the Republican split in Saugerties that a "Republicans for Democrats" group was formed which managed to collect signatures of GOPers who pledged themselves to vote a straight Dem ticket on the town level.

The Saugerties Republican defeat hit at the leadership of Williams and the town organization head, attorney Louis P. Francello.

Another Republican luminary to be defeated was Charles Relyea of Hurley, a former chairman of the county Board of Supervisors. Democrat Robert Schneller was elevated to the post of supervisor.

A big-name Democrat who lost was George M. Barthel, seeking reelection as the full-time supervisor of Wawarsing and also making a bid for a seat on the county legislature.

Barthel was defeated by Republican Frank W. Harkin.

Both the Barthel and Williams defeats underlined the apparent unpopularity of politicians who sought the dual-post positions. Not one of the four men running for supervisor and county legislator were elected to both posts, even though Democrat George Majestic of Gardiner and Republican Gerald DeFelice of the Town of Rosendale were both reelected as supervisors of their respective towns.

Changes in Leadership

The 1967 election year saw changes in the leadership of the Republican and Democratic organizations. Both Republican Kenneth L. Wilson of Woodstock and Democrat Aaron E. Kline of Kingston were replaced as chairmen — Wilson by a process of not seeking reelection to the post, and Kline by a voting defeat in a county convention.

Republicans chose John B. Sterley, former city chairman, to take the county helm and the Democrats ousted Klein in favor of Dr. Gerald P. Gorman, a Kingston surgeon and Democratic city chairman.

Changed also was the structure of county government, with the old County Board of Supervisors being replaced by a County Legislature made up of representatives from 12 legislative districts.

The new legislators will receive $2,000 annually for their efforts on the legislature, the same sum the supervisors collected on the old board.

It is difficult to say what the new town supervisors will do, besides falling under the vague heading of administrator of town affairs. The supervisor's biggest job was the power of his influence wielded on the old board, for the Board of Supervisors could favor a town or a district when voting on county bills. The town supervisor will no longer have prime legislative responsibility and informed sources have suggested that he may be relegated to the position of lobbyist.

Impressive Mino Victory

Judge Mino headed the top of the Republican ticket and the size of his victory was more than impressive. He defeated Democratic-Conservative challenger John J. Schick with an 8,883 margin, and he came out of the City of Kingston with a 1,364 vote lead.

The small party endorsements may have made the difference in a tight race, however, because Schick received 2,669 Conservative votes to Mino's 870 Liberal ballots.

What may have been significant in the Schick defeat was the attitude of Democratic Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick to the challenger's candidacy. The Ellenville Democrat was against it from the beginning, and Schick almost declined the Democratic nomination because of it.

There were Republican upsets in the county, however, and traditional GOP strongholds suffered.

Peter M. Williams, long-time supervisor of Saugerties, and running for the dual posts of town supervisor and county legislator under the controversial local law 1 formula, lost his supervisor's post to Democrat A. Michael Schovel. Williams was also defeated in his bid for the legislature.

Saugerties Democrats also got two men elected to the legislature. Both Paul Brazier and Richard Thornton won out over Williams and William Brinnier.

Build Several New Schools; UCCC Phase 1 Completed

By RAY TYSON

An expanding population and overcrowded classrooms were met in part this year with the creation of several new schools and expansion programs with others.

Senator Jacob K. Javits was guest speaker at the dedication of Ulster County Community College in Stone Ridge on Oct. 21. Phase I of the college project included the All-Purpose building, the Science-Technology building, and the Business Building.

The $4.7 million contract for Phase II of the college project was signed on June 12 by Supervisor Peter Savago (R-New Paltz) chairman of the Board of Supervisors. The contract was with Albert E. Milliken, architect.

The fourth primary structure of Phase I was the Macdonald DeWitt Library and the Administration Building. Work on Phase II is expected to start soon. Phase II as visualized will consist of a College Center including an auditorium, student lounge, cafeteria, book store, and student public-relations rooms, a computer center for instructional and educational purposes, secretarial laboratories, a machine graphics laboratory, laboratories and classrooms for engineering and industrial technology, classrooms and specialized facilities for liberal arts; a gymnasium and outside area for physical education instruction and athletic use. Liberal Arts facilities for art and music, a reading skills laboratory and administrative facilities.

Academy will be accepted. The first year grades seven through ten will be offered. Later, it is hoped the academy will conduct classes for a junior-senior high school.

As of yet, a definite site for the school's location has not been decided. Until a site is chosen, the school will lease a facility for two years. Classes will commence in Sept.

The academy, although independent, will aim at educating a cross section of students. Scholarship commitments have been made to insure service to all.

New Marlboro School

In April of 1966, work began on a new high school for Marlboro. Sept. 11, the school opened its doors to 432 students. The building's capacity can accommodate more than 1,000.

Containing a modern swimming pool and planetarium, the school is considered one of the best equipped in the area. The old high school has since been converted into The Middle School, containing grades 6-8. Construction continues to meet an anticipated opening in Sept. of 1968 of the M. Clifford Miller Junior High School. Once completed, the building will contain 1,000 students at Lake Katrine.

Bids for construction of the new Zena Elementary School were recently solicited by the Kingston School District.

23-Acre Tract

The new school, to be located at a 23-acre tract near the junction of County Roads 52 and 75, will hold 14 classrooms with facilities to eventually expand to a 21-room structure.

In addition, the school will house a two station gym and combination cafeteria-auditorium. Bids were opened Dec. 15.

A new 600-pupil high school is presently under construction in New Paltz. Located on South Putt Corners Road, one mile south of Route 299, the school is scheduled to open its doors in Sept. of 1968.

The old high school, situated on the corner of Main Street and Manheim Boulevard, will contain grades 4 through 8. The junior high will be housed also in the high school and the entire complex will be called the New Paltz Central School District.

And so, with eyes to the future, various Ulster County school districts today have taken the steps necessary to insure this generation and future children the very best in complete and modern facilities.

Mahoney and Schecter's resignations followed.

New Agency Critics

Sept 12 Mayor Garraghan appointed a new agency but there was still plenty of critics around. The mayor appointed G. Scott Alexander, Henry Milonig, Mrs. Alexander (Cora) Miller, Peter Keresman and City Treasurer Orrie Riehl.

Questions were raised as to why Garraghan appointed his city treasurer and Riehl promptly resigned stating he wasn't going to take any abuse.

Riehl's resignation came on the 15th. Garraghan appointed Elmore Yallum on the same day. Matthews also resigned and was replaced by Special City Court Judge George Beck.

Things are comparatively quiet on the urban renewal front. Downtown, at any rate. Uptown is starting to get a few headlines what with John Machione (R-12th Ward) and Garraghan having differences over what is to be demolished and what is to be rehabilitated.

The principals have scattered. Resnick is on his annual trip to Vietnam to visit the troops. When he gets home, he'll have the problem of getting the Democratic nomination to oppose Senator Jacob Javits in next year's election.

Frank Reis is back in his liquor store, on a full time basis. He expresses no bitterness, says he's just as interested in urban renewal today as he was when he served as chairman.

Hemphill Doing Nicely

Hemphill says he's doing quite nicely. Charleston has a booming urban renewal program and its $19,000 a year executive director is "really wrapped up in it."

He told The Freeman, in an exclusive interview, that Charleston has some $20 million in UR projects in both the execution and planning stage.

One phase of the program has been completed. It cost Charleston about $400,000, according to Hemphill, but already $12,000,000 worth of construction has been completed.

Did Hemphill have any comments after three months away from Kingston? "Not really. I'm not bitter about it. I'd just like to forget it."

Would he blame anyone for what happened to him and his agency in Kingston? "No. But here's something of interest. I went to the Charleston Council for the first time with an amendment last week. They have 24 members on the Council, 12 Republicans and 12 Democrats plus a Republican mayor. The vote in favor of the amendment was 25-0."

Jan. 30, the Harry L. Edson Elementary School opened its doors following a year and a half of construction.

Constructed under a bond issue totaling $1,430,000, the 28-room school has a capacity of accommodating 700 pupils. BONANZA—Charles P. Holt, Shokan, the $100,000 New York State lottery winner exhibits a fancy smile, the stub of his winning ticket and a horseshoe for good luck. A Syracuse University junior, Holt, who planned to marry a hometown girl, Frances Ganci, acknowledged his winnings would make the financial end of the marriage "a little bit easier". He said he would also continue working at IBM as a student associate. (Freeman photo by Kruh)

FAIR DAY—Ulster County opened the doors of its sprawling, attractive and permanent new home to an eager and waiting crowd of fairgoers. A liberal sprinkling of children added immediately to the excitement of the opening day's events at the New Paltz site. Although the location was different, having been moved from Kingston's Forsyth Park after 30 years, the fair remained in the best tradition of agricultural, educational and commercial exhibitions. Located two miles south on the old Kings Highway, the site of the County Home and Farm grounds, it also offered huge bonuses in ample parking, a new horse shoe ring and $8,000 in premiums. (Freeman photos by Wagenfohr)

The Vietnam War Struck Home, Eight GIs From Ulster County Killed

By RAY TYSON

War's realities struck home this past year as Vietnam claimed eight Ulster County men's lives.

The 1967 total exceeded by three the previous year's figure. During 1966, five area men died in combat.

Five From City

Of those killed, Kingston headed the list with five dead. Saugerties, Highland and Wallkill each lost one.

Twenty-one-year old Army Specialist Paul Benkert of Saugerties was 1967's first fatality. He was reported killed Jan. 7, when a vehicle in which he was a passenger ran over a land mine. Specialist Benkert was serving with the 519th Military Battalion. He had been in Vietnam a year and was slated to return shortly.

Five days later, Jan. 12, Kingston's first casualty was Class Charles W. Johnson, 31, was killed by a mine fragment while on night patrol.

Sgt. Johnson, a former Kingston High School football star and a 11-year army veteran, arrived in Vietnam during August of 1966. He was serving with the 25th Cavalry Division.

March 1, Private First Class Robert L. Johnson, 20, of Grand Street, Highland, became the county's third Vietnam fatality while serving with the 3rd Company, Second Battalion of the 8th Cavalry Division. He was killed by shrapnel.

Posthumously, he received the Bronze Star, Purple Heart, National Defense Medal, Combat Infantry Medal, Vietnam Service Medal, the Vietnam Wound Medal, and the Cross of Gallantry.

Killed Near DMZ

Marine Corporal Chester J. Joy, 19, Kingston, was the fourth combat death of 1967. He died following gunshot wounds to the head during an attack below the demilitarized zone in Quang Tri Province on May 16.

Joy, serving with F Company, Second Battalion of the 26th Marines, arrived in Vietnam during the Fall of 1966. He was scheduled to return in August.

Boatswain's Mate Michael Peter Carr, 20, of 12 Ora Place, Kingston, raised the area's Vietnam dead to five. He was killed July 22 while serving on a patrol boat in hostile waters. He had been in Vietnam about a year, having enlisted in the Navy two years ago.

Private Robert Tubby, 20, of 102 Clinton Avenue, listed missing in action Aug. 6, was confirmed dead Aug. 9, boosting the total area Vietnam dead to six.

Pvt. Tubby was serving his tour of duty with the harbor master at Saigon where he handled ammunition and supplies. He was last seen standing on a pier site. Tubby joined the Army Dec. 8, 1966 and took his basic training at Fort Dix.

Nineteen-year old Marine Lance Corporal Richard W. Crawford, Wallkill, killed Sept. 6 while on patrol near Kuang Thien, pushed the total to seven.

The Wallkill Marine enlisted July 27, 1966, and was sent to Vietnam on January 23. Crawford trained at Parris Island, S. C., and Camp Lejeune, N. C.

Memorial Fund Followed

On Sept. 6, Private First Class Michael Santoroski suffered severe leg wounds from a boobytrap while on an assault mission which resulted in the surgical amputation of both legs below the knees. Twenty-days later he died from his wounds at a hospital in the Philippines.

Santoroski was drafted into the Army on March 9 and left the United States for Vietnam Aug. 6. A memorial fund has been named in his honor to raise money for area schools who have had former students killed in the war.

Sparked Gift Drive

The death of Marine Corporal Chester Joy sparked a drive for the collection of gifts for area soldiers serving in the conflict zone.

Sponsored by Ulster County Hose No. 5, the original plan had been to send a flag to Cpl. Joy for his unit's use. When news came that Joy had been killed, the flag sending was combined with collections for the county men in Vietnam.

Ulster County's first war fatality came on March 17, 1966, when Private First Class James R. Reilly of Esopus was killed. The total is now 13 men dead for 1966-67.

Civic, Political Leaders Claimed by Death

By JEAN F. DOLAN

Deaths during 1967 took a number of outstanding civic and political leaders from the Ulster County scene.

Miss Katherine M. Murphy, long identified with health projects, died Aug. 27. She retired in 1957 after 23 years as executive secretary of Ulster County TB and Health Association. In recognition of her many years of service to public health and mental health, a

Columnist

joint memorial has been started by the Ulster County Association for Mental Health in cooperation with other agencies.

Two 'Boosters' Die

In September, Ulster County's Mr. Republican, Jesse McHugh, died while addressing a Town of Shawangunk party caucus. The 59-year-old McHugh was vice-chairman of county Republicans at the time of his death and had served as chairman of the board of supervisors during his 14-year tenure as supervisor of the Town of Shawangunk. He had been active in politics for more than 30 years.

November took its toll as two real boosters of the area succumbed.

Sophie Miller, chronicler of Hudson Valley history in The Freeman column, Do You Remember, died Nov. 10 and immediately plans for a fitting memorial were put forth by the city beautification committee. A drive is currently underway to raise funds for a willow-lined entrance to her beloved Kingston Point Park. Friends and organizations have contributed to the tree-planting project. More money is needed and contributions large and small may be sent to The Freeman for the Sophie Miller Memorial Fund.

On Thanksgiving Day, MacDonald DeWitt, outstanding libel lawyer and the man who did so much to help establish Ulster County Community College, died at the age of 89. A native of Kingston, DeWitt returned to this city after an illustrious law career which spanned more than 60 years. He generously endowed the local college of which he was trustee and later honorary trustee. The library at the Stone Ridge campus is named in his honor.

The Vietnam War Struck Home, Eight GIs From Ulster County Killed

By RAY TYSON

War's realities struck home this past year as Vietnam claimed eight Ulster County men's lives.

The 1967 total exceeded by three the previous year's figure. During 1966, five area men died in combat.

Five From City

Of those killed, Kingston headed the list with five dead. Saugerties, Highland and Wallkill each lost one.

Twenty-one-year old Army Specialist Paul Benkert of Saugerties was 1967's first fatality. He was reported killed Jan. 7, when a vehicle in which he was a passenger ran over a land mine. Specialist Benkert was serving with the 519th Military Battalion. He had been in Vietnam a year and was slated to return shortly.

Five days later, Jan. 12, Kingston's first casualty was Class Charles W. Johnson, 31, was killed by a mine fragment while on night patrol.

Sgt. Johnson, a former Kingston High School football star and a 11-year army veteran, arrived in Vietnam during August of 1966. He was serving with the 25th Cavalry Division.

March 1, Private First Class Robert L. Johnson, 20, of Grand Street, Highland, became the county's third Vietnam fatality while serving with the 3rd Company, Second Battalion of the 8th Cavalry Division. He was killed by shrapnel.

Posthumously, he received the Bronze Star, Purple Heart, National Defense Medal, Combat Infantry Medal, Vietnam Service Medal, the Vietnam Wound Medal, and the Cross of Gallantry.

Killed Near DMZ

Marine Corporal Chester J. Joy, 19, Kingston, was the fourth combat death of 1967. He died following gunshot wounds to the head during an attack below the demilitarized zone in Quang Tri Province on May 16.

Joy, serving with F Company, Second Battalion of the 26th Marines, arrived in Vietnam during the Fall of 1966. He was scheduled to return in August.

Boatswain's Mate Michael Peter Carr, 20, of 12 Ora Place, Kingston, raised the area's Vietnam dead to five. He was killed July 22 while serving on a patrol boat in hostile waters. He had been in Vietnam about a year, having enlisted in the Navy two years ago.

Private Robert Tubby, 20, of 102 Clinton Avenue, listed missing in action Aug. 6, was confirmed dead Aug. 9, boosting the total area Vietnam dead to six.

Pvt. Tubby was serving his tour of duty with the harbor master at Saigon where he handled ammunition and supplies. He was last seen standing on a pier site. Tubby joined the Army Dec. 8, 1966 and took his basic training at Fort Dix.

Nineteen-year old Marine Lance Corporal Richard W. Crawford, Wallkill, killed Sept. 6 while on patrol near Kuang Thien, pushed the total to seven.

The Wallkill Marine enlisted July 27, 1966, and was sent to Vietnam on January 23. Crawford trained at Parris Island, S. C., and Camp Lejeune, N. C.

Memorial Fund Followed

On Sept. 6, Private First Class Michael Santoroski suffered severe leg wounds from a boobytrap while on an assault mission which resulted in the surgical amputation of both legs below the knees. Twenty-days later he died from his wounds at a hospital in the Philippines.

Santoroski was drafted into the Army on March 9 and left the United States for Vietnam Aug. 6. A memorial fund has been named in his honor to raise money for area schools who have had former students killed in the war.

Sparked Gift Drive

The death of Marine Corporal Chester Joy sparked a drive for the collection of gifts for area soldiers serving in the conflict zone.

Sponsored by Ulster County Hose No. 5, the original plan had been to send a flag to Cpl. Joy for his unit's use. When news came that Joy had been killed, the flag sending was combined with collections for the county men in Vietnam.

Ulster County's first war fatality came on March 17, 1966, when Private First Class James R. Reilly of Esopus was killed. The total is now 13 men dead for 1966-67.

Civic, Political Leaders Claimed by Death

By JEAN F. DOLAN

Deaths during 1967 took a number of outstanding civic and political leaders from the Ulster County scene.

Miss Katherine M. Murphy, long identified with health projects, died Aug. 27. She retired in 1957 after 23 years as executive secretary of Ulster County TB and Health Association. In recognition of her many years of service to public health and mental health, a

Columnist

joint memorial has been started by the Ulster County Association for Mental Health in cooperation with other agencies.

Two 'Boosters' Die

In September, Ulster County's Mr. Republican, Jesse McHugh, died while addressing a Town of Shawangunk party caucus. The 59-year-old McHugh was vice-chairman of county Republicans at the time of his death and had served as chairman of the board of supervisors during his 14-year tenure as supervisor of the Town of Shawangunk. He had been active in politics for more than 30 years.

November took its toll as two real boosters of the area succumbed.

Sophie Miller, chronicler of Hudson Valley history in The Freeman column, Do You Remember, died Nov. 10 and immediately plans for a fitting memorial were put forth by the city beautification committee. A drive is currently underway to raise funds for a willow-lined entrance to her beloved Kingston Point Park. Friends and organizations have contributed to the tree-planting project. # Fire Losses in Millions

By Walter S. Clark Jr.

Deaths, arsonists, lightning and in some instances — carelessness — figured in fires in Ulster and neighboring counties that snuffed out the lives of 23 persons and skyrocketed property losses in the millions of dollars in 1967.

The fire death toll in the same area of the Mid-Hudson Valley encompassing Ulster, Columbia, Dutchess, Greene and Orange counties in 1966 was four.

Multiple Deaths

Six multiple-death fires were recorded.

The most tragic fatal blaze claimed the lives of a Columbia County mother and five of her 13 children on Nov. 17.

A triple-death blaze resulting from an exploding stove in a camp trailer headed for Expo '67 was recorded by Greene County authorities on July 15.

The White Horse Inn on Route 375 between West Hurley and Woodstock, owned by George Schonger was destroyed by fire on the morning of Dec. 15. The loss was estimated at more than $75,000.

New Paltz lost its theater in a fire on March 22 that also damaged David Gill's Art and Book Shop in Main Street.

Lomontville was deprived of its only store owned by Assistant Fire Chief Henry Cahill and a family was made homeless by fire that swept a frame building on June 15.

Bowling establishments were destroyed by fires in Palenville on Jan. 30 and Rosendale on Nov. 4.

Some Incendiary

A countless number of fires — including many in the Urban Renewal area in downtown Kingston — were termed incendiary and police agencies investigated — but there were no arrests despite the efforts of authorities.

Fire officials and volunteer firefighters in their command in county communities, devoted considerable time in training to improve their knowledge of combatting fires and the use of apparatus and firefighting equipment during the year.

The year 1967 was in its infancy when the first fatal fire occurred and destroyed a trailer home in Ellenville, claiming the life of 80-year-old Charles Schumann on Jan. 3.

Two children of Mrs. Cynthia Shorts perished in a fire in their apartment home over Hop-O-Nose in Catskill on Jan. 26.

Four persons died in fire that destroyed the Summitville home of the Coon family on March 5, and a 51-year-old Dutchess County man lost his life in a fire that destroyed his trailer home in Pleasant Valley on the same day.

Two Same Day

On April 9 Mrs. Bertha Barton, 74, died in a fire at her Millerton home in Dutchess County, and the following day Bert Blatchly, Jr., 23, of New Paltz, was fatally burned when gasoline exploded as he was welding a part to a car.

Mrs. Frederick Appleton, 55, wife of the superintendent of the Highland Training School for Boys in the Town of Lloyd, died in a fire at her residence on the school grounds on April 14.

Two sons of William Margopoulos died in a fire at their home on Whitney Drive, Zena, on April 30 and their father suffered burns as he made futile attempts to save them.

Tragedy marred a trip to Expo '67 planned by a Glen Rock, Pa., family when a cook stove exploded and spread flames through their camp trailer on Route 9W in Greene County on July 15, taking the lives of a mother and two of her children.

Fire that swept through the Wayside Inn on Canal Street, Ellenville, on Oct. 25 caused the deaths of an employee and a Saugerties man, a guest at the hotel. A dozen fire companies battled the flames for hours.

On Nov. 17, a Valatie mother and five of her 13 children died in a fire that destroyed their frame home in that Columbia County community.

$100,000 Fire

Major fires and estimated losses where available included:

The Hideaway Tavern building, Hyde Park, $100,000 on Feb. 18; a conflagration that swept a restaurant, market, shoe store and apartments on Main Street, Beacon, on Feb. 22; Mike's Restaurant in Rhinebeck on April 12; a cooler and buildings at Hepworth's farm in Milton on March 19; a large dairy barn in which three pigs perished on the Clifford M. Barber property at Shawangunk Valley on May 9; the Daitch Shopwell Food Chain building on Main Street, Ellenville, upwards of $100,000 on May 14; buildings on Old Route 9W at Milton occupied by the Hudson Valley Products, Inc. on May 27—upwards of $400,000.

Other major blazes included: a large frame barn on the Charles Hoffman farm in Red Hook on June 17—$100,000; a barn, 17 calves and 15,000 bales of hay owned by Jacob Barnett on Hurley Avenue on June 22—upwards of $75,000; a two-alarm fire in buildings occupied by Kingston Lumber Co. off Fair Street Extension on July 23; buildings at the Atlas Cement Co. plant in Greenport, Columbia County on Aug. 29—$500,000; Kingston City Electric and Supply Co. on Grand Street, city, on Sept. 3—$150,000; city firemen battled flames for 10 hours to quell a fire at the Jova Brick Works on North Street on Sept. 9; six fire companies fought a fire that raced through a cold storage plant on the William Palladino fruit farm at Highland on Oct. 1; flames caused a loss of $125,000 at the Roswell Miller mansion in Millbrook on Nov. 3 and the Rosendale Lanes were razed by fire on Nov. 4 causing a loss of more than $100,000; the Boyce Chevrolet property in Red Hook was destroyed on Nov. 6—$85,000 to $90,000.

All Forces Used

Kingston firefighters combined all available forces—paid and volunteer—on more than one occasion to quell multiple alarm fires. On Jan. 24 a two-alarm blaze caused a loss estimated at $70,000 to the Mission Wood Products property on Washington Avenue. The building, formerly occupied as Bethany Chapel, was an uptown landmark.

A two-alarm fire on May 1 swept the long frame building off Central Broadway formerly occupied as the New York Central Railroad freight house, and on July 23 firemen fought a two-alarm blaze on the Kingston Lumber Company property off Fair Street extension.

On the same day, eight fire companies battled a major blaze in a three-story building at High Falls. The Palenville Bowling Center was destroyed by fire which also damaged the Policano Restaurant on Main Street in that hamlet on Jan. 30.

On Jan. 4, 110 students were evacuated from the Napanoch School without incident and kindergarten classes were canceled after a flashback in the furnace, and two days later Centerville firemen quelled fire in the former Fletcher Simpson garage on Pine Lane in Saugerties, which was used for storing hay.

Ulster Hose Co. 5 battled fire for two hours at the office and warehouse of Leon Wilbur & Son, and four days later Centerville Vols were dispatched to the home of Mrs. Louise Hammond, Route 212, Snyder Flats, to quell a fire that caused extensive damage.

Fire in an apartment house at 58-60 Franklin Street owned by Mrs. Samuel Marcus, was quelled by Kingston firefighters the Kingston Music Center on Albany Avenue, March 4. The following day farm buildings owned by former Ulster county sheriff Howard Anderson, Berne Road, Kerhonkson, were hit by fire.

February was a hard month for firemen in the city and county communities.

Two vacant houses owned by Hudson Cement Co. were razed by flames on Feb. 5 and Kingston fire officials said the fire was the work of an arsonist. Kerhonkson firemen battled flames that destroyed the Davis family residence, Highland Avenue, Kerhonkson, on Feb. 7. The fire occurred during a blizzard and the cold weather froze pumps on fire apparatus. The upper floor and attic of the Schoonmaker home on Highland Avenue Kerhonkson were damaged by fire the same day.

One of 50 Suspected

On Feb. 14 a suspicious fire was quelled in a house at 120 Broadway owned by the Urban Renewal Agency. It was one of more than 50 suspicious fires in the city in a little more than a year. A 9-room house owned by John Dellay Realty Co. on Campbell Street, Rosendale, was damaged by fire to the extent of more than $10,000 on Feb. 14.

The following day the attic of a 2-story frame house at 4 Park Street, Kingston, was gutted by fire. The house is owned by Mrs. Edna Hymer. On Feb. 16, wind blew down the chimney of a house trailer owned by Bernie Weber on Walton Lane, Hurley, causing a backdraft and fire.

The Squires Inn on Route 9, Hyde Park, was heavily damaged by fire on Feb. 17, and the next day a $110,000 blaze hit the Hideaway Tavern on Route 9 in that township. Five families were made homeless by the fire and damage was reported in a radio and television store and a realtor's office.

A three-car garage, sedan and a truck were destroyed on Feb. 18 as fire occurred in a 3-car garage on Meade Street, owned by Leroy Brown of 326 Clifton Avenue, Kingston. Several fire units fought a losing battle as flames swept the Tall Trees mansion at Hughsonville in Dutchess County on the same day.

Fire erupted on Feb. 21 and damaged the Ellenville Terminal diner and the next day a three-story frame building on Foordmore Road, Kerhonkson, was the scene of a fire that started in a third floor apartment. The Bait Bucket Shop and taxi office owned by Kenneth Osterhoudt were damaged and flames spread to a nearby building and threatened a two-story building owned by Henry Feinberg and occupied by the Feinberg Tire Service.

Heavy Damage

Fire in a house on Cherry Hill Road, Kripplbush, left the family of John Flynn homeless on Feb. 25. Damage was estimated between $16,000 and $18,000. A barn on the property of the Fox Hill Dude Ranch on Briggs Street, Ellenville, was destroyed by flames on Feb. 26, and the same day Poughkeepsie firemen fought a two-alarm fire at 1 Falkill Place, which left four families homeless. Nine firemen and a resident were injured.

Kingston firemen made a good stop at a fire at the Perpetua Manufacturing Co. Inc., 519 Broadway on Feb. 26. The next day flames roared out of control and destroyed a two-story frame unoccupied house on Route 212, Centerville, owned by Fred Lucente of Saugerties, former owner of the Cloverleaf Hotel in that village. Twenty junk cars were involved in an incendiary blaze in a junkyard off Hasbrouck Avenue, city, Feb. 28.

An investigation was launched by authorities on March 3 after fire occurred in the ERA Electric Co. warehouse on Neighborhood Road, Lake Katrine. On the same day Kingston firemen checked a fire that broke out in the attic of the Evangelical Lutheran Church Sunday School building at 28 Roger Street. Ulster Hose quelled a fire at the Kingston Music Center on Albany Avenue, March 4. The following day farm buildings owned by former Ulster county sheriff Howard Anderson, Berne Road, Kerhonkson, were hit by fire.

Escaped Burns

On March 7, Walter Kraft of Saugerties escaped burns when fire erupted in the tractor of a propane gas truck he was driving near Brattleboro, Vt. Anne Marie's Sportswear Shop on Main Street, New Paltz, was the scene of fire on March 18, and on March 19 the Driftwood Lounge, former Lipani Hotel on South Ohioville Road, New Paltz was hit by fire. John Lipani, owner, estimated the loss at $40,000.

The Len Wynkoop residence on Route 52, Ellenville, and a one-story shed in Hasbrouck Park, Kingston, were damaged by fires on March 20. Fire officials said the latter blaze was incendiary and called for an investigation by city detectives. Fire damaged the home of John Plonski at Hickory Bush, on March 21.

The new Ulster County garage opposite the Old Quarryville school at Centerville was the scene of a fire on March 24 and five days later fire destroyed a barn and damaged two other frame buildings on the property of Albert J. Tremper, Bruyn Turnpike, Crawford. Two dogs perished in the flames.

On April 4, Ulster Hose Co. 5 battled a serious woods fire in the vicinity of the Route 9W Drive-in and the Ulster Town dump, where the fire originated. Three firemen were injured on April 12, while assisting at the scene of a costly fire at Mike's Restaurant at Rhinebeck.

Hotel Annex Blaze

Fire broke out in the Governor Clinton Hotel annex, the former General Sharp home-stead in Kingston on April 26. Ronald Hucker, 16, of Lake Hill, was painfully burned in fire that destroyed a bungalow on Silver Hollow Road, Town of Woodstock, on April 30. On that day Mrs. Juanita Woolsey, 74, of Port Ewen, suffered burns while preparing a grill fire near her home.

Woman Dies

Tragedy again hit Ulster

County on May 1. Mrs. Louise Kullig, 75, died while attempting to extinguish fire in brush at her New Paltz home. On May 3 the home of John M. Margot, Route 32, New Paltz was damaged by fire and the following day a two-story barn on the Herbert Wells property in West Shokan was destroyed by flames.

Two frame barns on the former farm of the late Henry Clum on Shults Road, West Camp, were swept by fire on May 11, and flames leveled a barn on the Brooker T. Pierce farm in Gardiner on May 17. Fire in the new press at the Poughkeepsie Journal on the same day delayed publication of the newspaper.

Flames devoured a large barn on the William Coy fruit farm in Clintondale on May 18, and on May 25 an incendiary fire damaged a house owned by the KURA at 230 Hasbrouck Avenue. A bungalow on the former Carelas property at Blue Mt. was the scene of a fire the same day. On May 28 a one-story frame building near Wayside Inn on Canal Street Ellenville, on Oct. 25 caused the deaths of an employee and a Saugerties man, a guest at the hotel. A dozen fire companies battled the flames for hours.

On Nov. 17, a Valatie mother and five of her 13 children died in a fire that destroyed their frame home in that Columbia County community.

$100,000 Fire

Major fires and estimated losses where available included:

The Hideaway Tavern building, Hyde Park, $100,000 on Feb. 18; a conflagration that swept a restaurant, market, shoe store and apartments on Main Street, Beacon, on Feb. 22; Mike's Restaurant in Rhinebeck on April 12; a cooler and buildings at Hepworth's farm in Milton on March 19; a large dairy barn in which three pigs perished on the Clifford M. Barber property at Shawangunk Valley on May 9; the Daich Shopwell Food Chain building on Main Street, Ellenville, upwards of $100,000 on May 14; buildings on Old Route 9W at Milton occupied by the Hudson Valley Products, Inc. on May 27—upwards of $400,000.

Other major blazes included: a large frame barn on the Charles Hoffman farm in Red Hook on June 17—$100,000; a barn, 17 calves and 15,000 bales of hay owned by Jacob Barnett on Hurley Avenue on June 22—upwards of $75,000; a two-alarm fire in buildings occupied by Kingston Lumber Co. off Fair Street Extension on July 23; buildings at the Atlas Cement Co. plant in Greenport, Columbia County on Aug. 29—$500,000; Kingston City Electric and Supply Co. on Grand Street, city, on Sept. 3—$150,000; city firemen battled flames for 10 hours to quell a fire at the Jova Brick Works on North Street on Sept. 9; six fire companies fought a fire that raced through a cold storage plant on the William Paladino fruit farm at Highland on Oct. 1; flames caused a loss of $125,000 at the Roswell Miller mansion in Millbrook on Nov. 3 and the Rosendale Lanes were razed by fire on Nov. 4 causing a loss of more than $100,000; the Boyce Chevrolet property in Red Hook was destroyed on Nov. 6—$85,000 to $90,000.

All Forces Used

Kingston firefighters combined all available forces—paid and volunteer—on more than one occasion to quell multiple alarm fires. On Jan. 24 a two-alarm blaze caused a loss estimated at $70,000 to the Mission Wood Products property on Washington Avenue. The building, formerly occupied as Bethany Chapel, was an uptown landmark.

A two-alarm fire on May 1 swept the long frame building off Central Broadway formerly occupied as the New York Central Railroad freight house, and on July 23 firemen fought a two-alarm blaze on the Kingston Lumber Company property off Fair Street extension.

On the same day, eight fire companies battled a major blaze in a three-story building at High Falls. The Palenville Bowling Center was destroyed by fire which also damaged the Policano Restaurant on Main Street in that hamlet on Jan. 30.

On Jan. 4, 110 students were evacuated from the Napanoch School without incident and kindergarten classes were canceled after a flashback in the furnace, and two days later Centerville firemen quelled fire in the former Fletcher Simpson garage on Pine Lane in Saugerties, which was used for storing hay.

Ulster Hose Co. 5 battled fire for two hours at the office and warehouse of Leon Wilbur & son, and four days later Centerville Vols were dispatched to the home of Mrs. Louise Hammond, Route 212, Snyder Flats, to quell a fire that caused extensive damage.

Fire in an apartment house at 58-60 Franklin Street owned by Mrs. Samuel Marcus, was quelled by Kingston firefighters on Jan. 25.

February was a hard month for firemen in the city and county communities.

Two vacant houses owned by Hudson Cement Co. were razed by flames on Feb. 5 and Kingston fire officials said the fire was the work of an arsonist. Kerhonkson firemen battled flames that destroyed the Davis family residence, Highland Avenue, Kerhonkson, on Feb. 7. The fire occurred during a blizzard and the cold weather froze pumps on fire apparatus. The upper floor and attic of the Schoonmaker home on Highland Avenue Kerhonkson were damaged by fire the same day.

One of 50 Suspected

On Feb. 14 a suspicious fire was quelled in a house at 120 Broadway owned by the Urban Renewal Agency. It was one of more than 50 suspicious fires in the city in a little more than a year. A 9-room house owned by John Dellay Realty Co. on Campbell Street, Rosendale, was damaged by fire to the extent of more than $10,000 on Feb. 14.

The following day the attic of a 2-story frame house at 4 Park Street, Kingston, was gutted by fire. The house is owned by Mrs. Edna Hymer. On Feb. 16, wind blew down the chimney of a house trailer owned by Bernie Weber on Walton Lane, Hurley, causing a backdraft and fire.

The Squires Inn on Route 9, Hyde Park, was heavily damaged by fire on Feb. 17, and the next day a $110,000 blaze hit the Hideaway Tavern on Route 9 in that township. Five families were made homeless by the fire and damage was reported in a radio and television store and a realtor's office.

A three-car garage, sedan and a truck were destroyed on Feb. 18 as fire occurred in a 3-car garage on Meade Street, owned by Leroy Brown of 326 Clifton Avenue, Kingston. Several fire units fought a losing battle as flames swept the Tall Trees mansion at Hughsonville in Dutchess County on the same day.

Fire erupted on Feb. 21 and damaged the Ellenville Terminal diner and the next day a three-story frame building on Foordmore Road, Kerhonkson, was the scene of a fire that started in a third floor apartment. The Bait Bucket Shop and taxi office owned by Kenneth Osterhoudt were damaged and flames spread to a nearby building and threatened a two-story building owned by Henry Feinberg and occupied by the Feinberg Tire Service.

Heavy Damage

Fire in a house on Cherry Hill Road, Kripplebush, left the family of John Flynn homeless on Feb. 25. Damage was estimated between $16,000 and $18,000. A barn on the property of the Fox Hill Dude Ranch on Briggs Street, Ellenville, was destroyed by flames on Feb. 26, and the same day Poughkeepsie firemen fought a two-alarm fire at 1 Falkill Place, which left four families homeless. Nine firemen and a resident were injured.

Kingston firemen made a good stop at a fire at the Perpetua Manufacturing Co. Inc., 519 Broadway on Feb. 26. The next day flames roared out of control and destroyed a two-story frame unoccupied house on Route 212, Centerville, owned by Fred Lucente of Saugerties, former owner of the Cloverleaf Hotel in that village. Twenty junk cars were involved in an incendiary blaze in a junkyard off Hasbrouck Avenue, city, Feb. 28.

An investigation was launched by authorities on March 3 after fire occurred in the ERA Electric Co. warehouse on Neighborhood Road, Lake Katrine. On the same day Kingston firemen checked a fire that broke out in the attic of the Evangelical Lutheran Church Sunday School building at 28 Roger Street.

Ulster Hose quelled a fire at the Kingston Music Center on Albany Avenue, March 4. The following day farm buildings owned by former Ulster county sheriff Howard Anderson, Berme Road, Kerhonkson, were hit by fire.

Escaped Burns

On March 7, Walter Kraft of Saugerties escaped burns when fire erupted in the tractor of a propane gas truck he was driving near Brattleboro, Vt. Anne Marie's Sportswear Shop on Main Street, New Paltz, was the scene of fire on March 18, and on March 19 the Driftwood Lounge, former Lipani Hotel on South Ohioville Road, New Paltz was hit by fire. John Lipani, owner, estimated the loss at $40,000.

The Len Wynkoop residence on Route 52, Ellenville, and a one-story shed in Hasbrouck Park, Kingston, were damaged by fires on March 20. Fire officials said the latter blaze was incendiary and called for an investigation by city detectives. Fire damaged the home of John Plonski at Hickory Bush, on March 21.

The new Ulster County garage opposite the Old Quarryville school at Centerville was the scene of a fire on March 24 and five days later fire destroyed a barn and damaged two other frame buildings on the property of Albert J. Tremper, Bruyn Turnpike, Crawford. Two dogs perished in the flames.

On April 4, Ulster Hose Co. 5 battled a serious woods fire in the vicinity of the Route 9W Drive-in and the Ulster Town dump, where the fire originated. Three firemen were injured on April 12, while assisting at the scene of a costly fire at Mike's Restaurant at Rhinebeck.

Hotel Annex Blaze

Fire broke out in the Governor Clinton Hotel annex, the former General Sharp homestead in Kingston on April 26. Ronald Hucker, 16, of Lake Hill, was painfully burned in fire that destroyed a bungalow on Silver Hollow Road, Town of Woodstock, on April 30. On that day Mrs. Juanita Woolsey, 74, of Port Ewen, suffered burns while preparing a grill fire near her home.

Woman Dies

Tragedy again hit Ulster

County on May 1. Mrs. Louise Kullig, 75, died while attempting to extinguish fire in brush at her New Paltz home. On May 3 the home of John M. Margot, Route 32, New Paltz was damaged by fire and the following day a two-story barn on the Herbert Wells property in West Shokan was destroyed by flames.

Two frame barns on the former farm of the late Henry Clum on Shults Road, West Camp, were swept by fire on May 11, and flames leveled a barn on the Brooker T. Pierce farm in Gardiner on May 17. Fire in the new press at the Poughkeepsie Journal on the same day delayed publication of the newspaper.

Flames devoured a large barn on the William Coy fruit farm in Clintondale on May 18, and on May 25 an incendiary fire damaged a house owned by the KURA at 230 Hasbrouck Avenue. A bungalow on the former Carelas property at Blue Mt. was the scene of a fire the same day. On May 28 a one-story frame building near

Some 'Firsts' Marked Saugerties Year

By LYNN MULVANEY
The year 1967 saw Saugerties Democrats break through a traditionally solid Republican wall for the first time in local history when they elected a supervisor and two of four county legislators to the county and town boards. A. Michael Schovel, Saugerties business man unseated Republican incumbent Peter Williams who had served the township for 18 years. Schovel won with a plurality of 627 votes and Williams also lost his bid for one of the four county legislator posts.

Another Saugerties first was the creation of a town planning board. The group sought the advice of the county planners in its organization.

Certainly not for the first time, residents of Barclay Heights found water flowing out of their faucets and complaints to the town resulted in the flushing of hydrants.

In other news, a school bond issue of $1,795,000 squeaked through 787 to 775. The proposal called for an addition of 10 rooms at the Mt. Marion School, 17 at Glasco and more space for other facilities at both schools.

Jack O. Pakanen was reelected president of the Saugerties Central School District Board of education, his sixth term on the board and third term as president.

The Saugerties Coast Guard Station at Lighthouse Drive opened, a $127,000 facility, the Jaycees honored Lawrence Cahill as man of the year and Colleen Buono was named annual winner of the DAR good citizenship award.

The Augustinians of the Assumption, better known as the Assumptionists closed their novitiate in the fall and prepared for a move to Boston, Mass.

At Ferroxcube, 398 employees objected by a 32-vote margin a proposal to be represented by one of two unions for purposes of collective bargaining.

George Leombruno was the third person in the history of the Saugerties Jaycees to receive the Junior Chamber of Commerce International Senaaward that can be given members of that organization.

An oil self portrait by Ross Neherm entered in the National Art contest by the Saugerties Monday Club won a $25 cash prize and second place honors for New York State.

The new Masonic Temple of Ulster Lodge 193 on Russell Street was dedicated April, this year and Dale's Sanitarium, an area landmark for three decades, closed its doors.

Trinity wrapped up the Saugerties Dartball League pennant in mid-March by taking a clean 3-0 sweep over Malden-West Camp.

In undisputed lead for most of the season, the Trinity men emerged grand champions for the second year in a row.

More than 100 youngsters competed in a poster contest aimed at keeping Saugerties clean and tidy. The four top winners were Linda Leimgruber, Amy Bragg, Janice Welton and Linda Sinnott.

Saugerties hero, Major Roger H. D. Donlon, 33-year-old Congressional medal of honor winner, was honored by both Houses of the Legislature which passed resolutions in his behalf.

"Thank you from thinking of me. God bless you all. It feels good to know that there are people thinking of you at home. It makes the job a little easier over here."

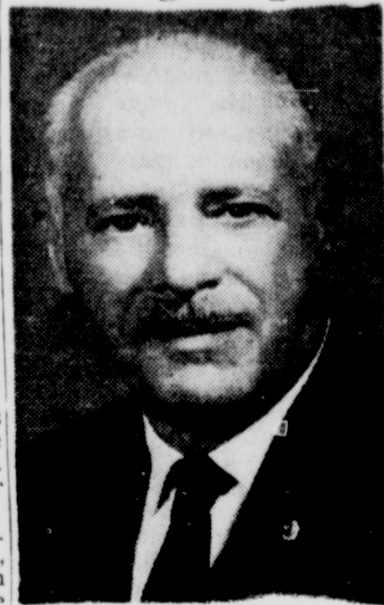

That is what Pfc. Werner E. Wirths of Mt. Marion Park, Saugerties wrote from Vietnam last January in a letter to the Dads of Foreign Wars in Saugerties, thanking them for Christmas gifts.

On May 13, Pfc. Wirths, by then promoted to a corporal, was coming home on a stretcher, having been shot in the leg, the Freeman reported.

Fire Chief August Fellows was honored at a dinner in March by the Saugerties Fire Department. Mayor Cornelius Cox presented a past chief's badge and gold watch to Fellows and fire commissioner, Donald McCaig presented him a plaque from the village board.

Harry Anders defeated incumbent Henry P. Breitenbach 757-659 for one board of education seat while in a tight race, Mrs. Feeney.

Long Reign

PETER WILLIAMS

Ann F. Karashay edged Mrs. Velma R. Wright, 708-701.

Three persons were battling for the third seat, the victor being George B. Polythress who won over Edwin E. Olsen, 645-583. Bruce K. Dederick had 204 votes in his bid for a seat in the 3,752 student district.

Flags got into the news. The Knights of Columbus denounced flag burnings and desecration and the DAR donated a number of flags to the Saugerties Central School system.

Richard P. Smith of Saugerties was named a trustee of Ulster County Community College to succeed Bernard A. Feeney.

1967: New Doors Opened in Woodstock

By LYNN MULVANEY

Nineteen hundred and 67 opened new doors in Woodstock — doors at the Historical Society Museum, the new Overlook Methodist Church, the library, Mid-Hudson Repertory Theatre and a host of others.

Rotron Inc. announced a $2,500,000 loan to finance a new plant in the Town of Olive and a funding program for the new Christian Life and Study Center of the Woodstock Reformed Church was begun.

Names in News

In town and out, Woodstockers themselves made news. Bob Dylan spoke out in the pages of the New York Daily News and the now defunct World Journal Tribune "about life since his motorcycle crackup."

James Prideaux, Playboy magazine author, playwright and actor, had two of his one-act plays produced by Performing Arts of Woodstock. "The Bench" and "The Postcards" had first night performances at the Little Theatre-off-the-Green in May and June.

Playboy Magazine also carried, in January, a ten-page color and black and white article in which Woodstock artist Ben Johnson was featured.

Dr. Karl Schutz, a Vienna-born physician was awarded a 50-year citation by the Medical Society of New York and a proposed design for a summer house in Woodstock won an award for designer, Arthur May of New York City in the 14th annual design awards contest sponsored by Progressive Architecture.

G. I. Cohen was voted the best speaker in the annual Kingston Toastmaster's speech contest and Mabel Marsh's bequest of $60,000 to the Woodstock Library specified enlargement of the library, in particular an addition in the colonial style.

Leon P. Carey was elected president of the 1,500 member New York State Postmaster's Association and the Herminie E. Kleinert award, a annual prize for local sculptors and painters was awarded to Dan Gottschalk for 1967.

On School Front

On the school front, Nancy Swinder and Cynthia Schreiner were Onteora's top graduates; Dr. George R. Sullivan resigned as superintendent in June and Karen Stern was named delegate to Empire Girls State. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Fred Stern, 7 Broadview Road.

Sharon Smith of Willow and Kathy Fran Elliott of Woodstock were nursing scholarship winners and the Onteora Board of Education sold the Morgan Hill schoolhouse.

The Kingston Consolidated School system engaged as architect for the building of the new Zena Elementary School and Glenford-Ohayo Mountain area residents protested removal of a child from the West Hurley School to Woodstock School.

Onteora Central School Board voted a $3 million budget, up $459,824 and the school bus transportation furor ended with capitulation to contract demands by area transportation suppliers.

The school board vote was okayed despite protests lodged by incumbent candidates Herbert J. Epstein and Albert Sampsen.

The Legion post celebrated its 48th birthday. Mrs. Barbara Matthews of Woodstock, was appointed a trustee of Olana, former Hudson Valley home of 19th century artist Frederick Church and Paul DeLisio was named Jaycee president. Mrs. J. Robert Wood was elected president of the Woodstock League of Women Voters, John Stefano and Rodney (Mike) Earnest were named co-chairman of the Town of Woodstock Recreation Commission.

Elected

The golfing grandmother returned to the Ulster County Women's golf Association trail after a long absence, but with her winning habits still in tact. Mrs. A. J. "Wiggie" DeLisio carded a 42-41-83 over her home layout at Woodstock Country Club to carry a three-stroke lead into the final round at Wiltwyck Country Club.

The Hudson Valley Repertory Theatre had its premiere season, presented two plays this fall and has plans to continue in the early part of 1968.

GOP Landslide

On the political front, incumbent supervisor, Republican William R. West was elected as legislator and headed a GOP landslide in which all parts were captured. Milton Houst won the supervisor post over William F. Sheehan, 1,457 to 985.

And, a 2:30 a. m. telephone call from a Florida ham radio operator was the assurance Anthony DeLisio needed that his son, Stephen and family of Fairbanks, Alaska were safe from the flood that ravaged that city earlier in the week. DeLisio had been trying to reach his son by phone for three days.

Peak Sports Year for 1967

BY BOB HOYT
Associated Press Writer

1967, a good year for sports in New York State, appears to have paved the way for a banner year in 1968.

Syracuse University, with its penchant for producing at least one top-notch football player each season, must find a replacement for All-America Larry Csonka, the pile-driving fullback who graduates in June.

For Cornell's hockey team, the future looks completely bright. The Big Red, rebounding from the end of a 19-game winning streak that stretched back over two seasons, won the ECAC Christmas Tournament and appeared headed for another big season and possible second consecutive national championship.

In basketball, Niagara, behind national scoring leader Calvin Murphy, a sophomore, may be headed back to the prominence it once knew.

Here are some of the highlights of the past year:

Football:

Larry Csonka, a line-busting fullback for Syracuse set a new school rushing record of 2,722 yards, shattering Floyd Little's mark of 2,704.

Syracuse, as usual, ended the season tops among the upstate teams, with a record of eight wins and only two losses and a 34-14 upset of fourth-ranked U.C.L.A.

Csonka was named to the All-America team and designated player of the year in Division One of the Eastern College Athletic Conference.

Rochester linebacker Dave Ragusa was a first-team Little All-America selection, while defensive safetyman Mike Johnston of Alfred was a second team choice.

Colgate will have a new coach next season. Neil Wheelwright was named to take over for Hal Lahar, who is stepping down to devote full time to his duties as Colgate director of athletics.

In the professional ranks, the surprising New York Giants finished in second place in the NFL's Eastern Conference Century Division, while the cross-town rival AFL Jets battled down to the wire with Houston for Eastern Conference honors.

On the other hand, the disappointing Buffalo Bills, who had dominated the AFL's Eastern Conference for three years, headed into the season finale with a record of four wins and nine losses.

Hockey:

Cornell University defeated Boston University by a 4-1 score last March 18 to take the National Collegiate Athletic Association's national championship.

The victory capped a season that saw the Big Red begin a 19-game winning streak. Brown ended the skein Dec. 19 by a 6-3 score. Cornell, however, has gone on this season to win the ECAC Christmas Tournament, gaining some measure of revenge in the process. The Big Red beat Brown in the tourney final, 3-2.

Basketball:

The 1967-68 college basketball season, only a few weeks old, already has produced a so-called super-star in Calvin Murphy. The 5-foot-10 Niagara sophomore scored an average of almost 49 points per game for the freshman team last season and already has taken the national scoring lead this season.

Murphy Scores 57

A 57-point effort by Murphy against Villa Madonna College Dec. 6 broke two Niagara single-game records set by Al Butler in 1959.

Syracuse University, long a breeding ground for great football players, contributed the National Basketball Association's Rookie of the Year last season in Dave Bing of the Detroit Pistons, the fifth-highest scoring rookie in NBA history.

Baseball:

The pennant race in the 84-year-old International Baseball League ended in an unprecedented tie. The Richmond, Va.,

Braves won a one-game playoff, 2-0, from the defending champion Rochester Red Wings for the title.

Buffalo finished seventh and Syracuse was eighth in the loop.

The Eastern Division champion Binghamton Triplets won a best-of-five final series over the Western Division champion Elmira Pioneers to take the Eastern Baseball League's championship.

In the New York-Pennsylvania League, the Auburn Twins won the pennant by 10½ games over Batavia.

Baseball's Hall of Fame at Cooperstown added three new members — the late Branch Rickey, Lloyd Waner and Red Ruffing.

Ely Fagan Post of Henrietta scored a 1-0 victory over Tappan Post of Staten Island to win the State American Legion Baseball Championship.

Horse Racing:

At the Saratoga Thoroughbred meeting, Damascus galloped to an impressive win in the $80,000 Travers Stake, and What A Pleasure was the winner of the $113,000 Hopeful Stake in a three-horse photo finish.

Among the biggest news to come out of the 1967 racing season was a five-day boycott in April by owners and trainers at the Aqueduct Track in New York City.

Dispute Settled

The dispute was settled when horsemen were told the New York Racing Association would provide an estimated $3.5-million in increased purses.

The Finger Lakes Track near Canandaigua ended its 125-day 1967 meeting Oct. 16, reporting the most successful season in its six-year history.

The Tax Department reports that New York realized more than $146 million from racing at the state's three thoroughbred and eight harness tracks during the past year. The proceeds, however, were about $637,000 less than last year. Weather and the horsemen's strike were blamed for the drop.

Harness racing in the state during 1967 was dominated by 2-year-old trotter Nevele Pride, owned by Nevele Acres of Ellenville. Nevele Pride was voted harness horse of the year by the U.S. Trotting Association.

The Harness Racing Commission refused to issue a license to one of the state's leading sulky drivers, Robert Shuttleworth, saying that while a licensee in 1966 he had associated with an undesirable person.

Peak Sports Year for 1967

BY BOB HOYT
Associated Press Writer

1967, a good year for sports in New York State, appears to have paved the way for a banner year in 1968.

Syracuse University, with its penchant for producing at least one top-notch football player each season, must find a replacement for All-America Larry Csonka, the pile-driving fullback who graduates in June.

For Cornell's hockey team, the future looks completely bright. The Big Red, rebounding from the end of a 19-game winning streak that stretched back over two seasons, won the ECAC Christmas Tournament and appeared headed for another big season and possible second consecutive national championship.

In basketball, Niagara, behind national scoring leader Calvin Murphy, a sophomore, may be headed back to the prominence it once knew.

Here are some of the highlights of the past year:

Football:

Larry Csonka, a line-busting fullback for Syracuse set a new school rushing record of 2,722 yards, shattering Floyd Little's mark of 2,704.

Syracuse, as usual, ended the season tops among the upstate teams, with a record of eight wins and only two losses and a 34-14 upset of fourth-ranked U.C.L.A.

Csonka was named to the All-America team and designated player of the year in Division One of the Eastern College Athletic Conference.

Rochester linebacker Dave Ragusa was a first team Little All-America selection, while defensive safetyman Mike Johnston of Alfred was a second team choice.

Colgate will have a new coach next season. Neil Wheelwright was named to take over for Hal Lahar, who is stepping down to devote full time to his duties as Colgate director of athletics.

In the professional ranks, the surprising New York Giants finished in second place in the NFL's Eastern Conference Century Division, while the Crosstown rival AFL Jets battled down to the wire with Houston for Eastern Conference honors.

On the other hand, the disappointing Buffalo Bills, who had dominated the AFL's Eastern Conference for three years, headed into the season finale with a record of four wins and nine losses.

Hockey:

Cornell University defeated Boston University by a 4-1 score last March 18 to take the National Collegiate Athletic Association's national championship.

The victory capped a season that saw the Big Red begin a 19-game winning streak. Brown ended the skein Dec. 19 by a 6-3 score. Cornell, however, has gone on this season to win the ECAC Christmas Tournament, gaining some measure of revenge in the process. The Big Red beat Brown in the tourney final, 3-2.

Basketball:

The 1967-68 college basketball season, only a few weeks old, already has produced a so-called super-star in Calvin Murphy. The 5-foot-10 Niagara sophomore scored an average of almost 49 points per game for the freshman team last season and already has taken the national scoring lead this season.

Murphy Scores 57

A 57-point effort by Murphy against Villa Madonna College Dec. 6 broke two Niagara single-game records set by Al Butler in 1959.

Syracuse University, long a breeding ground for great football players, contributed the National Basketball Association's Rookie of the Year last season in Dave Bing of the Detroit Pistons, the fifth-highest-scoring rookie in NBA history.

Baseball:

The pennant race in the 84-year-old International Baseball League ended in an unprecedented tie. The Richmond, Va.,

Braves won a one-game playoff, 2-0, from the defending champion Rochester Red Wings for the title.

Buffalo finished seventh and Syracuse was eighth in the loop.

The Eastern Division champion Binghamton Triplets won a best-of-five final series over the Western Division champion Elmira Pioneers to take the Eastern Baseball League's championship.

In the New York-Pennsylvania League, the Auburn Twins won the pennant by 10½ games over Batavia.

KHS Teams Swept Three Sports

37-KINGSTON DAILY FREEMAN, DEC. 30, 1967

Scholastic sports, gold and bowling enjoyed banner seasons in the 1966-67 campaign.

Three Kingston High schools squads swept DUSO League and Section 9 honors in basketball, cross country and golf. The basketball team also won its own holiday tournament.

Coach Jack Gilligan led the victorious basketball and cross country squads and the late Harold Hathaway piloted the golfers. The basketball team was 8-2 in the DUSO and 16-4 overall, then edged Philip Schuyler of Albany in the Holiday tournament finals.

Football honors went to Middletown in the DUSO, Rondout Valley in the UCAL and Poughkeepsie and Wappingers (tied) in the DCSL. Marlboro captured the UCAL basketball crown and beacon won its fifth straight championship in the DCSL.

Newburgh Academy captured DUSO baseball and DUSO and Section 9 track honors. Highland High was the UCAL baseball champion and Poughkeepsie led the DCSL. Wallkill (UCAL) and Wappingers (DCSL) were other track powers. Highland led the UCAL in cross country.

Middletown won the DUSO tennis championship and Kingston swept DUSO and Section 9 in golf under Coach Hathaway, who died unexpectedly only a few weeks ago.

Baseball champions were: Newburgh Academy (DUSO) Highland (UCAL) and Poughkeepsie (DCSL).

In independent basketball, a team that represented Spartan Pools and DeMicco Motors was undefeated in sweeping the YMCA fall and winter titles. A team member, Jumpin' Joe Uhl, set an all-time Y record with a 100-point effort in one game and averaged 56 points in 9 contests.

Hub Delicatessen won the Recreation Department title and Whitman Electric, paced by sensational Charlie Brown of Trenton State College (N. J.) upset Spartan Pools for the Kingston Tournament title. Mid-Hudson Conference honors went to Sullivan County Community College with a perfect 10-0 record.

Year for Randall

Men's golf was again dominated by the incomparable Wiltwyck Country Club stromaster-Leon Randall. The famed Blond Bomber, winner of more major titles than any golfer in area history, again achieved the coveted Little Slam — Herdegen Memorial (Ulster County Amateur), Wiltwyck club and Kingston Area Round Robin. He edged his clubmate and long time rival Harvey Bostic, 285-286 in the Herdegen, surprised young Ed Byman, 8 and 7, in the club finals and took the Round Robin with a record plus-33.

At Twaalfskill, Form Cough-

Courses of the future also made golf news. A Saugerties group headed by Attorney Morris Rosenblum announced opening of the new 9-hole Sawyerkill Club at Saugerties in the spring of 1968. A county syndicate revealed plans for a 9-hole layout at New Paltz for the 1969 season. The golf course is to be part of a huge sprots complex.

The Ulster County Tennis Tournament reached an all-time peak from the standpoint of quality and competition under the able direction of William Spangenberg, the tournament chairman.

Peter Zeeh of Kingston captured the men's singles and teamed with Dick Smith for the doubles crown. Kitty Fowler, who lost to Kitty Samuels of New Paltz in the women's finals, teamed with Jim Frederick of New Paltz to win the mixed doubles.

Kingston Braves, operated by Fred Davi, were awarded a franchise in the Interstate Baseball League, but the pennant went to the Winsted, Conn. team. Lions Club emerged as City Baseball League champions. Hurley captured Babe Ruth League honors.

Rondout National Bank of the Kingston American circuit won the Area Little League playoffs but the crack Highland team earned district honors then lost in regional play.

Spring Valley topped the League Division of the German-American Soccer Association, in the 1965-66 phase of the schedule. Kingston Sport Club fielded a powerful team which tied Yonkers for the first half of the 1967-68 season. Soccer league competition carries over from one year to another.

Kingston Bowling Association offered a guaranteed first prize of $1,000 in the team handicap division for the first time and Mannie's Barber Shop of Kingston plucked the prize plum with a 3108 gross. Net prize of $500 went to Miron Lumber with a 2954 score.

Larry Petersen's Girls swept both ends of the Kingston Woman's Bowling Association championships, rolling 2753 in the gross division and 2645 in net.

All-events champions were Herb Petersen with 1891 in the KBA and Rose Schatzel, 1587 in the KWBA.

The Kingston Daily Freeman, in conjunction with the Chamber of Commerce, staged the first Ulster County Individual Match Game Classic and veteran Chris Gallo won it with a rousing 1867 final block of 8 games. Jack Ferraro was the runnerup.

Two bowlers—Ralph Longendyke and Pete Fabiano—rolled perfect 300 scores.

Globetrotters Here

One of that major highlights of the 1967 sports was the appearance of the Harlem Globetrotters in Kingston in a benefit game for the YMCA in November. The globe girdling basketballers attracted more than 2,000 fans—largest indoor professional crowd in local sports history to the Kate Walton field house. They won the game, of course.

Hudson Valley Crusaders, a semi-professional football team, moved its base of operations from Poughkeepsie to Dietz Stadium in Kingston but poor attendance caused the team to fold after six games.

State Jaycees

Area Jaycees council hosted the New York State Jaycees Sports Spectacular for the second straight year. More than 300 schoolboy athletes participated in the 2-day event.

Terry Diehl of Rochester won the golf title, with Ed Byman of Kingston placing sixth. Jim Kinley, Pearl River, defeated Dave Roberts of Kingston in the singles finals. Nine records were broken and two tied in the track division of the Spectacular.

Miron Lumber of Kingston announced a $1,000 athletic scholarship for Ulster county high school athletes to be awarded at the end of the 1967-68 season.

Kingston High School added soccer and skiing to the varsity roster for the first time.

The City of Kingston built a $20,000 softball and sports complex at Block Park. All games in 1968 will be two-night doubleheaders.

Musical Drama

son.

The musical drama, directed by William Schill of Children's Theatre International, is performed by a cast of professional New York actors. The playwright and lyricist Robert do Mora has based his musical adaptation on the classic story of Hans Brinker or the Silver
Skates, written by Mary Mapes
Dodge who was recognized as a leader in the field of juvenile literature, and who edited "St.
Nicholas Magazine."

calling 914 561-0800 extension and 4:30 p. m.

Turnau Turns Up
In Met Finery

When the Turnau Opera Players (whose summertime home base is Woodstock) open their eighth winter season in Sarasota, Fla., in mid-January, Southern audiences will find one of the most interesting aspects of the production will be the costumes.

The ever-generous Metropolitan Opera has loaned the beautiful costumes originally designed for the Met National Company's production of "Madame Butterfly" to the Turnau troupe.

Sharing the title role and the Met finery in Turnau's version of the opera will be Gwen-dolin Sims and Laverne Monette, both of whom have been seen in Woodstock in the past two years. The role of Suzuki will be sung by Rosalind Hupp of the Met.

Usterites vacationing in Sarasota next month will want to spend one holiday evening seeing this excellent production which is slated to open at the beautiful Asolo Theatre there on Jan. 15 for six performances. According to the management, however, opening night is already sold out.

Upstate Date

Meanwhile, back in New York, Turnau fans who have followed the operatic troupe's development over the past decade, will be pleased to know that the company performed
"Hansel and Gretel" with the Buffalo Philharmonic late this month. The Upstate date was pinpointed for Dec. 28 and the orchestra was conducted by Melvin Strauss, a former musical director of the opera company. The Turnau cast included Anthony Safina, Kate Hearney, Rosalind Hupp and Lorine Buffington. Miss Hupp comes from the Met and Miss Buffington from the Met's Opera Studio.

Stage director for the Buffalo production was Renate Aubert Strauss, who directed
"The Rake's Progress" and
"The Stranger" in Woodstock this past summer. "Hansel and Gretel" will also be repeated this winter with the same cast in Sarasota, Fla.

Turnau Turns Up In Met Finery

When the Turnau Opera Players (whose summertime home base is Woodstock) open their eighth winter season in Sarasota, Fla., in mid-January, Southern audiences will find one of the most interesting aspects of the production will be the costumes.

The ever-generous Metropolitan Opera has loaned the beautiful costumes originally designed for the Met National Company's production of "Madame Butterfly" to the Turnau troupe.

Sharing the title role and the Met finery in Turnau's version of the opera will be Gwendolin Sims and Laverne Monette, both of whom have been seen in Woodstock in the past two years. The role of Suzuki will be sung by Rosalind Hupp of the Met.

Usterites vacationing in Sarasota next month will want to spend one holiday evening seeing this excellent production which is slated to open at the beautiful Asolo Theatre there on Jan. 15 for six performances. According to the management, however, opening night is already sold out.

Upstate Date

Meanwhile, back in New York, Turnau fans who have followed the operatic troupe's development over the past decade, will be pleased to know that the company performed "Hansel and Gretel" with the Buffalo Philharmonic late this month. The Upstate date was pinpointed for Dec. 28 and the orchestra was conducted by Melvin Strauss, a former musical director of the opera company. The Turnau cast included Anthony Safina, Kate Hearnery, Rosalind Hupp and Lorine Buffington. Miss Hupp comes from the Met and Miss Buffington from the Met's Opera Studio.

Stage director for the Buffalo production was Renate Aubert Strauss, who directed "The Rake's Progress" and "The Stranger" in Woodstock this past summer. "Hansel and Gretel" will also be repeated this winter with the same cast in Sarasota, Fla.

Movies

THE FAMILY WAY. Hayley and John Mills, plus the Boulting Brothers, make this new film a family affair. From Warner Brothers and Seven Arts, it's in Technicolor, was produced and directed by the Boulting twins, John and Roy, and is the story of newlyweds whose marriage, in the words of one character in the film, "hasn't taken on." The movie opens Sunday at the Mayfair Theatre.

Hayley Mills, now grown up and displaying marvelous new talents, stars in her first married role, and definitely grows out of her child-star image in this bittersweet comedy. Her father, the remarkably versatile John Mills, stars as her tough-but-tender father-in-law, adding another characterization to his already giant portrait gallery.

Making his motion picture debut as Hayley's bridegroom is a 23-year-old Welshman named Hywel Bennet, a young man with an off-beat attractiveness. Only two years out of the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art, he has managed to run through an astonishing line-up of television and stage roles . . . and has been described by one London reviewer as "the sexiest gentleman to arrive on the screen since Mr. Richard Burton was first flexing his compulsive charm with such enriching effect."

A Scene-Stealer

The veteran Marjorie Rhodes rounds out the film's stellar quartet with a scene-stealing performance as Hywel's mother and Mills' wife . . . and the two veterans are particularly good in a top-level breakfast conference scene as they attempt to find solutions to the marital problems of their son.

Many other parts in this truly fine film are enacted by what the screen credits list as "The People of Bolton," the town in Northern England where the picture was filmed.

"The Family Way" was written by Bill Naughton (author of "Alfie") and adventurous Paul McCartney, one of the world-acclaimed Beatles, emerges as a full-fledged motion picture composer with the musical score, his first, for the movie. Included in McCartney's vibrant, emotion-piquing score is a hit song, a romantic melody entitled "Love In the Open Air," that sets the pace for the screen romance between Miss Mills and Mr. Bennet.

HAPPINESS IS . . . It's the long, bumpy road to marital happiness that bewilders Hywel Bennett and Hayley Mills in Warner Brothers-Seven Arts' "The Family Way." The Technicolor film, directed and produced by Roy and John Boulting, opens this Sunday at the Mayfair Theatre in Kingston. John Mills and Marjorie Rhodes are cast as the parents of the groom. Paul McCartney, of Beatle fame, composed his first film score for "Way."

Six in One Bed

The basic problem of the young couple portrayed in this film would seem to start with the premise that on every wedding night there are six people in the honeymoon bed—the newlyweds and both sets of parents. And, until four of them have been kicked out, the marriage can't really begin.

To begin with, the newlyweds are forced to live in the home of the boy's parents and they soon discover that paper-thin walls, parental intrusion and a long lifetime of maladvice obstruct the consummation of the marriage. All these combine to nearly wreck the youngsters' future.

This is a daring movie in that it is a tragi-comedy that explores a subject which has never before reached the screen. In its straight-forward approach, it has captured a sense of dignity in the production and managed to present its theme with grace, humor and honesty. And it does not fall into the quicksand of becoming a pompous social tract. It simply succeeds in showing characters who work out their own problems so that children and parents alike come to a better understanding of each other.

Together, Mills and Bennett make one of the most charming and attractive couples currently to be seen on the screen, as Hayley Mills comes of age and emerges from juvenile player

ULYSSES. More than 30 years have passed since a United States District Judge lifted the ban on James Joyce's novel, Ulysses. After all that time, the book has been made into a dandy movie, which is now being reeled off at the Woodstock Theatre. Fans of Joyce will be happy to see Howth Head and the sights of Dublin, the Sandymount Tower where Buck Mulligan and Stephen Dedalus stayed, and to hear the fine Irish brogues of the ladies of the evening, their likely lads, the pub crawlers and Leopold and Molly Bloom.

All this has been left intact (the scissors of film censors notwithstanding) and in the leaving, Ulysses has plenty of fiber. The book was an unsailable 20th Century classic in spite of its four-letter words, and the movie can only be called a labor of love.

Directed by Joseph Strick (who gave us The Savage Eye and The Balcony), Ulysses attempts the well-nigh-impossible task of turning a monumental novel into a concise movie. While Strick succeeds in putting selections from the famous prose on screen and matching them up with pictures, he cannot possibly get the Joycean passion to come through intact. He does succeed, however, in giving us something that is literal, intellectual and certainly plain-spoken.

It is a movie that should

JOHN HUSTON, as Noah, prepares to send his dove from the ark in attempt to learn if floods have subsided. Huston directs and stars in "The Bible," all about how it was "in the beginning." The film, three hours long and also featuring Stephen Boyd, Ava Gardner, Richard Harris, Peter O'Toole, Michael Parks and George C. Scott, is being held over for a second week currently at Kingston's Community Theatre.

SIMONE SIGNORET offers gun to quizzical couple (played by James Caan and Katharine Ross) in the suspense thriller, "GAMES." The bizarre film is being shown tonight at the Orpheum Theatre in Saugerties. Those who read the preview in this column two weeks ago will remember it's about the sophisticated games played in a "crazy" brownstone apartment where terror keeps company with the fortune in pop and op art displayed on screen.

certainly be seen even though it is not total Joyce. Irish actor Milo O'Shea is fine as Bloom; Maureen O'Rourke is a free-wheeling Dedalus; and Barbara Jefford is a big slice of life as Molly.

Interesting, too, is the manner in which the long stream-of-consciousness passages mix word and image with a voice-over technique that does the job adequately. And, if we were disappointed somewhat in the "Nighttown" sequence (which could have used more fantasy), we were not disappointed with the film as an odyssey . . . even though it did not and could not duplicate the great book.

Elsewhere around the area, "The Bible" (reviewed here last week), continues into a second week's run at Kingston's Community Theatre. Concentrating on Genesis and the Old Testament, director John Huston has done an interesting and entertaining job of bringing the Garden of Eden, Noah's ark, and the story of Abraham to the screen.

Over at the Orpheum in Saugerties, thriller fans who like their suspense dished up well chilled will enjoy "Games," with Oscar winner Simone Signoret dealing out some surprises along with her endless tarot cards. (PREVIEWED AND REVIEWED BY TOBIE GEERTSEMA)

Art Students League Elects Everett

The 92nd Annual Membership Meeting of The Art Students League of New York and Woodstock took place in the gallery of The Art Students League, on Manhattan's West 57 Street, earlier this month. The current president, Walker G. Everett was re-elected to office for the second year in a row, and will serve, as president, through 1968.

Others elected were Frank O'Connor, to be men's vice-president; Lisa M. Specht, to be women's vice-president; and Michael Pellettieri, Marjorie P. Philippe and John Torres Jr. (This is the same slate of candidates swept into office at last year's annual meeting.)

The six, elected above, will now select six more League members to constitute the Board of Control for 1968.

The meeting also elected, on motion of the outgoing Board of Control, four well-known people—three of them artists—to Honorary Membership in The Art Students League. They are: Louise Nevelson, internationally-famed sculptress; Harry Sternberg, noted painter and graphic artist, and a popular art teacher; Ben Shahn, internationally-known painter, muralist, designer and illustrator; Joe Lowe, philanthropist, founder, with his late wife, of the Joe and Emily Lowe Foundation, benefactor of the League, of other art organizations and societies, as well as of Hofstra University, Syracuse University and the University of Miami. The first three are former students at the League.

Harry Sternberg has also been an instructor at the League for thirty years.

It should be noted in passing that the position of Honorary Member is reserved to people who have performed unusually meritorious service to American

The World of Art in Dutchess

Dutchess County does not hibernate artwise during the winter season and currently on view, or slated for viewing shortly, Ulster's neighbor is offering or will offer a galaxy of art shows and exhibitions.

A tour through galleries there makes for excellent viewing and more than a few Saturday or Sunday excursionists spend a work-free day on such treks. One might start off with the Arax Gallery on Poughkeepsie's Main Street where the December show is a Group Exhibition of Graphic Prints. Then there's the Bethlehem Art Gallery on Jackson Avenue in Vails Gate, where the display this month is a Group Exhibition of Original Paintings and Watercolors. On to the Champagnat Gallery Lounge on the Marist College campus at Poughkeepsie, which is open at all times and is now featuring an Exhibition of Drawings and Paintings by Woodstock artist Elfriede Borkmann.

ings of Various Artists; IBM Country Club Gallery, South Road, Poughkeepsie, with two one-man shows onstage: Harold McIntosh in the Lobby Gallery and Mrs. H. Edna T. Tompkins in the Cafe Gallery; Lathrop Memorial Center Art Gallery, Holiday Hills YMCA, Pawling, where members of the Dutchess County Art Association are exhibiting; and Poughkeepsie's Three Arts Gallery, on Collegeview Avenue, with its December Group Exhibition of Paintings.

As for the near future, Bennett College Art Gallery in Halcyon Hall on the Millbrook campus will have an Exhibition of African Sculpture from Jan. 4-Feb. 1; Dutchess Hall on Dutchess Community College campus will offer a Faculty Art Show, opening Jan. 3, to be followed by a Japanese Show of Prints; and Poughkeepsie's Three Arts Gallery has scheduled an Exhibition of Bronzes by Anne Wienholt for January. Last but not least, the next big Dutchess County Art Association show will be held at the IBM Country Club from Jan. 26-Feb. 14.

Art. Since the founding of the League in 1875, only 72 Honorary Members have been named.

Walker G. Everett, president, is a current student of William Draper, the portrait painter. He is an exhibiting member of the Phoenix Gallery, a gallery co-operatively run by its artist-members. Mr. Everett is a former vice-president and partner of Ted Bates and Company, well-known advertising agency. Frank O'Connor, men's vice-president, is a painter who began his professional career as a movie actor with D. W. Griffith. His wife is Ayn Rand, author of "The Fountainhead," and other works.

Lisa M. Specht, women's vice-president, is a well-known textile designer who heads her own firm in Middletown, N. Y., and lives in West Town.

Michael Pellettieri has studied for three years with Harry Sternberg, and for one year each with Edwin Dickinson and Robert Beverly Hale. He is a candidate for an MFA degree at Hunter College, University of the City of New York, and got his BA in Art at City College.

Marjorie P. Philippe, is a former student of Julian Levi, Harry Sternberg, George Grosz and Charles Alston at the League.

John Torres Jr. is a young sculptor who has won three fellowships at the Edward G. McDowell Colony, as well as numerous awards and grants from other foundations.

The 92nd Annual Membership Meeting of The Art Students League of New York and Woodstock took place in the gallery of The Art Students League, on Manhattan's West 57 Street, earlier this month. The current president, Walker G. Everett was re-elected to office for the second year in a row, and will serve, as president, through 1968.

Others elected were Frank O'Connor, to be men's vice-president; Lisa M. Specht, to be women's vice-president; and Michael Pellettieri, Marjorie P. Philippe and John Torres Jr. (This is the same slate of candidates swept into office at last year's annual meeting.)

The six, elected above, will now select six more League members to constitute the Board of Control for 1968.

The meeting also elected, on motion of the outgoing Board of Control, four well-known people—three of them artists—to Honorary Membership in The Art Students League. They are: Louise Nevelson, internationally-famed sculptress; Harry Sternberg, noted painter and graphic artist, and a popular art teacher; Ben Shahn, internationally-known painter, muralist, designer and illustrator; Joe Lowe, philanthropist, founder, with his late wife, of the Joe and Emily Lowe Foundation, benefactor of the League, of other art organizations and societies, as well as of Hofstra University, Syracuse University and the University of Miami. The first three are former students at the League.

Harry Sternberg has also been an instructor at the League for thirty years.

It should be noted in passing that the position of Honorary Member is reserved to people who have performed unusually meritorious service to American

The World of Art in Dutchess

Dutchess County does not hibernate artwise during the winter season and currently on view, or slated for viewing shortly, Ulster's neighbor is offering or will offer a galaxy of art shows and exhibitions.

A tour through galleries there makes for excellent viewing and more than a few Saturday or Sunday excursionists spend a work-free day on such treks. One might start off with the Arax Gallery on Poughkeepsie's Main Street where the December show is a Group Exhibition of Graphic Prints. Then there's the Bethlehem Art Gallery on Jackson Avenue in Vails Gate, where the display this month is a Group Exhibition of Original Paintings and Watercolors. On to the Champagnat Gallery Lounge on the Marist College campus at Poughkeepsie, which is open at all times and is now featuring an Exhibition of Drawings and Paintings by Woodstock artist Elfriede Borkmann.

ings of Various Artists; IBM Country Club Gallery, South Road, Poughkeepsie, with two one-man shows onstage: Harold McIntosh in the Lobby Gallery and Mrs. H. Edna T. Tompkins in the Cafe Gallery; Lathrop Memorial Center Art Gallery, Holiday Hills YMCA, Pawling, where members of the Dutchess County Art Association are exhibiting; and Poughkeepsie's Three Arts Gallery, on Collegeview Avenue, with its December Group Exhibition of Paintings.

As for the near future, Bennett College Art Gallery in Halcyon Hall on the Millbrook campus will have an Exhibition of African Sculpture from Jan. 4-Feb. 1; Dutchess Hall on Dutchess Community College campus will offer a Faculty Art Show, opening Jan. 3, to be followed by a Japanese Show of Prints; and Poughkeepsie's Three Arts Gallery has scheduled an Exhibition of Bronzes by Anne Wienholt for January. Last but not least, the next big Dutchess County Art Association show will be held at the IBM Country Club from Jan. 26-Feb. 14.

Art. Since the founding of the League in 1875, only 72 Honorary Members have been named.

Walker G. Everett, president, is a current student of William Draper, the portrait painter. He is an exhibiting member of the Phoenix Gallery, a gallery co-operatively run by its artist-members. Mr. Everett is a former vice-president and partner of Ted Bates and Company, well-known advertising agency.

Frank O'Connor, men's vice-president, is a painter who began his professional career as a movie actor with D. W. Griffith. His wife is Ayn Rand, author of "The Fountainhead," and other works.

Lisa M. Specht, women's vice-president, is a well-known textile designer who heads her own firm in Middletown, N. Y., and lives in West Town.

Michael Pellettieri has studied for three years with Harry Sternberg, and for one year each with Edwin Dickinson and Robert Beverly Hale. He is a candidate for an MFA degree at Hunter College, University of the City of New York, and got his BA in Art at City College.

Marjorie P. Philippe, is a former student of Julian Levi, Harry Sternberg, George Grosz and Charles Alston at the League. John Torres Jr. is a young sculptor who has won three fellowships at the Edward G. McDowell Colony, as well as numerous awards and grants from other foundations.

Area Students in All-Mozart Program

When the Fredonia College Choir took to the stage with the Buffalo Philharmonic Orchestra this month for an all-Mozart Program at Philharmonic Hall, two talented area singers were among those performing. They are members of the choir which was featured in "The Impresario" and "Requiem Mass" sung in the concert as part of the Centennial Year Celebration of the State University College at Fredonia.

The students heard in the recent program were Eldon Teesel, of Catskill and Stephen Markuson, of Newburgh.

Lukas Foss conducted the concert version of Mozart's "The Impresario" and the "Requiem Mass." Dr. Richard Sheil directed the Fredonia College Choir. Soloists for both works were sopranos Helen Boatwright and Bethany Beardslee, Danish mezzo-soprano, Merete Bekkelund who was making her New York debut, tenor Warren Hoffer and baritone Laurence Bogue. Miss Boatwright, Mr. Hoffer and Mr. Bogue performed in both works. Miss Beardslee sang in "The Impresario" and Miss Bekkelund appeared in the Mozart "Requiem."

This concert marked the second joint effort of the Buffalo Philharmonic and the Fredonia College Choir in Philharmonic Hall.

Lukas Foss has been musical director of the Buffalo Philharmonic since 1963. Prior to that time he succeeded Arnold Schoenberg as Professor of Composition at the University of California at Los Angeles. Mr. Foss, well-known as a composer, conductor and pianist, last season appeared in New York as guest conductor with the New York Philharmonic. He also led performances of "The Marriage of Figaro" with the New York City Opera Company.

Dr. Richard Sheil, director of the College Choir at State University, joined the faculty in 1949.

Weekly Coffee Hours at WAA

In the firm belief that a weekly Coffee Hour will be a good investment in spite of the nominal cost involved, the Woodstock Artists Association will initiate just such an institution this week. Whether or not these "hours" will establish some sort of renaissance locally, or make of the gallery a new "in" place, is still a moot question.

In any event, the "hours" are slated to begin Jan. 4 and will be held each Thursday thereafter from 4 to 6 p.m. in the back room of the gallery.

Those in charge of planning the events are hopeful that their open informality will help to erase any feeling that the gallery is for artists only—or for a small group of artists in particular. In this vein, any and all members of the WAA—as well as everybody else—is invited to drop by for a visit, to mingle, and to meet each other. It is the contention of the Coffee Hour hosts that musicians might like to meet painters, bankers might like to meet poets, talkers might like to meet listeners, and proprietors of hardware stores might like to meet managers of crafts shops. Certainly, the Executive Board of the WAA would like to meet everybody, and they urge one and all to remember the free coffee, take a few minutes off from shopping, or bring a friend and stop in on the way home from work.

Hopefully, the idea will catch on, and the supposedly conspiratorial air that hangs over the gallery will give way to an interest in working toward something vital for the good of the town and area. Such interest, it is noted, helped to make the WAA's sketch class (small only a few years ago) into an endeavor that now pays its own way.

You, Too, Can Celebrate with Guy Lombardo

What are you doing New Year's Eve? Well, most of you probably won't be spending it at the Waldorf-Astoria but a sizeable number of your fellow Americans will. And they'll be there mostly because Guy Lombardo, the traditional U. S. symbol of New Year's Eve, will be back at the Park Avenue hotel to welcome 1968. Last year, for the first time in the hotel's history, the Waldorf's famous Grand Ballroom was the scene of a New Year's Eve party open to the public. It was a tremendous success and the Waldorf has invited "Mr. New Year's Eve" to come back again.

Waldorf's Grand Ballroom coast to coast on ABC-TV.

If the thought intrigues you, there's still time to run down for the evening, providing you've got the price of reservations. They come high at from $32.50 to $42.50 per person, plus tax and gratuity, depending on the location of your table in the ballroom. However, the top-heavy tab includes a filet mignon dinner, Guy Lombardo and His Royal Canadians . . . plus Margaret Whiting, Jean Paul Vignon and other special guest stars, show and dancing, hats and noisemakers.

And, oh, yes—dress will be black tie.

If you're really a big spender, perhaps you'd prefer the package deal for suburbanites and out-of-towners. In prices ranging from $54.20 to $64.70 per person, you can enjoy the ballroom celebration, a room for two in the posh hostelry on Sunday night, and a New Year's Day brunch on the Waldorf's Peacock Alley on Monday.

Kingston Girl In Radio Choir

As the Hartwick College Choir participated in the CBS national radio broadcast, Cavalcade of Christmas Music, a local student was among the choir members heard. Susan Baxter, a freshman music major from Kingston, was one of the second sopranos appearing on the section of the program reserved for the Oneonta singing group.

The 15-minute program on the CBS network last week, marked the fourth appearance on this broadcast by the Hartwick Choir. Directed by Thurston J. Dox, Hartwick assistant professor of music, the popular choir has also been heard on NBC's Great Choirs of America, in numerous TV broadcasts, and at the World's Fair in New York.

The Kingston girl is one of 65 selected voices from a student body of 1,500. She will be accompanying the choir on a seven-day concert tour in Connecticut, Massachusetts, New York and New Jersey early next spring.

THE TIME OF YOUR LIFE, William Saroyan's hit play of yesteryear, was one of the theatrical highlights on the area scene in 1967. Here, the action on stage absorbs the attention of the cast and crew members during a rehearsal scene around Thanksgiving time. With weeks of such rehearsals behind them, local thespians of the Ninety Miles Off Broadway company took to the stage for three performances of the production at the Duzine Elementary School in New Paltz. Play was based on story of what happens to heroine Kitty Duval as she seeks her dream of marriage among the sentimental inhabitants of a San Francisco waterfront saloon. ## Bard Guest Fest

Conversational Times Score Big Hit on Campus

With the enlargement of the President's House at Bard College a year and a half ago, a new program became possible, namely a series of Guest Evenings.

Several times a semester, President and Mrs. Reamer Kline are now inviting to the campus a leading figure in some field of general interest. Most often they give a dinner party at 6:30 p.m., at which the visitor meets faculty members in areas related to his field as well as Upper College student majors in that area. Then at 8:30 p.m. there is a general invitation to the whole campus to come to the house and hear a talk and engage in discussion with the College's guest. An informal reception at the end of the evening rounds out the program.

Usually these Guest Evenings work out to be not so much a formal "lecture followed by question period," as an evening of conversation with a distinguished figure. Visitors for Guest Evenings so far have included Wilfred Cantwell Smith, PhD, Director of the Center for The Study of World Religions at Harvard University; Michael Lipskin '64 and Miles Kreuger '54 on "the role of jazz in the American musical theatre;" Jane Jacobs, author of The Death and Life of Great American Cities; Howard E. Koch '22, writer of screen-plays, including Casablanca and Loss of Innocence, the latter of which he showed at the Guest Evening; and Charles Woodruff Yost, former U.S. Ambassador to Laos, Syria and Morocco and recently United States Deputy Representative to the United Nations; and Russell Lynes, for many years managing editor of Harper's Magazine, and author of High-Brow, Low-Brow, Middle-Brow, The Tastemakers and numerous other works.

Art as a Way of Life

Final meeting in a special series of four inservice workshops designed to focus on the Arts was held recently at BOCES Educational Center, New Paltz. Consultants for this last session were Dale Stein and Maurice Brown of SUNY, New Paltz faculty, and they concentrated on the program theme, Art As a Way of Life. Discussion centered on the concept of opening the doors to further direct communications between schools, the "art world," and professional artists.

The series was attended by representatives from the central and consolidated schools of Ellenville, Highland, Kingston, New Paltz, Onteora, Rondout Valley, Saugerties and Wallkill. Success of the program was reflected in the fact that enrollment jumped considerably between the first and the third and fourth sessions.

Artists who served as consultants in the program were:

Eugene Fairbanks, John de Broske, Russel Roy, Peter Bohan, Thyra Davidson and Thomas Barr. Mrs. Irma Gray, assistant director for cultural programs with the Mid-Hudson Regional Center, New Paltz, acted as discussion leader; was joined by artist-consultants to form a panel at each meeting.

Highlights of the session included films made by Brown and Fairbanks, slides of work done by de Broske and his students, an exhibition of Bohan paintings, SUNY's string trio playing excerpts from Beethoven and Haydn, film slides of Davidson sculptures, and photographs of Karp and Stein.

Those in charge of designing the project say they were pleased with the participant interaction; praise the series as one of the many instructional improvement services offered to the schools of Ulster County by the BOCES program of Curriculum Development.

What's Happening

We have no way of gauging how far afield TEMPO readers would feel inclined to travel in search of entertainment in the artistic and cultural fields. Assuming, however, that at least some of you have both the leisure and the inclination to motor Upstate or down Manhattan way in search of such rewards, we have culled through a formidable list of New York State events planned for the month of January and, from an abundance of things to see and do, offer these for your consideration.

If exhibits of screens and photography are your cup of tea, the Brooklyn Museum has some of the former by Munkata throughout the month, and the Munson-Williams Proctor Institute at Utica has some of the latter in its Four Seasons show by William C. White, booked for a month-long run.

Rochester is the place to go for concerts in early January. The Royal Philharmonic Orchestra of London will be at the Eastman Theater on Jan. 4; The Eastman Percussion Ensemble at Eastman School of Music on Jan. 5; and the Eastman Chorale at the same place on Jan. 12.

Eskimo Art

Jumping back to the world of art, we find Binghamton offering an exhibit of — of all things — 400 years of locks and door ornamentation at its Roberson Center from Jan. 7-28, and Elbert Ryerson's one-man art show at its Two Rivers Gallery through the same dates. Utica's Munson-Williams-Proctor Institute (it's worth the trip to see the building alone) has paintings from the Michener Foundation collection from Jan. 7 to Feb. 4. Binghamton's Roberson Center will be the scene of an excellent exhibit from Jan. 14-Feb. 14 when Arts of an Eskimo Community comes to town.

Down in New York City, the Museum of Modern Art will exhibit the Janis Collection from Jan. 17-March 10.

Music lovers will find the January thaw easier to face if they're in Rochester or Corning during mid-month. Rochester's Eastman Theater has booked the Rochester Philharmonic for Jan. 18 and its Eastman School of Music will have the Eastman Musica Nova on Jan. 19. The Corning Glass Center plays host to the DeCormier Folk Singers on Jan. 19.

Later in the month, from Jan. 23-March 4, Manhattan's Museum of Modern Art will exhibit the Graphic Design Collection.

Classic and Folk

Concerts predominate again on Jan. 27 when Binghamton's Roberson Center welcomes pianist Kabi Laretei, and the Corning Glass Center hosts folksinger Tom Glazier; on Jan. 28 when Corning hears the Corning Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra; and on Jan. 30 when Albany's Palace Theater offers a concert by the Albany Symphony Orchestra.

Balletomanes have not been neglected in January since the American Ballet Company will perform Jan. 30 at West Junior High School, Binghamton, and at Eastman Theatre, Rochester, on Jan. 31.

JAMMING IT UP FOR HUVREP — One of the more entertaining local fetes of 1967 managed to combine theatre, music and movies. On the left we have Dick Burlingame, musician and former area book shop owner, followed by ex-Broadway and TV dancer and present advertising executive Harrison Muller. Duo was part of strings and drums ensemble entertaining at film and food party in Woodstock for benefit of the new Hudson Valley Repertory Theatre. Listening in background at right is famed Shady artist, "Brock" Brokenshaw. Fun was had by all attending gala bash in watercolorist John Pike's studio, and combined attractions of movies by 8 Ball Productions, Ltd., buffet spread, dancing and drink brought in more than $1,300 for the area theatrical group.

Rochester is the place to go for concerts in early January. The Royal Philharmonic Orchestra of London will be at the Eastman Theater on Jan. 4; The Eastman Percussion Ensemble at Eastman School of Music on Jan. 5; and the Eastman Choral at the same place on Jan. 12.

Eskimo Art
Jumping back to the world of art, we find Binghamton offering an exhibit of — of all things — 400 years of locks and door ornamentation at its Roberson Center from Jan. 7-28, and Elbert Ryerson's one-man art show at its Two Rivers Gallery through the same dates. Utica's Munson-Williams-Proctor Institute (it's worth the trip to see the building alone) has paintings from the Michener Foundation collection from Jan. 7 to Feb. 4. Binghamton's Roberson Center will be the scene of an excellent exhibit from Jan. 14-Feb. 14 when Arts of an Eskimo Community comes to town.

Down in New York City, the Museum of Modern Art will exhibit the Janis Collection from Jan. 17-March 10.

Music lovers will find the January thaw easier to face if they're in Rochester or Corning during mid-month. Rochester's Eastman Theater has booked the Rochester Philharmonic for Jan. 18 and its Eastman School of Music will have the Eastman Musica Nova on Jan. 19. The Corning Glass Center plays host to the DeCormier Folk Singers on Jan. 19.

Later in the month, from Jan. 23-March 4, Manhattan's Museum of Modern Art will exhibit the Graphic Design Collection.

Classic and Folk

Concerts predominate again on Jan. 27 when Binghamton's Roberson Center welcomes pianist Kabi Laretei, and the Corning Glass Center hosts folksinger Tom Glazier; on Jan. 28 when Corning hears the Corning Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra; and on Jan. 30 when Albany's Palace Theater offers a concert by the Albany Symphony Orchestra.

Balletomanes have not been neglected in January since the American Ballet Company will perform Jan. 30 at West Junior High School, Binghamton, and at Eastman Theatre, Rochester, on Jan. 31.

JAMMING IT UP FOR HUVREP — One of the more entertaining local fetes of 1967 managed to combine theatre, music and movies. On the left we have Dick Burlingame, musician and former area book shop owner, followed by ex-Broadway and TV dancer and present advertising executive Harrison Muller. Duo was part of strings and drums ensemble entertaining at film and food party in Woodstock for benefit of the new Hudson Valley Repertory Theatre. Listening in background at right is famed Shady artist, "Brock" Brokenshaw. Fun was had by all attending gala bash in watercolorist John Pike's studio, and combined attractions of movies by 8 Ball Productions, Ltd., buffet spread, dancing and drink brought in more than $1,300 for the area theatrical group.

Information Explosion Arrives

The Ford Foundation has just announced a $5 million grant to help the nation's libraries keep pace with the "information explosion." The grant was made to the Council on Library Resources, established in 1956 to "aid in the solution of problems of libraries generally and research libraries in particular." The council, established by the foundation, will now expand its program of research, development, and demonstration of new techniques and methods in library operations and service.

The council's activities — which the foundation has previously supported with grants totaling $13 million — have ranged far afield from its Washington office and concentrated on methods to improve information storage and retrieval as well as preservation of papers and education for librarianship.

The new grant will be used to enlarge and improve these activities and to develop model libraries for the sciences, humanities and social sciences, and for the liberal-arts college.

Each model library will utilize currently available technology and experiment with newly developed techniques. The grant will also be used to begin a librarians' leave-of-absence program so persons in key post will be able to study significant new techniques at various libraries. Some funds will go toward staff expansion and a program to keep specialists in the U. S. informed on library improvements abroad.

The Ford Foundation felt the grant was important in view of the fact that libraries continue to face many intense pressures from exploding college enrollments, growth of new fields of specializations, the booming publications industry, and a shortage of trained personnel. The grant also recognizes the fact that libraries must cope with tremendous storage and retrieval problems and with maintaining organized records.

Statistics show that more than half of all the research and development work ever done by man has been done since 1950, and that knowledge continues to accumulate at such a rapid rate, it will double in the next 15 years. These facts will pose serious challenges to libraries in their role of maintaining the organized record of human experience. The council, on its part, will do all it can, to assist libraries in the preservation and dissemination of knowledge in society and in helping to provide continued leadership in this field. It has already been instrumental in helping to set up a centralized pool of cataloguing information in a cooperative effort between the Library of Congress, National Agricultural Library, and the National Library of Medicine.

Other Ford Foundation grants announced recently include:

Brazilian Society for Instruction, $137,000 for social science research and training; Columbia University, $2,720,170 to establish a Center for Urban-Minority Affairs; Constitutional Rights Foundation, $50,000 to help improve teaching of the Bill of Rights; University of Delhi, $441,000 to develop university's law faculty, and $1.5 million to strengthen science programs; Department of Community Affairs, State of New Jersey, $250,800 for statewide manpower system; Federal University of Rio de Janeiro, $163,000 for a graduate linguistics program, and $122,000 for biology of human reproduction research.

Also, Interracial Council for Business Opportunity, $350,000 to help Negroes open and operate their own businesses; National Association for Foreign Student Affairs, $7,000 to support its program; University of Singapore, $377,000 for economic research center, and $150,000 to strengthen law faculty; Torcuato Di Tella Institute of Argentina, $140,000 for urban and regional studies and educational research; University of Wisconsin, $800,000 for center on national development and technical assistance; and Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation, $2.4 million to improve doctoral studies in the humanities and social sciences.

Include Ulster For Auditions

Blanche Thebom, leading mezzo-soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, will be one of the judges of the 1968 Metropolitan Auditions being held Jan. 20, in Binghamton. Also joining Miss Thebom as judges will be Julius Huehn, chairman of the voice department and professor of voice at Eastman School of Music in Rochester, and Ruth Pinnell, associate professor of voice at Syracuse University of Music.

The auditions, under the auspices of the Metropolitan Opera National Council, are for the northeastern part of New York State which includes Ulster County. They will begin at 1:15 p. m. at the theatre of the State University of New York at Binghamton on Jan. 20, with warm-up sessions beginning at 10 a. m. Additional information can be obtained by writing Mrs. Joseph P. Minnich Jr., 7 Johnson Avenue, Binghamton. Applications must be postmarked by Dec. 31.

Miss Thebom, recently named artistic director for Opera of Atlanta's Municipal Theater, has toured Europe, the Far East, South and Central America and behind the Iron Curtain in the U. S. cultural relations programs.

Huehn was a baritone with the Metropolitan Opera and made appearances with Chicago and San Francisco opera companies before becoming associated with the Eastman School.

Miss Pinnell has sung leading roles in contemporary operas in Syracuse and in 1964 served as a U. S. representative during a UNESCO conference in Hamburg, Germany. She is Eta province president of Sigma Alpha Iota, national professional music fraternity for women.

TEMPO READERS WRITE

THE GOOD OLD DAYS

In reference to your recent article on building the Ashokan Reservoir, in 1892 I resided in Olive City—now entirely submerged by the reservoir.

Olive City was located between Tongore (now Olivebridge) and Broadheads, where the U&D Railroad crossed the Esopus Creek.

Olive City consisted of about 20 families. There was a church, schoolhouse (which I attended), post office and grocery store operated by Asa Bishop, and another operated by John Locke. Also, a blacksmith shop run by Isaac Merrihew and his son, Henry. I went there often and watched them shoe horses and also oxen suspended in stocks.

Only a short distance along the road leading to the Esopus Creek, there was a pulp mill, grist mill and sawmill. There was a covered bridge over the Esopus Creek on the road leading to Brown's Station.

The principal business in the surrounding area was general farming, bluestone quarrying, cord wood hoops and logging for sawmills in Shokan.

Yours truly,
LESLIE S. LYONS

THANKS A MILLION

The ride of our Dutch Saint Nicholas and Black Peter really drew the crowds this year in Kingston. I understand that the crowd was estimated to be approximately 1,500. In other years attendance has been around 250 at the most, so we of the Old Dutch Church are really pleased with such an overwhelming success.

We know the article in TEMPO on the event helped to make all this possible. Thanks a million.

SECONDS THAT STATUE

I have been meaning to write to thank you for the very generous review you gave my book on Sojourner Truth—and to say that I think TEMPO's idea that there should be a statue to her is great. Long overdue!

I certainly hope your suggestion starts a real move toward doing it, so that Ulster County youngsters, both Negro and white, will have a little more awareness of an important part of their history.

Thanks again for your interest and for doing such a good double job with the review.

Very sincerely,
JACQUELINE BERNARD

GIVES A REAL LIFT

My husband and I were so taken with your recent excellent article on Sojourner Truth. (And, for that matter, all the rest of TEMPO, which certainly is giving a real life to the Saturday or weekend Freeman.)

I have been looking for the early 1850 book on Sojourner Truth and it is often advertised for in the "wanted" columns of the Antiquarian Bookman, a weekly for book sellers. And I was surprised and delighted to find, through your article, that she was from our immediate neighborhood.

Now I am more than ever interested and will look forward to getting "Journey Toward Freedom," which I have ordered. Thanks and more power to you.

Sincerely,
PAULA S. SUMMERS

MORE! MORE! MORE!

Congratulations to TEMPO on a veritable slew of clever and interesting articles in recent weeks. Among them: Halloween—How It Used To Be, A monument to Colonel Chandler . . . But None for Sojourner, and My Son, the Commander-in-Chief. I have two chiefs around my house—and only wish I could write about them as your author did.

The TEMPO supplement has been read with great enjoyment by my family and is now on its way to New Jersey for Grandma to read and enjoy.

Please, more, more, more of those lovely articles by your staff. As long as TEMPO continues to print such articles, we'll keep subscribing—and several of our neighbors are taking advantage of your home delivery because we have been sharing these little tidbits with them.

Sincerely,
DORIS HANSON

A FOLLOW-UP?

After reading the article on the old Hudson River lighthouses in TEMPO and finding it most interesting, I wondered if the magazine might consider doing a follow-up. If your staff cared to do so, I could put TEMPO in contact with a Kingston lady who was born in the Rondout Lighthouse, knows many stories about that time, and has enlarged pictures of the interior of the lighthouse.

If you can find the time and are interested, I know you will spend a delightful hour and she will enjoy having you call.

Sincerely,
MRS. WILLIAM C. PRULL

(Editor's note: TEMPO is indeed interested; will hopefully be able to do so after the holidays.)

Fox as "Baron" Is Game Loser

West Hurley's high flying pilot, David Fox, took to the skies as the "bloody" Red Baron for a TV special this week. Fox played the German ace in a simulated dog fight over Rhinebeck Aerodrome with Coie Palen in a sequence from the Boys Will Be Boys Christmas Special last Tuesday night on CBS-TV's Eye on New York program.

Dave looked the part of Snoopy's nemesis as the camera zeroed in on his flowing mustache—and he fought the World War I fight in the best of all possible traditions. Alas, however, the Baron had to lose in the end to that clean cut American boy in the Sopwith Camel.

Program format was written around gifts children get for Christmas (trains, planes and war games—all of which all of us know are really big boy play toys). In addition to being given an opportunity to explore the Rhinebeck Aerodrome, viewers went along as interviewers visited a shortline train which runs from Flemington to Ringoes, N. J. during the summer months and which is manned by weekend railroad buffs; and a Greenwich, Conn. "battlefield" where somewhat aging warriors of the Red and Blue armies forever fight unsung battles, attired in all the elaborate trappings of the game, including walkie talkies.

Fenians Come Into Their Own

Some months back, TEMPO did a lengthy interview with Woodstock author Charles Boswell and, in the course of the conversation, he told us he was contemplating a future book on the Fenian Rising. Now, Boswell (and perhaps some of the rest of you) will be interested in knowing that the Irish Post Office will issue two special stamps to commemorate the centenary of the Fenian Rising.

The Fenians, as those who read the Boswell piece know, made many ill-fated attempts to gain Irish freedom from Britain by means of violent uprisings, some of which occurred on the U.S.-Canadian border at the end of the American Civil War.

The new five pence stamp incorporates a reproduction of the one-cent Fenian stamp essay. A stamp essay is a form of proof stamp which was prepared in the U. S. in the hopes of being the first new stamp of an independent Ireland. The one-shilling stamp bears a reproduction of the 24-cent Fenian stamp essay.

Collectors in this country desiring first-day covers of this set may write to Irish Cachet Covers, 947 East 32nd Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., 11210. A complete set on cover costs only one dollar.

Woolley Exhibits Photographs

An exhibition of 60 photographs by A. E. Woolley is currently on display at the Storm King Academy in Cornwall.

Woolley's photographs are from places which have been featured in his photographic stories, essays and books; include Egypt, Iran, India, Hong Kong, Japan and South Africa. Major magazine feature articles have been published from his trips and two books which are profiles on the countries visited have been produced from treks to Iran and South Africa.

"PERSIA-IRAN, A Pictorial Treasury of Twenty-Five Centuries," (Amphoto-New York) is one of the books produced from Woolley's photographic reporting. It has been called one of the most beautiful tributes to one of the world's oldest nations. There are over 20 photographs in the current exhibition which appear in the book.

Some dozen pictures in the exhibition from South Africa will appear in a new book to be released in early spring. It will be titled, "Images of South Africa"; (Charles E. Decker, Inc., Newburgh.)

Woolley is the associate director of the Mid-Hudson Regional Supplementary Educational Center in New Paltz, an ESEA Title III program serving Orange, Sullivan, Putnam, Dutchess and Ulster Counties. His photographic journalism has been published in Look, Life, Time, Pageant, New York Times, M D Magazine, Parade, Scholastic Roto, Sports Illustrated, Popular Photography, U.S. Camera, Camera 35, and many others. He has published ten other books including Creative 35mm Techniques, Traveling With Your Camera, Camera Journalism, Night Photography, and 35mm Nudes.
